Pa.'s 38th All-American Dairy Show 'Biggest In America'

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Pennsylvania Agriculture Secretary Sam Hayes encourages all dairy enthusiasts to attend the 38th All-American Dairy Show Sept. 22-27, what he calls the "biggest dairy show in America," at the Pennsylvania Farm Show Complex.

Hayes said, "Pennsylvania takes great pride in hosting one of the top dairy shows in America. I encourage all dairy breeders to get their premium list and make plans to attend the All-American Dairy Show. We are working to have the 'All-American' a world-class show for a world-class dairy industry; and, with things such as increased premiums and the huge new construction scheduled for the Pennsylvania Farm Show Complex, we are providing tangible proof of our intent to provide the dairy industry with the very best."

The numbers prove it: the show, largest in the U.S. last year at 2,848 entries, has grown in size this year to 3,077 entries. Hayes noted. Last year the number of exhibitors stood at 562; this year, Hayes said, they have risen to 574.

"Twenty states were involved in the All-American Dairy show last year, up substantially from 1999," he said. "This year there are entries from 24 states in the show."

State appropriations reflect what Hayes called a positive and upbeat commitment to the event. Appropriations for the show totaled $187,000 last year; this year, appropriations have risen to $225,000.

Lancaster Farming Introduces Dairy Plus

A new booklet this issue arrives just in time for the Pennsylvania All-American Dairy Show in Harrisburg. Lancaster Farming's Dairy Plus, pictured at left, includes brand-new dairy industry news and information departments.

The premier issue of Dairy Plus includes features on facility and herd expansion, alternative dairying, and expanded DHIA reports. The booklet also includes information from Penn State dairy science experts, including grazing with larger herds, information on BVD, minimizing immune system dysfunction, and a foot and mouth disease update.

Dairy Plus* also includes a special information from the cooperatives, business news, and a long-range dairy calendar. Also provided is pertinent regional and national news and advertising messages.

Animal Handling Expert: Don't Abandon Ethics While Improving Technology

DEANNA CUNFER
Carbon Co. Correspondent

POCONO MANOR (Monroe Co.) — Dr. Temple Grandin, assistant professor of animal science at Colorado State University and designer of animal handling facilities, said her biggest concern after working with livestock for 25 years is the pushing of genetics to the point where science overrides ethical issues in regards to animal welfare and handling.

At the 123rd PennAg Convention early this week at the Pocono Manor Inn and Golf Resort, Pocono Manor, Grandin provided her insights into animal handling practices.

Grandin's presentation was titled, "If the Public Visited Your Farm Today, Would You Feel Comfortable?"

Grandin believes the general public won't accept drastic scientific and genetic changes — we must keep ethical issues in mind and must find standards that the general public will find acceptable.

According to Grandin, animal welfare is an issue that is not going to go away. Through providing accurate information to the public and retailers who purchase and use our products, addressing those in the industry who conduct unethical practices, and working to communicate and teach the public where the food comes from, we can improve our share of the market.

Grandin, a leading consultant in animal welfare, suggested one way to improve the handling of animals was to avoid putting handlers on a piecework basis, but to instead use incentive pay. In her studies she found employees who share in the profits were more likely to treat the animals with respect.

Delmarva Broiler/Fryer

ATLANTA, GA.
Report Supplied By USDA

Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds was no better than fair and centered mainly on standing commitments. Offerings were adequate to fully adequate. Live supplies were mostly moderate; weights were desirable to instances heavy. Processing schedules were moderately heavy. Less than trucklot asking prices were unchanged at 60 to 74 cents. Trade sentiment was barely steady. Wings were in good balance. Boneless skinless breasts and thighs were readily available and slow in clearing. Bone-in breasts were fully adequate. Leg quarters were adequate.

Northeast Broiler Fryer Parts Part I

ATLANTA, GA.
Report Supplied By USDA

Trucklot buying activity was about fair during midweek trading as dealers attempted to keep floorstocks closely balanced. Offerings of breast items were fully adequate to ample. Legs and thighs were adequate to fully adequate. Wings remained the best items and were clearing well. Distributive movement was generally no better than fair as retail feature activity was limited and foodservice interest remained subdued. The market tone was fully steady on wings, barely steady to weak on breast items, no better than steady on the balance.

It's Not Just For The Big Boys.

Maybe you run a few beef cattle. Or you've got a small breeding operation. Nothing big. But big enough to wish you could put up your own hay.

'Til now, you figured that was strictly for big-time operators. Well, think again.

Hesston has a complete line of hay tools built to work with tractors no bigger than 30hp With a reliable, low-maintenance half-swaybar sickle drive and full-length, adjustable conditioner rolls, the Model 1120 mower conditioner tackles tough, stemmy crops or tender, leafy crops, for fluffy windrows or fast-drying 9' swaths.

The ground- or hydraulic-drive Model 3830 parallel bar rake boasts coil-spring suspension and a staggered rear axle, so you follow the contours – and leave behind nothing but clean stubble and fluffy, uniform windows

The Model 4550 square baler, with centerline design and a low-profile pickup, lets you build uniform 14"x18" bales, packed full of high-quality leaves

Daily National Grain Market Summary

St. Joseph, MO
Report Supplied By USDA

Daily National Grain Market Summary

Grain and soybean bids were slightly lower due profit taking and continue slack in export news. Wheat bids were 2 to 6 cents lower. Corn mostly steady to 3 cent with some strength in So. Iowa. Sorghum steady to 3 cents lower. Soybean bids 2 to 7 cents lower.

Slight decline in today's wheat market, despite slowed harvest progress due to recent rains. Stunted foreign demand also a weakening factor. Corn prices mostly lower following profit taking on the Board. An unstable global situation has export interest at a minimal. Soybean bids were slightly lower also due to fund selling. EXPORT SALES: PURCHASER COMMODITY TONNAGE DELIVERY DATE CCC Nicaragua 14.0 pct Northern Spring 9,620 Oct-Nov CCC Honduras 14.0 pct Northern Spring 4,000 Oct-Nov CCC North Korea Corn 50,000 Nov CCC Philippines Soybean Meal 10,000 Dec

The OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC THIS WEEK WITH

YOM KIPPUR, SEPT. 27

HONORING ANGELS

On the feast day of St Michael (September 29), we honor not only Michael, but all angels Traditional foods include roast goose and cakes of rye oats, or barley Whether revered as a prince or a general, this handsome young man is much appreciated for driving the rebel angels out of heaven Stern-faced armored, and carrying the scales of justice St Michael is rarely depicted without his lance and shield Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, in his poem 'Golden Legend,' claimed that Michael brings prudence to man So may you "bear upon [your] hands the gift of heavenly prudence here " as the poet wrote

TIP OF THE WEEK

☞ Hold a small nail or brad between the teeth of a comb to avoid hitting your finger with the hammer.

ANGELIC OATCAKES

1 cup old-fashioned rolled oats
1 stick (1/2 cup) unsalted butter
1 cup whole-wheat flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 tablespoon light brown sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 cup milk

Preheat oven to 350°F Mix oats with butter in electric mixer or food processor then add remaining ingredients and mix until it forms a dough On a lightly floured surface, roll dough fairly thin and cut into 3-inch rounds Arrange on greased baking sheet, slightly apart, and bake for 15 minutes, until golden

Makes 1-1/2 dozen.

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

St. Michael's rain does not stay long in the sky.

Large-Scale Victories

In the past two weeks, in which all of us have had to deal with the gloomiest news since the outbreak of World War II, in which victories have been few and far between, large-scale agriculture advocates may have something to cheer about.

PennAg Industries Association, in their release about a recent "Ag Days" program that focused on agriculture and municipalities, provided a feature topic presentation on "Agricultural Law — Zoning, Farmland Preservation, Nutrient Management, and Local Ordinances" (see story last week on page A28). Christine Kellett, professor of law at the Penn State Dickinson Agricultural Law, Research, and Education Center, spoke.

PennAg outlined that Kellett advised township officials to consult the ag community, conservation district, and township solicitors when formulating ag ordinances to stay "within the realm of the law and avoid conflict."

Kellett informed township officials about a recent decision by the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania in June 2001, Naylor v. Township of Hellam, "determining that a township had no actual or incidental power to impose a moratorium on building approvals."

In other words, townships can't simply decide they don't want large-scale agriculture from appearing on the landscape and start to reformulate existing laws, or even go against established, overriding state or federal laws.

In the case opinion, on page four, it's noted that "Municipal corporations have no inherent powers and may do only those things that the Legislature has expressly or by necessary implication placed within their power to do."

Municipalities "are creatures of the state" and the "authority of the Legislature over their powers is supreme," according to the opinion, posted by Mr. Justice Zappala on June 20, 2001.

The ruling could "affect townships considering moratoriums on large-scale agriculture," according to the PennAg release.

Many agricultural advocate organizations have been drawn into this war between small-minded opponents of family-based or small company-based large-scale, environmentally responsible operations. And it looks like large-scale agriculture is coming out on top, smiling.

The ag economy is the heart and soul of business in many small communities. It's a small world already, and we have to work together.

Now Is The Time

By Leon Ressler

Lancaster County Extension Director

To Stretch Feed Supplies With Cottonseed Hulls

This year's dry weather has limited forage supplies with haycrop and corn silage yields both being less than normal. Many dairy producers are going to need to purchase forages to have sufficient feed for this year.

Virginia Ishler, program assistant in the Penn State Dairy and Animal Science Department, reports that hay supplies are tight in the western states as well, so hay prices are expected to be very high this year. However, cottonseed production is expected to be up 16 percent from 2000, which would be the largest production on record.

Many dairy producers are accustomed to feeding whole cottonseed. However, the fat content in cottonseed limits the amount that can be used in a dairy ration. According to Ishler, cottonseed hulls can make a very satisfactory forage substitute that provides effective fiber. Additionally there is a product on the market that combines cottonseed meal with the hulls and this makes a good substitute for average quality alfalfa hay. With a current price of about $155-160/ton, this could help stretch limited forage supplies.

In several research projects conducted at Penn State, straight cottonseed hulls have been successfully used both in early lactation diets and dry cow rations. The early lactation study compared cows fed four pounds of cottonseed hulls with 23 pounds of corn silage to a diet containing 29 pounds corn silage. The ration with the hulls contained 47 percent concentrate and the no hulls ration contained 43 percent (percent of the total ration dry matter). Milk production was very similar with both diets. For both of the diets, milk production averaged 105 pounds with 3.5 percent butterfat. Dry matter intake averaged 60 pounds on the hulls ration compared to 56 pounds without hulls.

If you are in a situation where you find your forage supplies are limited, consider cottonseed hulls as an option in your program. As always, when evaluating a new feed ingredient, have your nutritionist evaluate its availability and its fit for your situation.

To Plant Cover Crops

Many farmers need to empty their manure storage units during the fall season. This means these crop nutrients are applied to cropland at a time of year when they are not needed by a growing crop. Therefore these nutrients are vulnerable to being lost to the environment because of soil erosion and leaching.

Winter cover crops are a valuable tool farmers can use to prevent this economic loss of valuable nutrients and prevent the environmental damage also caused. If you are applying manure to cropland this fall, plan on planting a small grain cover crop such as rye.

The rye will take up the available nitrogen and hold it in the plant, preventing its loss to the water supply. If the rye is harvested, the nutrients will be utilized as high-quality feed. If the rye is killed or plowed in the spring, the nutrients will become available to the following crop. The rye will also prevent nutrient loss by slowing soil erosion. Rye can be planted as late as November but the earlier it is planted the more nutrients it will take up and the more yield it will produce in the spring.

To Protect Yourself From Frauds, Scams And Rip-Offs

Cathy Bowen from the Penn State Department of Ag and Extension Education reports there are a number of frauds, scams, and rip-offs designed to separate you from your money. Some of the more common ones are work-at-home schemes, sweepstakes offers, investment scams, and advance-fee loans. And free gift offers are rarely free.

If someone asking for money contacts you, the chances are good that you may be getting scammed. Bowen suggests some signs to watch for are pressure to make a quick decision, demand for immediate payment, too-good-to-be-true offers, or charging a fee to recover lost money. Never give out your credit card, checking account, or social security number to someone who contacts you.

If you suspect fraud, contact the Pennsylvania Attorney General's Consumer Protection Hotline at (800) 441-2555.

Quote of The Week: In light of the ongoing recovery efforts after last week's tragic events, I offer the following words of Dr. Albert Schweitzer:

"Whosoever is spared personal pain must feel himself called to help in diminishing the pain of others."

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

WITH NOTHING BUT FAITH

Background Scripture:
Matthew 15:21-31.
Devotional Reading:
Luke 4:16-21.

Going from Israel to the district of Tyre and Sidon was not like going from Texas to Oklahoma or from Pennsylvania to New Jersey. Israel was the home of monotheistic Judaism, and Tyre and Sidon were cities of a polyglot pagan population, including some Canaanites. Jesus was journeying from one world to another. Appalled as the disciples were when they found him conversing with a Samaritan woman (John 4), they were even more shocked when Jesus was approached by a Canaanite woman.

This nameless woman had no background in Judaism — she knew nothing about the preaching and teaching of Jesus. All she knew was that this man was purported to be the Jewish Messiah and a gifted healer. So she came to Jesus, saying, "Have mercy on me, O Lord, Son of David; my daughter is severely possessed by a demon" (15:21). She had nothing to offer but her love for her daughter and a dogged persistence.

The first few times I read the following dialogue with Jesus, I was puzzled.

The replies that Jesus made to her seemed totally out of keeping with the compassionate Jesus of Nazareth I had encountered up to this point. Then it occurred to me that what Jesus was voicing were not his own thoughts, but those of his disciples and others. In a sense, Jesus was putting on the Canaanite woman, fencing verbally with her so as to prod the prejudices of his disciples.

The Silent Response

To her initial plea, Jesus "did not answer her a word." From time to time, Jesus responded with silence as he was silent when he bent to write with his finger in the earth before the woman taken in adultery, as he stood silent before both Herod and Pilate and on other occasions. His silence triggered an urgent request from his disciples and perhaps that was his intention: "Send her away, for she is crying after us." They were embarrassed lest anyone should think she was one of their band. As if to support this request, Jesus finally answers the woman: "I was sent only to the lost sheep of the house of Israel."

That probably would have chased away most others, but not this persistent woman. Instead of being repulsed by his words, she came even closer to him and knelt before him, saying, "Lord, help me." Notice that she does not reply to his argument about being sent only to the "lost sheep of the house of Israel." Her focus is much more simple than that: "Lord, help me." This is not theological but personal.

Jesus responds with a bit of reasoning that may have reflected the thinking of his disciples: "It is not fair to take the children's bread and throw it to the dogs." That's what Jews called the Canaanites, "dogs." That must have been what his disciples were thinking, so Jesus brought it out into the open. As the disciples probably saw it, this woman did not deserve to make any requests of their Master. But they had forgotten that no one is deserving of God's grace.

Crumbs Under The Table

The Canaanite woman was undeterred by Jesus' terrible announcement and she replies, "Yes, Lord, yet even the dogs eat the crumbs that fall from their master's table."

Persistent, she was nevertheless humble. She did not demand to be treated as an equal, but rather pleaded for the grace of God. Then Jesus rewarded her faith and persistence: " 'O woman, great is your faith. Be it done for you as you desire.' And her daughter was healed instantly."

What did Jesus mean when he said, ". . . great is your faith"? How could this Canaanite woman have any kind of faith? Here again the word "faith" means "trust." She had no theology, no belief system, but she trusted this man Jesus and that trust was the opening through which healing was brought to her daughter.

She was only a Canaanite woman. She had only love, faith, and persistence.

And it was enough.

Forward Pricing Critical To Corn Growers' Economic Survival

HOLTWOOD (Lancaster Co.) — "You can no longer put corn in a bin and wait on prices," said Ann Risser, Risser Grain.

Risser, who with her family are celebrating 25 years in the grain elevator business, are trying to spread the word about the realities of grain buying and selling.

Farmers need to "have a marketing plan," Risser said, including simple forward pricing.

Ann, with husband Mark and son Brent and Brent's wife, Debbie, operate a grain business with three locations, serving about 2,500 customers.

With headquarters in Holtwood, the grain business picks up and delivers grain to areas in Lancaster, York, and other southeast Pennsylvania counties, all of Maryland, and into New York.

At Holtwood, all 150 tillable acres are rented.

Late last year, the location housed two piles of grain overflow. Both covered, one pile included 200,000 bushels or 11 million pounds of corn.

Another, when it was piled, included about 50,000 bushels. The corn is on top of a 120-foot square concrete pad and covered by a heavy plastic bunker cover.

Storage at the Holtwood location, noted Brent Risser, is more than 550,000 bushels. They can store 250,000 bush-

Crop Winners Announced At Keystone Farm Show

ANDY ANDREWS
Editor

YORK (York Co.) — Winners of the Pennsylvania Five-Acre Corn Club Contest were announced here at the York Fairgrounds in mid-January during the annual Keystone Farm Show.

Dan Wolf, president of the Pennsylvania Master Corn Growers Association (PMCGA), noted that of the 103 entries in the corn contest, there were some "notable differences," he said, in cultural practices compared to the 1999 contest. Only 7 of 91 growers used cultivation, with most growers using 30-inch row spacing. The second highest spacing was 38 inches apart.

Wolf noted it is "hard to find significant differences in yield to favor one type of tillage over another," he told those attending the awards presentation at the fairgrounds.

About 44 percent of the contestants use sidedress nitrogen. Average planting depth was 1.7 inches. Corn acres grown by participants numbered 24,242.

For the most part, the year was substantially different in terms of total yield, a vast improvement from the statewide drought of the previous summer. "Some don't appreciate how good of a year it was," Wolf said.

When calves MOVE OUT, don't give PNEUMONIA time to move in.

When calves move out of the hutch, stress gives pneumonia a door to move in. So act fast to protect them, with One Shot®. One Shot is the only Pasteurella vaccine that builds a significant leukotoxin response to the most common cause of bacterial pneumonia within just 7 days[1]. A response that's faster and stronger than Pyramid®4/Presponse®[1]. That means less lung damage[2]. And healthy animals are more productive. Ask your veterinarian or animal health supplier about One Shot or One Shot Ultra™, the only Pasteurella/blackleg combination.

Get ahead of the clock— take your best shot before pneumonia does.

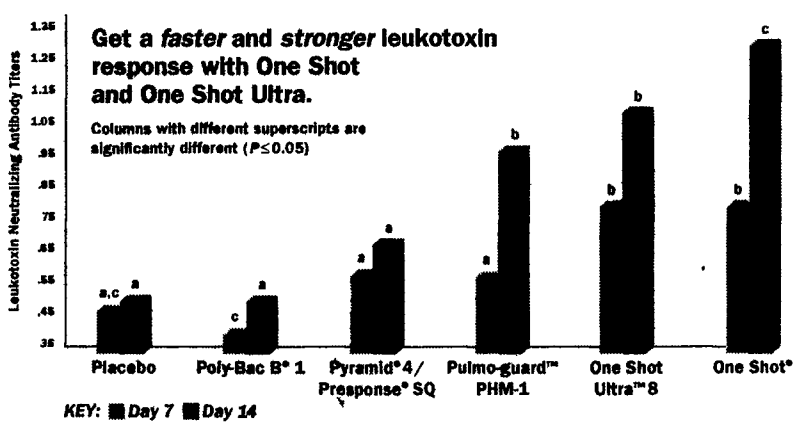
One Shot Ultra™



Use One Shot Ultra in combination with Bovi-Shield™ 4 to get trusted 4-way viral disease protection.

Oklahoma Feeder Cattle Weekly

Oklahoma City, OK
Report Supplied By USDA

Oklahoma National Stockyards - Weekly Cattle Summary Compared to last week: Feeder steers and heifers steady to 2.00 higher. Steer calves steady. Heifer calves steady to 2.00 lower. Demand good for all classes. Cash feeder cattle, slaughter cattle, and cow markets are functioning normally with no ill affects Bulk supply calves under 650 lbs. Feeder cattle over 700 lbs in short supply throughout the trade area Quality plain to average Calves in medium to mostly fleshy conditions, feeder cattle in slightly thin to medium flesh. Weigh-ups gaunt to average, few full.

Receipts reduced by heavy rains over the weekend along with uncertainty on the part of cattlemen due to unsettled national situation. Receipts this week 5750; last week 11,762; last year 9184. Supply consisted of 37 percent yearlings and calves over 600 lbs; 57 percent calves, 6 percent cows and bulls. Heifers comprised 46 percent of feeder and calf supply.

Pasture Perfect® The Brand of Choice

Homestead Nutrition

This week Ampac Seed Company and Rohrer Seeds recognizes Homestead Nutrition, Inc. of New Holland, PA. "We look at the whole picture," says Don Weaver, President and Owner of Homestead Nutrition. "At Homestead we place priority on integrity, trust and honesty in our relationships, and in our stewardship of natural, economic, and human resources for healthy soil, crops and livestock. We call this 'Balanced Nutrition for Soil and Livestock.' We work from the soil up to provide quality service and products that perform."

Don Weaver
Homestead Nutrition

Don is very impressed with the high quality Pasture Perfect® Mixes he's been buying from Rohrer Seeds, and wants his customers to know that it's not too late to plant ryegrasses. "The Renovator Special mix works very well to thicken up thinning pastures and hay fields," says Don. "There's still time to overseed your weak pastures this fall. This tetraploid mix establishes quickly to give high quality pasture forage."

Don adds, "Getting high quality pasture is more than putting good seed in the field, it also takes management. We have just added a new pasture layout and consulting service to help you get results. We welcome the opportunity to serve our community."

A Dry Cow Booster That Costs 7¢ a Day

Hoffmans Horse and Cattle Powder is an ideal tonic for cows over freshening. Feed 6 wks. before freshening. 1 Tablespoon a day. (Two weeks over freshening, feed 1 Tablespoon in the morning & 1 Tablespoon in evening)

Cows will clean better after freshening Cows have a lower somatic cell count and will have less mastitus problems Great for reproduction tract and cows will cycle better after freshening Will help rumen function over freshing Less feet problems and less stress

This is an over-all good booster if fed to dry cows, and it will pay you big dividends.

Maryland Ethanol Workshop Rescheduled

EDGEWATER, Md. — In light of the recent tragedies suffered in Washington and New York, the Maryland Ethanol Workshop originally scheduled for Sept. 13 had to be postponed until Thursday, October 11.

This event sponsored by the U.S. Department of Energy, the Maryland Department of Agriculture, the Maryland Department of the Environment and the Regional Biomass Energy Program is a part of a series of workshops held in many states across the country.

On the agenda for the Ethanol Workshop will be the release of final results from the Ethanol Feasibility Study commissioned by the Maryland Grain Producers Utilization Board (MGPUB). This study, exploring the possibility of Maryland constructing its own ethanol plant, has gained support since first phase results proved to be very favorable.

Joseph Mullhausen, president of the MGPUB stated, "After hearing of the horrific events which occurred in Washington and New York certainly cancellation of this event was necessary. More than ever, I think an event of this magnitude makes the public take a step back and look at the big picture. It was only hours after states in the Mid-West started reporting heavily inflated gas prices because of the uncertainty of crude oil."

Gas stations in Kansas and Oklahoma reported gas prices as high as $5 per gallon. It was stated that the uncertainty of crude oil shipments and probable halt was imminent. Though responsibility of the terrorism had not been decided, impact on consumers became evident.

"We have known for along time that our dependency on foreign oil was a gamble. When an upset happens, in many ways the hands of the United States are tied when dealing with the foreign oil markets. Ethanol is a product that can be produced here in the United States, used in the United States, and our county's citizens can reap its benefits," added Mullhausen.

Ethanol has begun to take on a charge of its own in the past months. Supporters, including that of President Bush, have realized the potential benefits of ethanol. A renewable, clean burning fuel produced here in the United States certainly offers great appeal. Its production from starched based products such as barley, wheat, or corn offers aid to a lagging agricultural economy, in addition to, improving air quality for our environment.

Many ethanol plants in the Mid-West have been successfully operating for years. Since fuel shortages in recent months have occurred and the ban of the fuel oxygenate MTBE in many states, the use of ethanol to fill these voids has gained momentum. The proposed ethanol plant being studied in Maryland would produce 15 million gallons of ethanol per year and would run primarily on barley and small grains. A plant of this size is estimated to cost $30 million dollars.

"Our (MGPUB) sincerest sympathies go out to everyone affected by the events of Sept. 11, if any good can come from this, let it be that our country becomes even stronger."

Pasture Walk Scheduled In Clarion County Oct. 2

CLARION (Clarion Co.) — The Clarion County Extension office has scheduled a pasture walk for Tuesday, October 2, 1:30 p.m. at the Todd Beichner's Scenic Ridge Farm, located north of Shippenville on Route 208.

Beichner is planning on making improvements and develop areas of the recently purchased farm to increase pasture and grazing opportunities.

Participants will be invited to make suggestions on ways to improve and develop the farm's pasturing abilities.

People will have the opportunity to discuss various methods of grazing and water placements to increase the value of the land.

The public is invited. The farm is located four miles north of Shippenville, on Route 208, toward Fryburg. Signs will be posted.

This event will be held rain or shine, so prepare for inclement weather, if necessary. For more information, contact the Clarion County Extension Office, phone (814) 782-0033, or e-mail Clarionext@psu.edu.

Transition Cow Workshops Set

YORK (York Co.) — Capitol region dairy producers are encouraged to attend transition cow workshops planned this fall.

The first workshop is planned for Oct. 5 at Smyser's Richlawn Farm, 2691 East Berlin Road, York. The workshop will run from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. A second workshop is planned Nov. 15 in Cumberland County. Advance registration is requested for both sessions.

Dr. Arlen Mills, capitol region extension veterinarian, will work with the group sessions with Dr. James Cohagan, Fawn Grove and Dr. Donald Yorlets, New Oxford. Extension Dairy Management Agent Vinton Smith will address the human resource management issues and standard operating procedures topics. Tim Beck, York, will present the transition cow nutrition section for the meeting.

The workshop will focus on skills and methods for detecting problem cows before and after calving. Participants will learn how to quickly recognize when a cow is becoming sick, and to perform a basic examination of the animal. Without proper management, transition cows can be a major cause of lost production and profit on dairy farms. If the people working with cows can quickly identify problem animals, then the speed and effectiveness of treatment will be greatly increased.

Participants will learn to observe a group of cows from a distance and detect those that might have a problem. They will be taught how to recognize common symptoms, and which cows are most likely to have particular diseases. The participants will then examine cows and practice picking out individuals that might be showing signs of trouble.

The morning program will feature information on transition cow nutrition and management issues and will highlight special considerations for transition cows. A sample transition cow management protocol will be presented to provide participants with ideas on how to setup a management strategy for their own operations in consultation with their veterinarian.

Participants will learn a systematic method for body condition scoring dairy cows that will help them identify thin or overconditioned cows most likely to have transition cow metabolic problems. During the afternoon session, participants will divide into small groups of 3-5 learners and each group will work with a veterinarian. The small groups will have the opportunity to perform a hands-on examination of a cow. The veterinarian will demonstrate basic examination procedures and each participant will practice the procedures. Skills will include listening with a stethoscope to various internal sounds such as the heart, lungs, and rumen; how to "ping" for a displaced abomasum; and how to test for ketosis and mastitis.

Workshop participants will be equipped with durable learning materials they can use on their farms to teach coworkers some of the skills they learned.

Fees for the workshop to cover materials and lunch are $40/participant. Register in advance by calling the York County extension office at (717) 840-7408, fax your registration to (717) 755-9657, or get more information and a registration form online at the capitol region Website, http://Capitaldairy.cas.psu.edu/. For more information, contact Tim Beck, regional dairy program coordinator, at the York office, or call your local county extension office.

Wayne County 4-H Members Supported At Junior Livestock Sale

HONESDALE (Wayne Co.) — Wayne County 4-H members were strongly supported by area businesses, parents, and friends who purchased 343 animals at the Wayne County Junior Livestock Sale. The event conducted on Saturday, Aug. 11, at 11 a.m. at the Wayne County Fairgrounds gathered $172,728 worth of market hogs, steers, and lambs.

The sale began with a plaque dedicated to the memory of Louis and Betty Mang being presented to their son, Les. The Mangs dedicated over 70 years of combined effort as 4-H leaders in the county, and their contributions of energy and expertise to youth was sincerely appreciated.

Following this tribute, six Wayne County Junior Livestock Sale Scholarships were awarded to outstanding participants of the 4-H livestock program who will all enter college in the fall. Recipients of scholarships include Joseph Rybak, Katie O'Neill, Nicolas Brown, Gwen Courtright, Erin Munger, and Nick Lopatofsky.

Also receiving an award was Heather Yedinak who was recognized as a statewide Outstanding 4-H Member. This was the first time this honor was given in Pennsylvania. Heather received her plaque from Joyce Malicky, Wayne County 4-H coordinator.

The Wayne County Junior Livestock Sale was opened by National Country Music Hall of Famer, Leroy VanDyke, who sold Katie O'Neill's 258-pound Yorkshire Crossbred grand champion market hog to Dirlam Brothers Lumber Co. for $11 per pound.

The 256-pound reserve grand champion market hog was raised by Darryl Marshall. Cavage's Farm Market purchased this champion for $6.75 per pound.

Michael Sheruda sold his 105-pound grand champion Hampshire-Cross market lamb to the Wayne Bank for $10.30 per pound.

The 118-pound reserve grand champion market lamb was raised by Jessica Sheruda. Marshall Machinery successfully bid this champion to $6.20 per pound.

Emily Lantzsch's 1,220-pound grand champion Angus market steer was bought by Kohr's Excavating for $2.50 per pound. Emily also received a plaque presented by Bob Suhosky from the Pennsylvania Beef Council.

The 1,175-pound reserve grand champion Angus market steer was raised by Darryl Marshall. The successful bidder for this animal was Dr. Henry Nebzydoski who paid $2.25 per pound.

Scholarships and organizations benefiting from animals returned for resale included the Wayne County Junior Livestock Scholarship Fund, the Make-A-Wish Foundation, the Wayne County Agricultural Society, the Dave Olver Scholarship Fund, Honesdale Friends of Wrestling, Laurella 4-H Club, Pleasant Mount Go-Getters 4-H Club, and Tri-Gal 4-H Club.

Volunteer auctioneers for the day were Wayne Weaver, Dan Naylor, Tom Randt, John Regan, Mel Manasse, and Bob Earl.

Three Students Unveil Restored Tractor At Oley Fair

OLEY (Berks Co.) — For most students, the bell at 2:45 p.m. means the end of the day. For three Oley High students, the 2:45 p.m. bell means more work restoring a Farmall M series tractor.

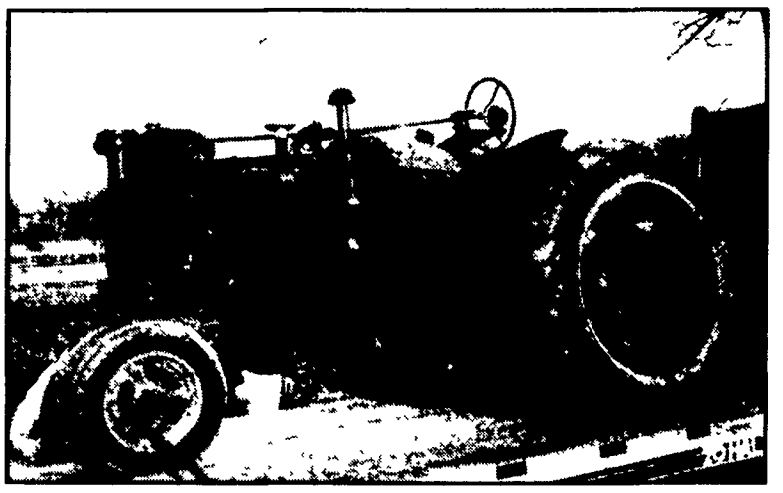
Jesse Bitler, Ben Mast, and Brian Peifer have invested 896 hours into restoring it. The students entered this tractor in a FFA national tractor restoration competition. All three students plan to continue in a tradition of agriculture.

The gas-powered 1949 Farmall M series tractor was acquired from a retired farmer. With 25 years of heavy usage followed by 25 years of idle storage, the tractor needed attention.

"The restoration effort was a long and tedious process," Bitler said. "Every bolt was removed — we rebuilt the engine, blasted, wire brushed, stripped, and painted the tractor. It took as much determination as skill."

The project received support from Hoober Inc. Hoober supplied free technical advice and parts support. "It's refreshing to see quality kids with this much determination, and we feel good knowing that agriculture has a place in their lives. We wanted to be a part of this in some small way," Gary Hauseman of Hoober Inc. said.

Bitler, Mast, and Peifer are restoring the Farmall as part of their affiliation with the FFA. Jeremy Dysher and James Howe advise the FFA chapter at Oley Valley School District. "By looking at the before and after pictures of the tractor, you can see how much work the students put into it," Dysher said.



Tractor before it was restored by Oley High School students.

The restored Farmall M series tractor was on display at the Oley Fair, Sept. 20-22. After the Oley Fair, the tractor is being offered to Hoober Inc. to be used in displays in their Intercourse showroom and at agricultural shows. The tractor also will be used for hayrides and appear in parades.

Beef Day At New York State Fair Educates Consumers

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Beef Day, August 28 at the New York State Fair, provided consumers with a chance to enjoy a sandwich-making contest, learn about nutrition, and sample the beef products.

The day's activities were designed to highlight the beef industry's initiative to promote nutrition and convenience.

Representatives of six radio and television stations made the second annual "Beef Up Your Hero" media sandwich-making contest another success.

Using convenient beef items the media personalities and their beef industry partners created sandwiches to please every taste-bud.

Judges for the event were State Fair Director Peter Cappuccilli Jr., Ag Radio Network president and chairman of the State Fair Board, Ed Slusarczyk, and Nathan Rudgers, commissioner of Agriculture and Markets.

BEEFMAN, the beef industry's nutrition mascot, made his debut on Beef Day. BEEFMAN teaches children about the nutritional aspects of beef and brings ZIP (Zinc, Iron, and Protein) into the lives of children. While posing for pictures and greeting children, BEEFMAN passed out activity books with lessons on nutrition.

At the "Meals in Minutes" display in the dairy products building, state fairgoers were invited to taste a variety of fully-cooked products. The P&C meatcase was a focal point of the display, allowing consumers to talk with beef industry representatives about the taste and convenience of heat and serve beef entrees.

Volunteers who handed out over 5,000 samples on Beef Day alone, were recruited through the New York Beef Industry Council (NYBIC); Veal Grower's Association, New York Cattle Women, American National Cattle Women, and the National Beef Ambassador Program. There were also a number of producers from various states across the country.

NYBIC office manager, Heather Drape, far right, gave fairgoers a chance to win a free Harris Ranch beef entree. Three of the women in this group were lucky winners.

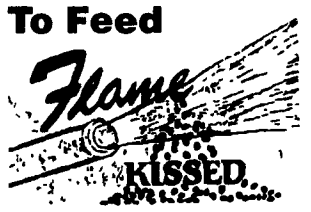
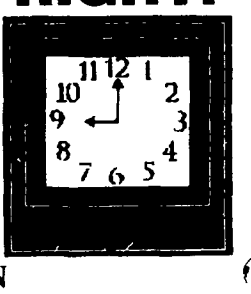
THE TIME IS RIGHT!

To Feed





ROASTED GRAIN

Its time to lower those feed prices.
With extremely low grain prices and the modest price for roasting, your grain can be turned into a valuable feed commodity.

Its time to trim away those extra cost factors.
Custom roasting on your farm.. gives you the ability to feed your own grain, not someone else's.. . eliminates trucking expenses . no mill charges, shrinkage, storage and handling.

Its time to value feeding grains that have been purged.
Only flame roasting can effectively remove molds and reduce toxins to tolerant levels. Better herd health will .. reduce veterinary and breeding bills.. enhance production of milk increase weight gains in beef and swine.

SILO FIRE ALERT
Glenn A. Shirk
Extension Dairy Agent
Lancaster

I have already received reports of several silo fires resulting from this year's corn silage harvest. This is not surprising in view of the extremely variable moisture conditions of corn within single fields and in fields from farm to farm within the region.

The risk of silo fires increases when ensiling materials that are too dry, generally less than 45-50 percent moisture, or when silages are too dry to pack well, and when air leakage occurs in the storage structure. When ensiling low-moisture materials, chop them finer, fill rapidly, distribute the material evenly in the silo to avoid particle separation, pack the material very well, and seal the structure well when finished. This will help prevent the build-up of dry leaves and cobs around the silo wall, and help drive off oxygen from the silage as quickly as possible, thereby reducing heat buildup. In spite of all these precautions, it is still possible for pockets of dry material and oxygen to exist and heat up in the silo to the point of combustion.

The question is often asked, "should I add water to dry silage at the time of harvest?" This has very little beneficial impact for a number of reasons. First of all it takes a lot of water to raise the moisture level of dry silage to a desirable level. For example, it will take more than 30 gallons of water to raise the moisture level of 1 ton of silage from 45 percent up to 55 percent, and that still isn't high enough for optimum fermentation. If you add this much water, it could create more problems than it solves. Why?, you may ask. Much of this water will not be absorbed and adhere to the silage particles. Instead, it will tend to drain away and create a soupy mess in the bottom of the silo, creating more seepage problems, further deteriorating the quality of the silage, and exerting more pressure on the bottom of the silo that what it was designed to support.

Most silo fires occur in the top 10 feet of a silo, but others can occur in the middle of the silo or at places where there are air leakages. Usually, the first sign of many silo fires is the charring or burning of silo doors. In some cases bits of charred silage may drop down the chute and ignite in the presence of air, and sometimes you will see smoke rising from the silo or from the silo chute.

Once you detect or suspect a silo fire, what should you do? First of all, don't panic. Silo fires generally progress slowly, which gives you time to address the situation in a thoughtful manner. The second rule would be, don't attempt to take care of the situation yourself because there are some potential dangers. Fires can produce some odorless gases that are deadly and/or explosive. And, adding water may not be the thing to do! In certain situations, this practice has caused explosions and deaths in oxygen-limiting structures.

I've suggested what not to do, so what should you do? Call in qualified experts and let them analyze the situation and take appropriate action. Meanwhile, seal off the bottom of the silo chute with an inflammable material to help prevent updrafts of air from fanning the fire. Remove flammable materials from the base of the silo, and if the barn is at risk, remove cattle and other valuable property.

"Extinguishing Fires In Silos and Hay Mows," NRAES-18, is available from NRAES, Cooperative Extension, 152 Riley-Robb Hall, Ithaca, NY 14853-5701, or ordered online from http://www.nraes.org/.

New Component And Type Champion Award Added To All-American

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Recognizing great cattle in the show ring is the goal of the All-American Dairy Show. Now in addition to evaluating conformation and appearance of the animal, the new component and type champion award will recognize the cow that has the highest single lactation record for 305 days or less based on twice-per-day milking, fat and protein pounds will be included in the total score.

This new award is sponsored by Flatness International, Inc. All first place milking animal winners in all breeds at the 2001 All-American Dairy Show will be eligible for consideration. Verification (standard DHIA or DHIR tests) of actual production must be presented at the time of check-in or before.

The winner will be awarded $500 by Flatness International, Inc. on Thursday, Sept. 27.

For more information on the contest, please contact the All-American Dairy Show Office or refer to the 2001 All-American Dairy Show Premium List, on page 16. Contact the All-American Office at (717) 787-2905.

The 2001 All-American Dairy Show opens on Sunday, Sept. 23, at the Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg.

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — In the words of a Penn State animal handling expert, European legislation mandates that, by 2003, animals at eight weeks of age must be turned into groups.

Though science has proven that animals such as veal thrive as long as they aren't exposed to the bacterial threat posed by groups, this legislation has been enacted "not by scientific evidence," said Dr. Lowell Wilson, professor emeritus of animal science at Penn State, "but by what people without animal training thought — all with no familiarity with animals."

As a result of the Green Movement, environmentalists and their beliefs, despite contradictory scientific evidence, are influencing legislators in Europe.

Wilson spoke with several other animal welfare advocates last week at a meeting of the Agricultural Issues Forum at Kreider's Restaurant in Manheim.

About three dozen agri-industry representatives attended the meeting, which focused on developments in animal welfare issues.

Wilson, executive director of the Pennsylvanians for the Responsible Use of Animals (PRUA), emphasized the importance not only of making sure the public understands what groups such as PRUA are doing, but that society can benefit from studies and observations in the field.

"Ag is part of that society," he said. And animal welfare programs, taught in a wide scale at Penn State and other ag universities, "enhance animal well-being, public opinion, and safety of the product," he said.

Wilson pointed out that "food is not sterile," he said. "But the product is a lot cleaner when it leaves the processing plant than when it gets to the consumer's table."

Federal agencies such as the Food Safety and Inspection Service (FSIS) do their best to provide stringent rules in food processing. But the food handling issues, especially at the consumer level, need to be enforced to protect public safety.

Antibiotic residue levels were one such issue. In the late 1980s, in randomly sampled veal carcasses, 4.5 percent of carcasses showed "violative residues.," said Wilson. The industry has changed — now those same samplings come up with .12 percent violative residues. "That's 12 out of 1,000," he said. There will always be some producers "who don't do things right," Wilson said.

For animal welfare and handling issues, legislation must be based on "scientific information and evidence, rather than emotionalism," Wilson said.

At the forum, Dr. Patricia Thomson, veterinarian, noted key words contained in the veterinary oath: how the "benefit of society" must be maintained first and foremost, and how vets must provide "protection for animal health and relief of suffering" in the framework of society.

Vets have always been considered "animal welfare people," Thomson said, who consider public views about safety of animals. She said, "I don't think the producer's point of view is any different from that."

Key is maintaining the critical "vet/client/patient" relationship, the foundation of good animal care.

Connie Kondravy, founding director and treasurer of the Organization for the Responsible Care of Animals (ORCA), professor of English at the Lancaster branch of Harrisburg Community College, also spoke at the forum.

Kondravy, who says she is a "vegen," or someone who does not use animal products, spoke about animal care. Kondravy said she "wears wool," but wears or carries no leather product, noted her life is involved in animal stewardship, "serving the animals."

She eats only organic vegetables, but recognizes animal products "in the car, in my driveway," she said. "No one can be a perfect Democrat, Catholic, or farmer."

Kondravy said she is not an animal rights activist and ORCA is not a political group. It is made up of 170 volunteers who help "rescue" animals and some wildlife, she said.

Kondravy described her work as "spiritual." She believes, like many animal welfare people, that it is important to realize that "suffering is suffering" and producers should be good animal stewards.

Pennsylvania All-American Champion Sponsors Announced

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Pennsylvania Agriculture Secretary Sam Hayes recently announced the champion class sponsors for the 2001 All-American Dairy Show. The All-American will be conducted in Harrisburg, Sept. 22-27 at the Pennsylvania Farm Show Complex.

"This year marks another record breaking year at the All-American with premium increased in several classes such as the reserve grand champion, intermediate champion, and junior champion for each breed; premier breeder award; exhibitor herd; and the junior and senior best bred-and-owned. The All-American is a world-class dairy show and offers some of the highest premiums in the nation. Many dairy farms, businesses, and organizations have committed to support the All-American through class sponsorship," said Secretary Hayes.

To recognize the superior cattle that will be paraded in the large arena of the Farm Show Complex, seven dairy business and organizations have sponsored the 2001 All-American Champions.

The 2001 sponsors are: Ayrshire grand champion: Telmark, LLC; Brown Swiss grand champion: DeLaval; Guernsey: Bou Matic; Holstein: Select Sire Power; Jersey: Westfalia-Surge, Inc.; and Milking Shorthorn, Farmshine Newspaper. The supreme champion sponsor for the 2001 All-American is Agway Feed and Nutrition.

The grand champion winner in each breed will receive a $1,000 cash premium. The All-American will culminate on Thursday, Sept. 27 with the Supreme Champion Pageant, where six breed champions will compete for the supreme champion blanket and $3,000.

Through the assistance of the Department of Agriculture, the All-American Dairy Show hosts high quality dairy cattle from across the nation. The year 2000 marked the start of an innovative program to increase premiums at the All-American. In 2001, it has continued with several additional premium increases.

The All-American Dairy Show will again be offering record-breaking premiums. Each entry will receive a cash award. Cash premium increases include $200 going to the reserve grand champion, junior champion, and intermediate champion of each breed. Exhibitor herd class winners will receive $500.

To recognize good breeding in dairy herds, premium increases will be given to the premier breeder and the junior and senior best bred-and-owned in each breed. The premier breeder award winner will get a cash prize of $200. The junior best bred-and-owned and senior best bred-and-owned for each breed will be awarded $200.

For more information or to receive a premium list on the 2001 All-American Dairy Show, please contact the Farm Show Complex at (717) 787-2905 or visit the All-American Website at www.pda.state.pa.us.

Corn Silage Whole-Plant Dry Down Rates[a]

Paul Craig, Extension Agent, Dauphin County

This week's results reflect only the later planted corn since the early planted plots have fully dried down.

Even the later planted corn is drying down rapidly due to low soil moisture conditions. Firing of the leaves is about ¼ of the way up the plant. Good grain set and fill are evident on these plants. Moisture is past optimum for both tower and bunker silos.

Southern Wayne Livestock Sale At GDS Supports Youth

NEWFOUNDLAND (Wayne Co.) — On Saturday, Sept. 1, at the Greene-Dreher-Sterling Fair in Newfoundland, market hogs, lambs, and steers were offered for sale following the week's showing of youth livestock projects.

Area businesses, friends, and family supported kids at the Southern Wayne Junior Livestock Sale where auctioneer Tom Randt volunteered his services to benefit youth.

This year's 265-pound Hampshire crossbred grand champion was raised by Jeremy O'Neill of the Pleasant Mount Go-Getters 4-H Club. This gilt was purchased by Waymart Milling Company for $5 per pound.

The 251-pound reserve grand champion market hog was bred and raised by Andrew Nebzydoski, also of the Pleasant Mount Go-Getters. Marshall Machinery of Honesdale was the successful buyer of this Hampshire crossbred for $2.30 per pound. Both the champion and reserve were bred by Nebzydoski and sired by Get Real, from different litters.

Shepard Wood sold his 122-pound grand champion market lamb to Narrowsburg Feed and Grain, Narrowsburg, N.Y., for $3.55 per pound. The 120-pound reserve grand champion market lamb was raised by Nathan Wood, and was successfully bid to $3 per pound by Dr. Henry Nebzydoski. Both boys hail from Circle W Farm, Newfoundland, where both lambs were bred.

Matthew Hauenstein, Creamton 4-H, exhibited the grand champion market steer. This 1,260-pound steer was sold to Waymart Milling Company for $1.50 per pound.

Leonard Hauenstein Construction purchased Ryan Keyes' reserve grand champion market steer for $.75 per pound. Keyes is a member of the Pleasant Mount Go-Getters 4-H Club.

Ten animals were donated for resale to benefit the GDS Barn Building Fund following a fire which destroyed the livestock barns last spring. Donors included Marshall Machinery, John and Sue Keyes, Rusty Palmer, Honesdale National Bank, Dirlam Lumber Company, Dr. Henry Nebzydoski, and Jim Keating Excavating.

As in previous years, Waymart Milling Company of Waymart, was volume buyer in both dollars spent and animals purchased. Waymart Milling's bidding was followed by Marshall Machinery's of Beach Lake. A barbecue for buyers and youth was served during the sale by parents and friends of livestock project members.

Livestock Trailer To Be Raffled At All-American

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — An unprecedented feature of the 2001 All-American Dairy Show Sept. 22-27 will be a drawing for a prize livestock trailer Wednesday, Sept. 26 at the All-American Buffet.

One lucky exhibitor will leave the show with a new Moritz Trailer. An exhibitor is defined as an individual, partnership, syndicate, firm, farm, or family who has been assigned an exhibitor number at this year's show. All youth exhibitors entering the All-American from the Pennsylvania Junior Dairy Show will be eligible to win. Exhibitors must show at least one animal in the open classes to quality. A Jersey or Holstein exhibitor drawn as the winning number must compete in the class on Thursday, before the prize will be awarded.

The winner need not be present at the buffet to win, but is responsible for any out-of-state taxes and/or fees.

The 2002 Moritz Livestock Trailer is six feet wide and has a maximum height of 6½ feet. This bumper hitch trailer comes with a complimentary spare wheel and divider gate. The All-American Dairy Show wishes to thank Fisher Trailer Sales of McVeytown, for supplying the prize trailer.

Please visit their trailer display located in the parking lot just outside the North Entrance of the Farm Show Complex. Don't miss out on the extraordinary events of the All-American Week beginning Sept. 22 in Harrisburg. For more information, contact the All-American Dairy Show Office at (717) 787-2905.

Winners Selected In Sheep, Swine, Beef Shows At Blue Valley Farm Show

DEANNA CUNFER
Carbon Co. Correspondent

PALMERTON (Carbon Co.) — Judge Annette Lovell, Dorset flock shepherd for Hollystone Farm, Paoli, reviewed the entries of the sheep show at the Blue Valley Farm Show recently. There were 17 exhibitors with 35 market lambs entered in the competition.

Lovell selected senior fitter Ashley Barry, 15, of Lehighton, as her champion fitter with Amber Buttner, Bath, as the reserve fitter. Senior showman Sarah Blackadar, Riegelsville, was then chosen as Lovell's champion showman with James Ford taking the reserve showman title.

In the market lamb contest Barry's 103-pound winner of the medium weight class was selected as the grand champion with the 150-pound heavyweight entry of Kristine Henn taking the reserve champion title. Barry took possession of the market lamb trophy sponsored by the Eastern Pa. 4-H Livestock Show and Sale Committee.

Auctioneers Ralph Zettlemoyer and Peter Krall provided their services at the livestock sale later that week. Barry's champion market lamb was purchased by Daniel Paul of Main Street Market, Bangor, for $250. Main Street Market also purchased the reserve champion lamb of Henn for the final bid of $400.

The pair of market lamb trophy sponsored by John and Jacquie Miller of Wulakamike Farms, Bethlehem, went to Kristine Henn. Reserve pair honors went to James Ford.

The champion and reserve bred and owned titles went to Luke and Christiana Graver, respectively, from Lehighton.

In the market swine show judge Daryl Grumbine, a Kutztown University graduate and current general manager of Evergreen Tractor, reviewed the entries and selected Christiana Graver, 11, from the intermediate class as his champion fitter.

Graver is a sixth grade student at Lehighton middle school and also exhibits at the Carbon County Fair and Pennsylvania Farm Show.

As his reserve fitter, Grumbine went with the junior class winner, first year member Diane Petraitis. Petraitis, 17, of Bath, is a recent graduate of Northampton school district and has started her freshman year at Delaware Valley College studying large animal science.

Champion showman was Joel Geiger with his sister, Sarah, following in the reserve showman spot. The Geigers are from Danielsville. This being Sarah's last year in 4-H, she has started her sophomore year at Penn State University Park majoring in the large animal science program.

Grumbine reviewed the 28 entries and selected the 240-pound Duroc named Clyde of Petraitis as his grand champion market hog of the show. Grumbine described the grand champion as the longest and leanest hog of the competition. Daniel Paul of Main Street Market was the high bidder at $525 for the champion market hog of Petraitis.

Luke Graver, 9, then saw Billie, his 258-pound winner of the heavyweight class, tapped as the reserve champion. Grumbine said you had to appreciate the length and muscle of his choice as reserve champion. Graver's reserve champion was purchased by Hatfield Quality Meats for $500.

The champion market hog was part of the champion pair of hogs owned by Petraitis with Graver's pair taking the reserve pair of market hogs title.

Later that evening, Lori Voight, Lebanon, who previously worked with the beef and 4-H livestock club, reviewed the entries of the 4-H and open beef show.

In the 4-H fitting and showmanship competition Voight selected senior Justin Cunfer, 17, of Lehighton, as her champion fitter and champion showman. Reserve fitter honors went to Elena Poliskiewicz with the reserve showman title going to her brother, Jesse Poliskiewicz.

In the open fitting and showmanship classes Jamie Hower, Bethlehem, was named the champion fitter and champion showman. The reserve open fitter title went to Paul Wagner with reserve showman honors going to Gwen Wagner, Danielsville.

Jennifer Hower's 1,340-pound Angus steer, Shiloh, was Voight's pick at the champion 4-H market steer with Cunfer's 1,222-pound Angus cross, Casper, moving into the reserve champion 4-H steer spot. Both the champion and reserve steers were also bred-and-owned by the exhibitors.

At the livestock sale, Main Street Market paid $2,000 as the high bidder for the champion 4-H market steer of Hower. Paul of Main Street Market, a generous supporter of the 4-H program, ended up being the high bidder purchasing each of the champions at the sale.

The reserve champion steer of Cunfer was purchased by Ned Hower of Just Enuff Angus, Bethlehem, at a find bid of $1,250.

Voight said her choice as the champion open market steer's total muscle volume put him on top of the class as she selected Paul Wagner's 1,350-pound Angus entry from the heavyweight class.

Hower's champion 4-H market steer, Shiloh, was then selected as the reserve champion open market steer of the evening.

Moving into the 4-H and open bull show, Cunfer's Angus entry, the Nov. 2000 son of Keifer's Fullback, NDF Prince Fullback, was named the champion 4-H and open bull of the show.

In the heifer competition, Cunfer's Weaverland Scaara Chafie, a Jan. 2000 daughter of OCC Anchor 771A, was selected as the champion 4-H Angus heifer with his junior heifer calf, NDF Blackbird Bridget 101, daughter of GAR Commitment, being moved to the reserve champion 4-H Angus heifer spot.

Jamie Hower's Weaverland Priscilla Morgan, the Feb. 2000 daughter of Leachman Explorer, was selected as the champion open Angus heifer with Cunfer's Weaverland Scaara Chafie following for the reserve open Angus heifer title.

Jennifer Hower's entry in the Angus cow/calf class was named the champion Angus cow/calf of the show.

In the 4-H and open Simmental division, the junior yearling heifer of Jesse Poliskiewicz, SSF Satin 357K, the Jan. 2000 daughter of Buras Bull C339U, was named the champion heifer by Voight.

Poliskiewicz then captured the 4-H and open crossbred heifer title with his senior heifer calf as

Ayrshires Shine At Solanco Fair

DAVE LEFEVER
Lancaster Farming Staff

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — Twenty-three Ayrshires turned out at the Solanco Fair here Wednesday, the largest number of any colored breed represented at the dairy show.

James Findley's 4-year-old, Lace Acres Icy Jasmine, was named grand champion for the breed.

Findley manages an 80-cow milking herd of mostly Ayrshires with his father Ken near Lititz.

He said he likes Ayrshires because they tend to be good foragers and because increasing numbers are entering the show ring, making for good competition.

Findley also exhibited the grand champion Milking Shorthorn.

Youth showing grand champions included Jersey exhibitor Nicole Welk of Kids & Kows and Becky Baily of Chester Valley 4-H Club.

Baily's grand champion Lineback cow, Olivia, was also named top in the breed at the Goshen Fair earlier this summer.

Dairy Knowledge Valued In All-American Youth Contest

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Junior Dairy Management Contest at the All-American Dairy Show is the best run and most comprehensive contest open to youth," said 4-H leader and coach Donna Wilson. Wilson is from Cattaraugus, N.Y., and has a winning tradition at this elite contest. Three of her 4-H members have won the contest and been recipients of the $1,000 scholarship.

The contest will be conducted Tuesday, Sept. 25 and is open to all bona fide 4-H club and FFA members sponsored by the Pennsylvania Dairyman's Association. The contest is part of the 38th All-American Dairy Show, being conducted Sept. 22-27 at the Farm Show Complex, Harrisburg.

"This is top notch contest that really tests the skills and knowledge which dairy farmers need to demonstrate," Wilson said.

Other sponsors for the contest include: Church and Dwight, Milk Specialties Co., Pennsylvania Farm Bureau, Pharmcia Animal Health, Prince Agri-Products, and Chr Hansen Bio Systems. Additional support is provided by Land O'Lakes Milk Co-op. Contributions from these companies allow for cash prizes for the top 10 individuals overall and for all the teams in the 4-H and FFA divisions, along with the plaques, ribbons, and trophies.

The Junior Dairy Management Contest has seven classes each year. Participants will be tested on the following topics: dairy cattle selection, linear trait analysis, meats identification and quality assurance of dairy beef, feed management and nutrition, dairy farm business management, foot and leg health in dairy cattle, and dairy product identification and quality.

The top five finalists will be interviewed by a panel of three dairy industry personnel. These young people will be asked about their understanding of current issues within the dairy industry. The winner with the highest cumulative score will win the $1,000 scholarship.

All-American Dairy Show Judges Announced

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The 38th All-American Dairy Show opens on Sunday, Sept. 23, at the Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg. This great dairy show boasts six breed shows with entries exceeding 2,000 annually. The judges for the six breeds are as follows:

Michael Heath, a lifelong resident of Westminster, Md., will officiate the All-American Ayrshire Show on Tuesday, Sept. 25. He has shown at the All-American as a youth and continues to actively show cattle in association with Spring Valley Farm of Westminster, Md. He has shown and owned the junior champion and grand champion Jersey at the National Jersey Show and judged numerous shows in the U.S. and Canada. He is an active cattle broker and sells cattle through out the U.S. and Canada as well.

Brown Swiss will be judged by Bobby Griggs of Seminole, Okla. The Eastern National Brown Swiss Show starts at 9 a.m. in the Large Arena on Wednesday, Sept. 26. Griggs once owned and operated Golden Dew Guernsey Farm and Holstein Farm. He was premier exhibitor at the National Guernsey show 10 times. Over the years he has bred and developed many All-American winners. This will be Griggs third time returning to Harrisburg to officiate. He has judged all six breeds at national level shows. He has judged in 33 states, Canada, and Mexico. Griggs is employed by Coba/Select Sires as a dairy evaluator.

Guernsey Judge Steve Mills is a lifelong resident of Salunda, S.C., where his family has owned and operated Marfred Guernsey Farm since 1954. Mills farms with his wife, Johanna, and his parents, Fred and Marjorie Mills. The farm consists of 350 acres and 150 Guernseys, with 80 head milking. Marfred Farms has been the Premier Breeder six times at the North American in Louisville, Ky. They have also bred and owned the Guernsey Gold Futurity winner at the National Guernsey Show three times. Mills has been an active judge for the past 10 years. He has judged over a dozen state fairs and numerous county and district show competitions.

Making a return to the All-American in 2001 is Hank Van Exel of Lodi, Calif. This Jersey breeder and farmer will be officiating the Eastern National Holstein Show on Thursday, Sept. 27. Van Exel owns and operates Exel Dairy. This 2,000 acre operation is divided into two farms. The first farm houses 1,200 milking Holsteins, with a RHA of 27,600 pounds of milk, 1,072 of fat, and 900 of protein. The second farm houses the Jersey herd, anticipated to expand to more than 500 in 2001. Van Exel has bred two reserve All-Americans and enjoys showing as much as judging dairy cattle. He has officiated at the Md., Utah, Ore., and Idaho State Fairs.

Alta Mae Core of Salvisa, Ky. will be officiating at the Mid-Atlantic Regional Jersey Show on Thursday, Sept. 27. An active dairy farmer, she and her husband own and operate a 250-acre dairy, Keightley and Core Jerseys. They milk 60 Jerseys and 10 Holsteins. They have been premier breeder at both the World Dairy Expo and the All-American Jersey Show. Core has the distinct honor of being the first female recipient of the Klusendorf Award, a showmanship honor presented at the World Dairy Expo. She has traveled abroad to judge national shows in Argentina, Brazil, Ireland, and Scotland. She has judged countless state fairs and other shows in the U.S., including the World Dairy Expo in 1999.

Tuesday, Sept. 25, Dale Schilling will officiate at the All-American Milking Shorthorn Show. Schilling and his son, Brian, farm together on their Cedarvale Ayrshire Farm near Boggstown, Indiana. They raise more than 200 acres of hay, corn, and soybeans to feed the mostly registered herd of 65 Ayrshires and Holsteins. He is the breeder and owner of four All-Americans. Schilling has served as a director of the National Ayrshire Breeders Association. A dairy cattle judging team coach for eight years, his team went on to compete at the All-American Dairy Show as the Indiana State 4-H team. Schilling has judged the Southern National Junior Show and numerous fairs and local shows.

Woolies 4-H'er Shows Top Two Lambs

DAVE LEFEVER
Lancaster Farming Staff

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — Two market lambs exhibited by Tiffany Dean won grand champion and reserve champion honors at the Solanco Fair here Wednesday.

Judge Robert Dinsmore picked the 136-pound grand champion Suffolk crossbred and the 131-pound reserve champion Hampshire crossbred out of a total showing of about 60 market lambs in the lightweight through heavyweight classes.

Dean, 15, said she enjoys "working around animals."

A member of the Woolies 4-H Club, she has been showing animals for a total of 11 years.

All-American Dairy Image Award Winner Named

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The All-American Show Image Award winner for 2001 is Mrs. Rita Kennedy. Rita, along with her husband, Jim, own and operate the Four Seasons Farm located in Butler. A lifetime dairy farmer, she and Jim were married in 1962. In 1968, they began their farm with 75 acres, 28 registered Brown Swiss cows, and a small line of machinery all purchased from Jim's parents.

Many members of the family work on the 650-acre farm, making it a four-generation operation. The Kennedy family has been awarded Outstanding Farm Family in Butler County, in 1975, and again in 1981.

While finding the time to still milk the 90-cow herd every morning, Rita serves the agriculture community through many associations, board of directors, and memberships. She has been involved in 4-H and other youth organizations and has served as leader for several years. She served as the first woman president of the Butler County Extension in its 68-year history. Rita has served as secretary and treasurer on the Farmers Cooperative Market of East Liberty. She continues to be a member of the National Brown Swiss Association, serving on the board of directors and is a member of the Grange Association of Pennsylvania, serving on state, county, and local levels.

The Pennsylvania Farm Bureau, National Dairy Shrine, Grove City White Shrine, and the Lions International Club, also seem to find time in her busy schedule. Rita was appointed to the National Dairy Board in 1999 and asked to serve on the Scholarship and Diversity Committees.

She is vice chairman for ADADC MidEast, vice president of the Pennsylvania Dairy Industry & Allied Association, and director for Brown Swiss Enterprises, Inc. She served 27 years as director/coordinator of the Pennsylvania Dairy Princess & Promotion Services, and with the Pennsylvania Dairyman's Association for six years, including two as vice chairman.

Rita serves as vice president of the All-American Dairy Show.

Rita and Jim have five children. Three are dairy farmers: Jeffrey, Janelle, and Jason. Their son John owns and operates a game bird farm with hatchery for pheasants, while their daughter Jill is a school accountant. Along with farming, Jason is a dairy cow hoof trimmer. Among the awards bestowed on these children are three Keystone FFA Degrees and two American Farmer Awards. Seven claim Rita as "Grandmother," and with her encouragement, are continuing the family traditions on the Four Seasons Farm.

Rita will be presented with the 2001 All-American Dairy Show Image Award on Wednesday, Sept. 26, at the All-American Buffet. Show week begins Sat., Sept. 22, and runs through Thursday, Sept. 27. All events will be conducted in the Farm Show Complex, Harrisburg.

Certified Hereford Beef Shows Summer Increase

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — While the summer grilling season may be winding down, Certified Hereford Beef (CHB) program demand is on the rise.

Since May 1, the number of Hereford-influenced cattle harvested for the program is up 45 percent over the previous year. The increase is the result of program expansion in the Midwest and Pacific Northwest. Over the summer months, the average number of cattle harvested per week was 2,004 head.

June held the greatest improvement with a record setting increase of 74 percent. Because of the growing popularity of CHB, the demand for yearling and feeder calves is expected to climb through the fall as Certified Hereford Beef packer Greater Omaha recruits more cattle feeders for the program.

Rob Ames, Certified Hereford Beef director of product marketing, said, "The feeder calf and yearling marketing channel has to adjust to meet the increasing demand for Hereford and baldy calves."

With the surge of demand shifting into the fall season, Ames predicts the total number of Hereford cattle harvested this year will reach 90,000 head.

Junior Shepherds Win York Fair Honors

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

YORK (York Co.) — A homebred Suffolk yearling took supreme ewe honors at the York Fair's junior sheep breeding show for veteran 4-H exhibitor Travis Flory, Red Lion. Flory, 16, dominated the junior division's Suffolk competition, taking all the top breed honors.

The Bankert family of Red Lion likewise staged a shutout in the Southdown junior breed competition, with sisters Brandy and Kelly Jo claiming all the honors. Brandy's ram lamb was selected the supreme ram of the junior show as well.

In other breed division, Tony Haugh, Red Lion, took all Cheviot and Montadale awards while Hampshire wins all went to Megan Heath, Fawn Grove. Dorset awards were shared by brothers Matt and Andrew Bankert, Hanover, with Matt winning champion ram and reserve ewe, and Andrew exhibiting the champion ram. Reserve champion Dorset ram title went to Julia Vadas, Stewartstown.

"Smarty," Matt Bankert's light heavyweight market lamb, took champion honors in the popular junior market lamb competition. The Suffolk wethersire is a homebred and earned his name from 11-year-old Matt because the lamb quickly learned proper walking and showring techniques.

A homebred ewe bred-and-owned by Cody Ault, Hanover, was the reserve champion junior market lamb. It was the first runner-up champion win for the 16-year-old exhibitor, who shows with his sister, Molly, as a team which jointly raised five head for this year's showring competition.

In the pair competition, Lindsay Jones took grand champion honors with her two medium weights. Susan Richardson's set of light medium weights were selected the reserve champion pair.

Lancaster Farming's Family Farm Survival Seminar Nov. 13

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Lancaster Farming has scheduled an event for the entire family.

On Tuesday, Nov. 13, Lancaster Farming will host its first "Family Farm Survival Seminar" at the Farm and Home Center in Lancaster.

"More than ever, farmers must begin to more fully market their farm products to stay alive," said Andy Andrews, Lancaster Farming editor. "And more importantly, they must consider strategies to help turn the operations and ownership of the farm over to their children."

For this reason, according to Andrews, it is imperative to "educate the older, transitioning farmer, as well as the young farmer to some of the benefits of estate planning. Along with this, farm operators must understand the marketplace and what the future of farming, and product marketing, will mean."

Dr. John Lord

Dr. Cindy Iannarelli

Scheduled speakers are Dr. John Lord, a respected and widely known product marketing expert from St. Joseph's University in Philadelphia. Lord spoke at the Pennsylvania Forage and Grassland's Conference at Grantville in March 2000 and again at a Berks County Ag Survival conference January this year. He's professor of food marketing at the university.

Another speaker who can provide methods to help transition the farm is Liz Brown, a farm accountant from Shippensburg, who spoke at several producer and industry banquets. She's an expert at practical family farm financial planning with a focus on small farms.

Scheduled is Brad Hilty, Penn State Dairy Alliance, with an expertise in dairy management and marketing. He will provide his views into the realities of dairy farming and product positioning in the New Economy.

Another speaker noted for her expertise on transitioning family businesses is Dr. Cindy Iannarelli, Bridgeville, who operates a consultant company, "Business Cents." "Dr. Cindy," as she is known, spoke at the Mid-Atlantic Fruit and Vegetable Convention at Hershey in February. Her presentation focused on steps families can take now to ensure smooth business transition.

Seating is limited to 400, and the seminar will be no cost to those who sign up. Use the enclosed sign-up form — no photocopies are accepted. Lunch will be provided at the seminar. For more information, contact Karen Hoffer at (717) 721-4416.

'Meet A Cow' Up Close And Personal

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The All-American Dairy Show will be offering an opportunity to "meet a cow" up close and personal as a part of this year's exciting events.

As a part of All-American Dairy Week 2001, the show will invite our city neighbors to spend the day at the show to meet and greet a "real live" cow and learn about her life and how she makes milk.

On Tuesday, Sept. 25 from 9 a.m.-3 p.m., children and adults will be invited to spend the day at the Farm Show Complex in the Maclay Street Lobby. Here, the members of the Pennsylvania State Dairy Science Club will be their tour guides and teachers. In addition to learning about the cow and her milk, information on dairy foods and their role in everyone's health will be highlighted.

This fun and educational opportunity will be offered as four stations. Station A will host the "Guests of Honor," the six breeds of dairy cows, and will be located in the main exhibition area. A calf and a feeding bottle will be on hand for visitors to see. Also there will be on display the amounts of feed and water that a cow would consume in one day.

Station B will be an exhibit on the dairy as an industry. This station will show the importance of the dairy industry in the commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Station C will be a display of dairy foods. This area will highlight nutritional education and the importance of dairy products as a part of a healthy diet.

Section D will highlight fun. Here everyone will be treated to a Pepsi float and other delicious dairy foods. Recipes and dairy souvenirs will be offered to all visitors.

Opportunities Await Youth At Showmanship Contest

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The fifth All-American Youth Showmanship Contest will be conducted Sunday, Sept. 23 in Harrisburg.

The "Granddaddy" of all national dairy shows will once again be hosting the youth showmanship contest in conjunction with the events of the 2001 All-American Dairy Show. All activities of this special week will be conducted in the Farm Show Complex, Harrisburg.

Youth showmanship is open to any youth meeting the following age requirements. Age of youth on show day will determine appropriate division. Three divisions will be offered. The junior and intermediate age groups will compete in showmanship ability only. The senior contest will be a combined contest of showmanship and fitting. Age divisions are junior: age 8-11, intermediate: age 12-15; and senior: age 16-21.

Previous senior division first-place winners are not eligible to compete.

The 2001 senior showmanship champion will be receiving a $500 savings bond, a jacket, and an embroidered director's chair. The intermediate champion will receive a blow dryer and a $100 savings bond. The junior champion will receive a $50 savings bond and a pair of topline clippers. Additional prizes and cash will be awarded to other contestants in the contest depending on their final placing. All youth participating in the showmanship contest will receive a free milkshake.

N.Y. Bill Transfers Land To Cornell For Ag/Tech Park

ALBANY, N.Y. — The Assembly has passed legislation sponsored by Assembly Agriculture Committee Chair Bill Magee (D-Nelson) that authorizes land transfers to Cornell University for the development of an agriculture and food technology business park at the Agricultural Experimental Station in Geneva.

"The development of this agriculture and food technology park is vital to further developing the agricultural business infrastructure for the farmers of New York State," Magee commented. "The more we do to encourage food processors and agricultural technology companies to locate in this state the better off our farmers and state will be."

As part of Cornell University's College of Agriculture and Life Sciences the New York Agricultural Experimental Station at Geneva supports more than 300 full-time employees including 56 faculty members and over 90 graduate and post doctoral students participating in more than 230 different research projects. A campus-wide master plan for the Experimental Station recommended the development of an agricultural technology park at the Geneva Station.

This bill, which has passed the Senate, is sponsored by Senator Michael Nozzolio (R-Seneca County).

Solanco Fair Hosts Holstein Show

MICHELLE KUNJAPPU
Lancaster Farming Staff

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — "There wasn't big numbers here today, but there was a lot of quality. It was a really good group of cattle," said Tom Boyer, judge of the Holstein Dairy Show at Solanco Fairgrounds Thursday.

"The milking-age animals were extremely high quality. They're cows that will make their owners some money."

Twenty-two exhibitors showed 32 animals in the show.

Mark and Kris Welk, Quarryville, exhibited the senior and grand champion cow, a 4-year-old animal. The Welks milk 57 cows and have 120 head total. They have been farming on their own for 13 years. Welk grew up on a dairy farm in the area and has been showing cattle since he was 8 years old.

The winning cow, "Amy," "is going to make more than 30,000 pounds of milk this year," he said. A homebred animal, this will be Amy's only show, said Welk. However his two children, Nicole, 11, and Joseph, 8, show cattle and are planning to exhibit animals at the upcoming All-American show in Harrisburg.

Five-year-old homebred cow "Laura" won reserve champion honors at the show. Stevie Greek, 10, showed her sister Stormi's cow. Laura also was shown at the 4-H Roundup and may possibly go to a show in Harrisburg this spring, according to Stevie, who has exhibited animals for six years.

The sisters are joined by brother Michael, who also exhibits cattle. They are the children of Leonard and Bonnie Greek, owners of Ridge Hill Farm in Delta, York County. The family milks 70 head with 120 total and farms 400 acres.

Tom Spring, 15, Quarryville, a junior football player at Solanco High School, and "Kitten" took home junior champion honors. His parents, Tom and Barb Spring, rent the 84 acres that make up Spring Time Farm. Tom has two calves, which he raises for show purposes, and has seven years of experience in 4-H and showing cattle. He exhibited "Kitten" at 4-H Roundup and will show her next year also.

Boyer, a Holstein dairy farmer from Thomasville, York County, began farming in 1975. He has had two dispersals and is now milking 13 head and beginning to fill the barn again.

He is a representative for American Breeders' Service and an evaluator for their mating program. Beginning with 4-H involvement and gaining experience on the collegiate judging team at Delaware Valley College, Boyer judges 4-5 shows per year, mostly in the Pennsylvania area.

"I enjoy coming over and doing the show," he said. "This is more of a local show, and there's a friendly atmosphere in the show ring."

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — "I think we need to keep the hogs lean to go to the rail and select for muscle and thickness," said Brian Kreider, Lebanon, judge of Solanco Fair's Market Swine Show Thursday.

Tiffany Dean took home champion placing with a 269-pound hog.

Tiffany, 15, is the daughter of Gary and Joan Dean, Strasburg. She is in the ninth grade in the Lampeter Strasburg School District.

Dean also competes in the sheep show ring in several fairs during the season.

Miriam Henry, 9, won reserve champion honors with 263-pound "Sausage." In fourth grade and her first year of 4-H, Miriam was excited and a bit surprised with the placing. She is the daughter of Tom and Marty Henry, Holtwood, and has two older sisters who show hogs, beef, and sheep.

Each of the girls had two hogs for Roundup and two for the fair. Next year, plans Miriam, she will bring not only hogs but also sheep to the fair for competition.

The family owns Henry's Farm and Greenhouse, Holtwood, and farms 90 tillable acres. On the farm's 180 acres the family has 25 Angus beef cows and a greenhouse business.

Quarryville-Area Beef Tops At Solanco Show

MICHELLE KUNJAPPU
Lancaster Farming Staff

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — Local cattle had their night in the spotlight during Thursday's beef show at Solanco Fair.

"Simba," owned by Katrina Frey, 11, Quarryville, took home grand champion honors. John Schmidt, Drumore, and "Junior" won reserve champion placing.

Frey's animal came from a Kirkwood producer and Schmidt's animal is homebred.

In Katrina Frey's barn Simba is joined by another show heifer and a steer which will go to the Farm Show for competition. She houses the animals at her grandparents' farm and takes them to competitions in Pennsylvania, Maryland, and Virginia. Additionally four other Angus cows stay at her grandparents' farm, located nearby to Katrina.

She showed Simba at five shows prior to Solanco Fair. Another newly-weaned calf will be readied for next year's fair. In addition to cattle, Katrina also shows Suffolk sheep.

She got Simba, an April calf, in October and halter-broke in preparation for show season. The 1,397-pound steer won the heavyweight division before Wright named it grand champion.

Katrina is the daughter of Fritz and Nancy Frey.

Although his steer, born last June, may have been one of the younger competitors, John Schmidt's 1,144-pound "Junior," a homebred Angus, garnered a first-place finish in the lightweight class before winning reserve champion placing.

Schmidt, 17, is a senior at Solanco High School. Junior, a calf from one of his sister's purebred Angus cows, is a product of "Susquehannock Farm," four acres that hosts three purebred Angus cows and a calf.

Junior has his own comeback story. The steer broke his leg at five days of age. After the leg was removed from the cast, it was three inches shorter than the other but quickly caught up, according to Schmidt's mother.

This is Schmidt's third year in the show ring.

Both steers, along with the other six animals exhibited at the fair, were sold at Friday evening's sale.

Judge of the show was Scott Wright, Woodside, Delaware. Wright judges 5-6 shows per year in the Pennsylvania, Maryland, and New Jersey.

genetics in the nation. Many of the animals entered in the competition have achieved national recognition for breeding, milk production, or type quality. Expositions such as the All-American provide an opportunity for breeders, dairy business representatives, and enthusiasts to exchange ideas and seek information to help advance the quality of our great dairy industry.

Some of the nation's top dairy cattle will travel to Harrisburg to compete in regional and national dairy breed shows throughout the week. The "All-American" will also host the Pennsylvania Holstein Fall Championship Show and the Eastern Elite Holstein Sale, providing opportunities for Holstein breeders to purchase some of Pennsylvania's best of the breed to take home to their herds. Selection of the supreme champion will be Sept. 27 following the Holstein and Jersey shows.

The Pennsylvania based All-American Dairy Show is a the five-day event that takes pride in achieving an exemplary standard of excellence on the national show circuit, with some of the highest premiums being paid in the nation.

To recognize the genetic quality of the dairy cattle to be paraded in the Large Arena of the Pennsylvania Farm Show Complex, the All-American Dairy Show will again be offering record-breaking premiums, with each entry receiving a cash award. Cash premium increases have been added, with $200 going to the reserve grand champion, junior champion, and intermediate champion of each breed.

First place exhibitor herd class winners will receive $500. To recognize good breeding in dairy herds, the junior best bred-and-owned and senior best bred-and-owned for each breed will be awarded $200. The premier breeder award winner will get a cash prize of $200. Premium lists are available through the Pennsylvania Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg.

Hayes noted that, besides the national and regional dairy shows to be conducted during the All-American, several other events will take place.

Festivities will begin Saturday evening, Sept. 22, with the Pennsylvania Dairy Princess Pageant. Young ladies from across the state will compete for the opportunity to represent Pennsylvania's number one industry — agriculture — with the dairy industry being a cornerstone of the ag economy and its dairy princess out front helping to lead the way.

Several exciting youth activities will be featured at the All-American. The youth showmanship contest will begin at 1 p.m. Sept. 23, and will close with the senior youth fitting contest. Sunday evening's activities will conclude with the Junior Dairy Show Olympics.

The youth will also have the opportunity to participate in numerous competitive events in the 2001 All-American. 4-H and FFA members from across the state will compete in the Pennsylvania Junior Dairy Show on Monday, Sept. 24.

The Invitational Youth Dairy Cattle Judging contest will host dairy judging teams from across North America competing in 4-H, FFA, and collegiate divisions. The contest will culminate with an awards banquet Monday evening.

Testing the dairy knowledge of youth from Pennsylvania and surrounding states, the Junior Dairy Management Contest will challenge participants on their understanding of dairy nutrition and facilities, animal health, industry issues, and general dairy information Sept. 25.

To take a look back at the "way things used to be," the All Dairy Antiques and Collectables Show will be conducted the duration of the All-American. Bringing the past alive, collectors from across Pennsylvania and surrounding states will display their collectables. This year, collectables from the Guernsey breed will be featured.

Secretary Hayes noted that, at the announcement of the grand champion Thursday afternoon, Sept. 27, at approximately 1 p.m., a groundbreaking ceremony for the new $76 million renovations and additions to the Farm Show Complex will be conducted.

For more information on the All-American Dairy Show, contact the Farm Show Complex at (717) 787-2905 or visit the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture's Webpage at www.pda.state.pa.us.

Veteran Exhibitor Shows Champion Lamb At Denver Fair

DAVE LEFEVER
Lancaster Farming Staff

DENVER (Lancaster Co.) — Sarah Boyd exhibited the grand champion market lamb here last Thursday.

Her 126 pound Suffolk crossbred topped a total group of 37 market lambs judge Robert Herr called "outstanding."

Boyd is a 1999 graduate of Ephrata Area Senior High School, where she was active in the FFA. She lives on the 50-acre farm of her parents, Kerry and Deb Boyd.

After 12 years of showing livestock, Boyd said she still enjoys the social benefits it offers.

"It's fun, and you meet a lot of people," she said.

As grand champion exhibitor for the fourth straight year, Boyd is also familiar with success in the ring.

Manheim Central senior Ryan Donough showed the reserve champion market lamb.

A member of the Lancaster County 4-H Club, Donough has been showing animals for about 10 years.

Nine breeds of breeding sheep were exhibited at the fair, in addition to the market lambs.

Animal Handling Expert

In the second session, Dr. Paula J. Fedorka-Cray presented "The A to Z of Animal Health-Related Issues in 2001." Fedorka-Cray is employed by the USDA Ag Research Services since 1991, specializing in the antimicrobial resistance research unit.

Antimicrobial resistance research grew out of a problem — not so much as resistance to a single antimicrobial, but as multiple resistance in TB and MRSA (staph aureaus). Now resistance to newer classes of drugs has also emerged.

According to Fedorka-Cray, animal production is very, very complex — it involves different species; husbandry and production practices vary; biosecurity practices vary; there are confounding circumstances such as wildlife, pets, and other vectors; and economics must be considered. Methods of transmission of microbials is bidirectional between animal and humans. Fedorka-Cray stressed that it is important to keep hazardanalysis critical control points (HACCP) practices in place.

Antimicrobial concerns are broken into three main areas — salmonella, campylobacter, and E. coli 0157:H7. Methods of administering treatment are to individuals through the feed and through the water source. In many ways through water to the entire herd or flock is the only way to treat an outbreak.

Via her Power Point slide presentation, Fedorka-Cray went into detail of her research done regarding the resistance of various microbials, stressing that serotype by species affects the results of any study.

The keynote session earlier this week, which featured speakers Dr. Temple Grandin and Dr. Paula J. Fedorka-Cray, was conducted via teleconference because neither speaker could reschedule their flights as a result of the recent national tragedies.

PennAg Industries Association President James L. Adams and Walt Peechatka, executive vice president, conducted both sessions via teleconference.

Prior to the keynote session, the audience was treated to a visit by Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture Samuel E. Hayes Jr. Hayes, on his way to a press conference promoting the Pennsylvania Egg Quality Assurance Program (PEQAP), congratulated PennAg and partners who have been on the forefront of food safety.

In comments regarding food safety, Hayes said, "We can't go through the 21st century doing it the same as we did it in the 19th century. We should be leaders in all commodities, not only the poultry and egg industry."

National Feeder Cattle Weekly Summary

St. Joseph, Mo.
Report Supplied By USDA

NATIONAL FEEDER CATTLE SUMMARY - Week ending Sept. 14, 2001. Receipts: this week 169,800; last week 160,200; year ago 139,000. Feeder steers and heifers sold mostly steady again this week, according to USDA Livestock and Grain Market News Service. A few more numbers sold on the plus side than lower as calf country of the Southeast was steady to 2.00 higher. Their marketings were sharply under a year ago as late summer rains put some life in the pastures in the Southeast and Southwest. However, some other places showing seasonally increased receipts even with the holiday this week. The slaughter market was a little weaker this week but still mostly 70.00 live and 111.00 in the beef. Box beef cutouts made a comeback and closed on top of 118.00. Definitely, best demand for Choice and this grade selling at an 8.50 premium to Select.

New Soybean Varieties Show Resistance To Root Rot

WOOSTER, Ohio - Ohio State University researchers have identified new soybean varieties that exhibit both partial and complete resistance to Phytophthora sojae, a pathogen responsible for severe production losses.

But farmers may have to wait several years for a commercial product if a resistant gene is found that could be introduced into Ohio varieties, said Anne Dorrance, a plant pathologist at the university's Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center.

"If we do find a novel resistant gene, we're going to be breaking open the champagne," she said. "This would be a major find."

Dorrance and OSU plant pathologist Fritz Schmitthenner evaluated 1,015 soybean plant introductions (varieties found in other countries) and found that 32 of them exhibited complete resistance to Phytophthora and 130 exhibited high levels of partial resistance. All of the varieties originated from South Korea and were obtained from the U.S. Department of Agriculture Soybean Germplasm Collection in Urbana, Ill.

Phytophthora sojae causes soybean root rot and is a major problem in Midwest states that have heavy clay soils, such as Ohio. Heavy rains saturate the soil producing areas with standing water, which provides an outlet for the pathogen to infect plant roots. The fungus grows in the roots and into the plant stem, eventually killing the plant. Dorrance said last year 20-40 percent of Ohio's soybean crop was lost to plant diseases, mainly caused by Phytophthora. The outlook on this year's crop is poor. Early heavy rains aided in root rot development and a recent lack of rain may put additional stresses on the soybean plants because of underdeveloped root systems.

"The timing right now is perfect to find a new gene and get it out in the market," said Dorrance, adding that Phytophthora is slowly adapting to current soybean resistant genes. "We are continuously putting pressure on those resistant genes. Eventually they will no longer hold up to the pathogen."

Dorrance said the next step in research is to identify the gene in the South Korean soybean varieties that are showing resistance to Phytophthora and introduce it into current commercial varieties in the hopes those varieties will carry the resistant gene. "If we do find the gene, it may be five or six years before we can get out a completely resistant variety, and four or five years before we could release a partial-resistant variety," she said. OSU horticulturists Steve St. Martin and Ron Fioritto are conducting the genetic work.

Though a completely resistant variety is ideal, Dorrance said varieties that show partial resistance are also exciting. "Partial resistance basically means that the pathogen has little effect on the plant once it has grown up and out of the ground," she said. "Partial resistance varieties can be very effective, sometimes having a 30-percent difference in yields compared to soybean plants that have no resistance to Phytophthora at all, depending on the disease pressure."

The genetic studies on the new soybean varieties are scheduled to be completed by this fall and next spring. Funding for the project is supported by the Ohio Soybean Council. Some of the results from the research conducted by Dorrance and Schmitthenner are available online at http://www.ars-grin.gov/npgs/. The report is also discussed in OARDC research bulletin 1193 available at the OARDC Department of Plant Pathology, 1680 Madison Ave., Wooster, OH 44691.

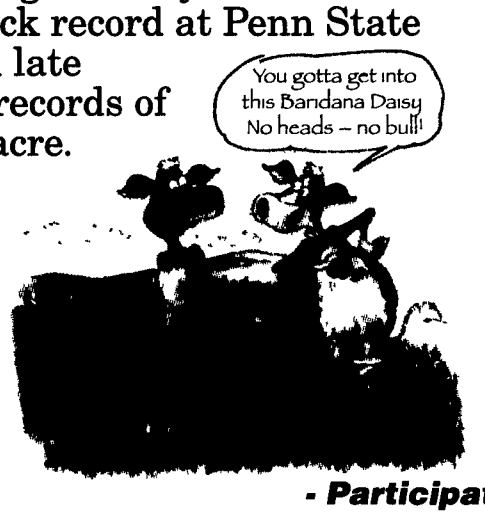
NEED DROUGHT TOLERANCE?

Plant Baridana Orchardgrass or our Highland Haygrazing Mix.

Late maturing, very productive with very good rust resistance. Baridana makes a nice dense sward without the typical orchardgrass clumps. We have had very good digestibility tests on Baridana and a good track record at Penn State for yield stand score and late maturity. Baridana has records of over 7 tons dry hay per acre.



Notice "Daisy" in the early-maturing stemmy pasture is skinny while the cow grazing Baridana is nice and fat.

BARENBRUG
Forages For Profit

Baraula Orchardgrass. The latest maturing Orchardgrass available. Fine soft leaves, not clumpy. Baraula is about 2 weeks later than some other so-called late orchardgrass and 6 days later than Baridana. Great to mix with alfalfa.

Sunday, Aug. 26:

I skipped the 7:30 a.m. breakfast to write articles for the paper. We are kept busy from early morning to late at night with not even five minutes of free time.

The hosts want to immerse us in as much culture as possible and have planned many different sites for us to visit.

Today we went to a honey festival, which is similar to a fair. We needed to walk about 1½ miles from where we parked as did all the hundreds of festival-goers.

Again, all the women wear heels and walked the same distance we did and over the grassy grounds of the festival with no signs that they have aching feet. We cannot figure out how they survive it. Almost all the women were dressed in their Sunday best from the looks of their outfits.

At the festival, vendors sold handcrafted items and honey products.

We sampled many varieties of honey and homebaked breads and saw many kinds we did not. Some had interesting names such as bald head bread, which does resemble the top of a bald head. If they didn't feed us so much we would have purchased some of it to sample.

Some Polish dancing and storytelling was re-enacted on the stage. We wished we could understand the story.

We walked back to the car and drove to a wooded area for a delightful picnic lunch that included some homemade drink that our hosts purchased at the fair. It reminded me of homemade root beer.

We toured a museum that seemed similar to Landis Valley Museum, Lancaster, only the Polish one had early century Polish homes. I will write more about this in another article.

Later we visited the ostrich farm, which I wrote about in another article.

We seem to mesh well as team members and I hope it continues. We were warned that living together in such close quarters could be emotionally straining.

Supper was a huge meal. Every meal I am determined not to eat much, but even if I sample a bit of everything, it turns out to be very filling.

Monday, Aug. 27:

I was up by 5 a.m. to pack, eat breakfast, and be ready to travel to a different part of Poland by 6:30 p.m.

I originally believed that on the four-hour trip to Modliszewice, I could do some writing for the newspaper. But we are packed into a van that bounces so badly that it is impossible to write with a pencil or laptop computer. The roads are much better than I expected, but it is not unusual for our driver to pass three to four abreast on a two-lane highway.

Sometimes people are riding bicycle or walking along the road, and I wonder if they realize the dangers of this practice.

The weather has been fantastic, in the 80s with low humidity.

We visited the sundial museum that had been established in 1897. A doctor who donated his collection started it. His home was also on display and was quite interesting.

The museum has 600 sundials and is considered to be the third largest museum of its kind in the world. I never knew there could be so many variations and styles of sundials.

After a lunch in a restaurant, we visited nursery and landscaping farms. One was absolutely fantastic, with 14,000 varieties of bushes and trees on about 20 acres.

The owners said it was started by the wife's parents about 20 years ago.

"People made fun of us when we started it. They said, 'why do you want to grow such things when you can go to the woods and cut down a tree or bush?'" the wife said.

The nursery incorporates computerized irrigation and computer records of each plant. Composting is used for landscaping. Grafting of many bushes and trees are also done for experimentation.

Although trees and bushes to be sold are potted, the display gardens are amazing. The wife certainly has an eye for design, because the landscaping is breathtaking.

Bushes of many varieties are planted next to each other so that visitors can tell how something will appear when mature.

For instance, many different hedge varieties are planted in curving design so that at a glance, a person could decide that it is or is not the look they want to achieve.

We were served a meal in the agricultural school where we were told to mingle with the political guests and school faculty.

It is very difficult to converse when we do not know each other's language. Although the younger generation studies English in school, those who graduated before 1991 were not allowed studying English under the Communist regime. We had been instructed to carry a photo album with pictures of our families, homes, co-workers, and things that pertain to our lives. This helps when you can't communicate. I had labeled the pictures with Polish words ahead of time.

Every Polish person who looks at the picture of my family gasps. My husband and I have four children, who with their spouses and a combination of seven grandchildren result in a sizable family. The average Polish family has less than one child. Last year they had negative population growth.

Lots of pointing, jabbering, and showing the pictures to others take place. Amazingly we are able with a lot of gesturing to interact. Lots of laughter filters in as we often realize how easy it is to portray a wrong message.

We are sleeping in the Modliszewice ag center's motel.

Tuesday, Aug. 28:

For the first time, we were able to sleep in until an 8 a.m. breakfast. What a refreshing night.

We met with ODRs from this area. They told us about their programs and two of our team members presented a 15-minute presentation.

We visited the ecological farm and the ceramic farm that I wrote about in a separate article.

A Polish supper and a traditional Polish supper were served to us — yes, you read it right — two very filling suppers, each following the other.

Everything was very good, except one mixture of meat and vegetables, the only food I have not liked so far. But the Polish were so proud of it and kept calling it a "delicacy."

The manager of the Puszcza-Jodlowa, where we ate, sat across from me and kept encouraging me to eat it by saying one of the few words he knew, "good, good." Out of obligation

The animal breeding advisor, right, consults with dairy farm couple who have a 20-cow herd. The average dairy farmer in Poland has only three cows.

At the canning factory, much of the work is manual.

Hans Herr House Holds Annual Apple Snitz Fest

WILLOW STREET (Lancaster Co.) — On Saturday, Oct. 6, the Hans Herr House will host its annual apple festival Snitz Fest. This event celebrates the history of the apple in Lancaster County, where dried apples, or "snitz" and apple cider were mainstays of the traditional German settler's diet.

Visitors to Snitz Fest will be able to take a wagon ride tour of the museum's orchard of heirloom apple varieties and see apple cider pressing and apple butter making. Apples from the orchards may be sampled at the apple tasting table. Thanks to a good crop, a number of varieties will be available to taste, including Winter Banana and Sheepnose.

Children's games and other harvest activities such as corn shelling and sorghum pressing are also part of the day's events. Enjoy traditional Pennsylvania German recipes cooked at the hearth and bake oven. Be sure to taste the sausages smoked over an applewood fire in the museum's 18th century smokehouse.

Snitz Fest hours are from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Admission is $5 for adults and $1 for children ages 7 to 12; children younger than 7 are free. The 1719 Hans Herr House and Museum is located at 1849 Hans Herr Drive, Willow Street, just five miles south of Lancaster between US 222/PA 741 and Penn Grant Road. On Being a Farm Wife

(and other hazards)

Joyce Bupp

Nothing has changed.

A steady hum plays to the dark sky outside the kitchen windows on this early morning, comforting noise that all is up and running at the dairy barn. Milkers move down the double row of our "girls," relieving the pressure of production in their udders, the pristine white fluid whooshing through the pipelines and immediately into the cooling refrigeration of the stainless-steel bulk tank in the milkhouse.

Tonight — and you can almost set the clock by it — Jim, our hauler who rarely ever takes a day off, will back his big tanker down the slope to the barn and pump out our daily production for delivery to a dairy processing plant somewhere around the region. Milk is a commodity which cannot be turned off and on.

Nothing has changed.

The forage harvester waits in the field, a few days worth of silage harvest to finish this mid-September before the deep bunk up on the hill beyond the house is packed with fermenting corn, winter feed for the cattle. While the summer's persistent drought has cut area corn yields, there have been worse years, and we are grateful for maybe a three-quarters crop. Hay, too, is short of production, but still better than some years.

Nothing has changed.

With the blessing of a brief, hour-long gentle shower, there was a fluffy of activity the end of last week to fill the grain drill and plug seed into the ground to grab the precious moisture for starting some fall grazing cover. Goal is to have all the ground covered with green before winter sets in, protecting the soils and available for organic soil enrichment by spring.

Nothing has changed.

The Farmer had to track down a heifer late one recent night, having given her ample time to go through the laboring process of birthing a calf we knew was on the way at dusk. Finding the calf still not having made much progress at appearing to the world, he set up gates in the barn to bring her in for some midwifery assistance. Before that could happen, the calf had decided to about halfway put in its appearance, he whipped off his belt, wrapped it around the calf's legs and just finished the delivery out in the meadow. A bull baby, safe on the ground.

Nothing has changed.

More than two dozen calves will simultaneously begin bawling the moment someone sets foot in the calf nursery area in a little while, impatient for the two-quart bottles of milk they gulp down morning and evening. Especially loud will be the pair just weaned from the bottle and soon to be moved from the nursery into what we always tell little visitors is our "kindergarten" area of calves. Like children, some calves wean more agreeably than others, and there always seems to be one chronic — and loud — complainer in the group.

Nothing has changed.

Today we will feed cows, clean up behind cows, move cows, administer to cows, bed cows and probably worry particularly over one or two for some ailment. We will move feed, work fields, fix something (or somethings!). We will cook, we will do laundry, we will pick the daily mess of daily living. We, hopefully, will hug the grandkids at some point during the day.

We will feed cats, take a quick walk with the dog, read the paper, frequently flip on the news channels on television, pick a few more tomatoes, perhaps mow the lawn and grab a handful of the few, but beautiful, zinnias thriving despite their thirst.

Nothing has changed.

And everything has changed.

Because we, like you, watched and listened and read and cried and prayed that all that has transpired in the last many days was a nasty nightmare. Sadly, we knew we were all wide awake, grasping with the evil reality of madmen unleashed. And, even after all these days, it remains palpably, heart-sickeningly real.

Nothing in our immediate physical world has changed. But in our hearts, we know everything about our world has changed and will never be completely the same again. With God's help and worldwide courage, we can turn this evil tragedy into something positive. No one pretends it will be easy or quick.

In times of such emotional turmoil, having cows to milk and fields to work is comforting indeed.

Free Compost Bins Available

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Penn State and DEP are working together to offer composting workshops and free backyard composting bins to Pennsylvanians. The statewide goal is to recycle 35 percent of all waste by 2003. Currently citizens recycle 32.6 percent.

Preregistration is required for attendance and a free composting bin will be provided to those attending (one per household), as long as supplies last. Preregistration is on a first come, first served basis only.

Food Safety Certification Training Set For Lancaster

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Each year in the U.S., an estimated 76 million cases of food borne illnesses result in an estimated 5,000 deaths. The mishandling of food causes about 95 percent of all food borne illnesses. These statistics justify the concern that has arisen throughout our society over safe food handling practices.

Penn State Cooperative Extension, in conjunction with the division of continuing education and office of statewide programs, is offering two sessions in food safety certification training in Lancaster at Penn State, The Lancaster Center at Greenfield. The course is designed to train food service managers, chefs, caterers, cooks, health officials and inspectors in the standards and regulations of food safety.

Session 1 meets Oct. 8, 15, 22, and 29 from 5:30-9:30 p.m. The exam is Nov. 5 from 5:30-7:30 p.m. Session 2 meets Nov. 19, 20, 26, and 27 from 1-5 p.m. The exam is Dec. 3 from 1-3 p.m.

The ServSafe food safety program was developed by the National Restaurant Association Education Foundation (NRAEF) and is accepted by more federal, state and local jurisdictions than any other food safety program. The course meets the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture certification requirements for food service, retail and bakery. Upon completion of the course and passing a food safety and sanitation exam, participants will receive certification from the National Restaurant Association.

The 16-hour course instructs participants on topics such as contamination and food borne illness through the Sanitation Challenge, storage, preparation, serving, and sanitation management of food safety regulations and standards. Participants will acquire the skills and knowledge needed to impose safety precautions and the sanitation of food handling through informative and dynamic lessons.

Course instructors are Penn State Cooperative Extension agents who are qualified by the National Restaurant Association and are ServSafe certified. The $150 fee per participant covers the cost of the course book, instructional materials and refreshment breaks.

For more information on these sessions, contact Helen Ebersole at (717) 299-7667. Register early to ensure your space in the class.

Consuming Thoughts

Penn State Extension Home Economist for Berks Co.

People often say that the reason rabbits see so well in the dark is that they eat so many carrots.

Although it is true-rabbits can see in the dark, humans don't eat enough carrots to have great night vision so they can see all the rabbits out at night.

Actually, carrots really do help you see in the dark. Carrots contain high levels of "carotene" which is converted by your body into vitamin A. One of the symptoms of vitamin A deficiency is night blindness.

In addition to being a good source of vitamin A, carrots are also delicious. Because they keep well, carrots are available in good supply year around at prices that stay relatively stable even during the "off" season. But the best carrots are available right now. When the first crop hits the market, they are smaller, not quite mature carrots, which are more tender, sweeter and juicier.

Not too long ago you used to be able to recognize the fresh young carrots because they were shipped and sold in bunches with the tops still on. However, research has shown that the carrot tops draw moisture out of the root causing shriveling. Now, virtually all carrots are topped before they reach the market, although you might still see tops on carrots at some fresh produce stands.

When buying carrots look for those that are firm, well shaped, with a reddish orange color. Carrots with deeper color have more carotene. For some interesting ways to serve carrots try the following recipes:

Molded Pineapple Carrot Salad

1 package (3 ounces) lemon-flavored gelatin
¼ cup raisins
1 cup shredded raw carrots
Lettuce
1 can (10½ ounces) crushed pineapple
Mayonnaise

Prepare gelatin according to package directions, using pineapple syrup as part of the liquid. Chill until mixture is slightly thickened. Fold in carrots, pineapple, and raisins; pour into a 1-quart mold. Chill until firm. Serve on lettuce; top with mayonnaise if desired.

Carrot Cookies

1 cup shortening or butter
2 cups flour
¾ cup sugar
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 cup mashed, cooked carrots (drained)
½ teaspoon salt
1 egg, slightly beaten
Juice of 1 orange
½ teaspoon lemon juice, grated Rind of 1 orange
1 teaspoon vanilla
Powdered sugar

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Cream shortening and sugar. Add carrots, eggs, lemon juice, and vanilla. Sift flour with baking powder and salt. Add to creamed mixture. Drop by spoonfuls on greased sheet. Bake until light brown. Mix orange juice and rind with enough powdered sugar to spread on hot cookies.

Honey Carrots

This recipe may have originated in ancient Egypt, where honey was the basic sweetener.

12 medium carrots (about 1 ½ pounds), sliced
1 teaspoon lemon juice
⅓ cup honey
½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons vegetable oil

Heat 1-inch salted water (½ teaspoon salt to 1 cup water) to boiling. Add carrots. Heat to boiling; reduce heat. Cover and cook until tender, 12 to 15 minutes; drain. Cook and stir remaining ingredients in 10-inch skillet until bubbly; add carrots. Cook uncovered over low heat, stirring occasionally, until carrots are glazed, 2 to 3 minutes. Serves 6.

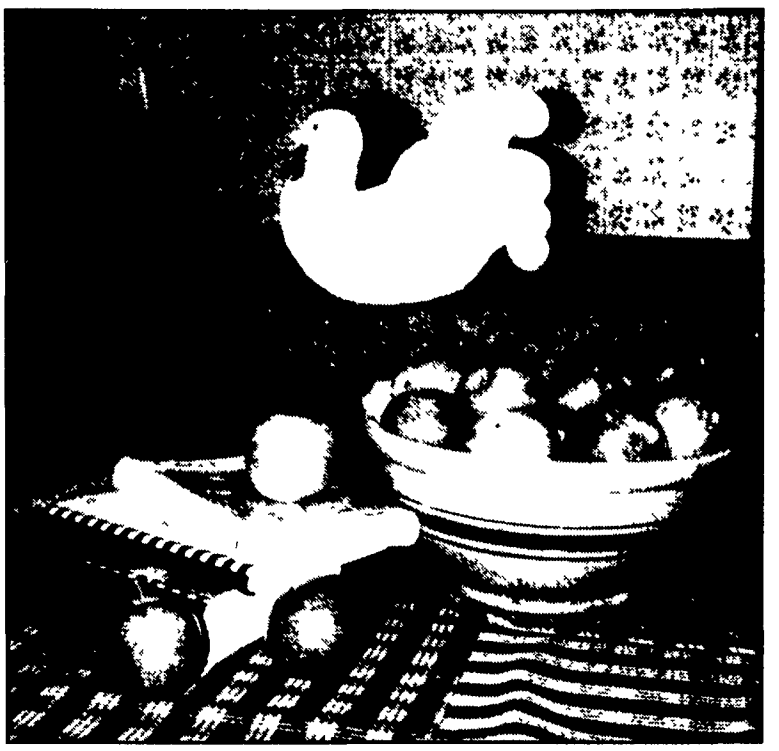
At Harvest Time Apples Abound



Bowls full of apples paired with recipe books will be a familiar sight as the fall brings a bounty of apples to the Northeast.

APPLE GOODIE

Mix together:
¼ cup sugar
2 tablespoons flour

Put one-half of above mixture in the bottom of a greased 9x13-inch glass baking dish. Fill bottom of pan with apple halves and pieces in cracks between halves, put flat side of apple up.

Use about 12 apples. Add ¼ cup water over apples. Sprinkle remaining flour and sugar mixture on apples.

Add topping:
1 cup oatmeal
2 teaspoons wheat germ
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 cup brown sugar
1 cup Bisquick
½ cup soft butter

Mix together topping ingredients and put on top of apples. Bake at 375 degrees for 35 minutes.

This recipe has become our favorite dessert when apples are ready to harvest in the fall.

APPLE CHIFFON PIE

3 eggs
1½ cups sugar
1 cup flour
2 teaspoons baking powder

Stir all of above ingredients together (no electric mixer required). Next add:
2 cups finely-chopped apples
1 cup chopped nuts

Bake in a 10-inch pie pan at 350 degrees for 40-45 minutes.

My husband and I belong to London Grove Grange 63 and I got this recipe from the "Grange Advocate," a periodical that is published by our state Grange.

This is quick and very tasty, especially served warm with vanilla ice cream.

SLOW COOKER APPLE BUTTER

6 pounds apples
½ cup dark brown sugar
2 teaspoons ground cinnamon
¼ teaspoon ground cloves juice of one lemon

Wash and quarter unpeeled apples. Remove core and seeds. Put in slow cooker. Do not add water, as apples draw their own liquids. Cook on low for 8-10 hours.

Puree apples in blender. Add dark brown sugar. Add remaining ingredients and return mixture to the slow cooker. Cook on low 8-10 hours with lid on cooker. Seal in preheated jelly jars and preheated lids.

Be sure to use dark brown sugar. Do not peel apples, as peels give apple butter the good taste and when pureed the peels blend in fine.

APPLE NUT BREAD

⅓ cup brown sugar
⅔ cup salad oil
1 egg
1 cup sour milk
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 teaspoon cinnamon
2½ cups flour
1½ cups diced apples
⅓ cup chopped nuts

Stir ingredients together in order listed. Pour into two greased 8-inch loaf pans; sprinkle with ½ cup sugar mixed with one tablespoon melted butter. Bake at 350 degrees for 60 minutes or until well done.

APPLE DAPPLE CAKE

1¼ cup oil
1 teaspoon salt
2 cups sugar
3 cups of flour
3 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 teaspoon soda
1 cup white raisins (optional)
1 teaspoon cinnamon
3 cups diced apples
1 cup of pecans

Cream oil, sugar and eggs. Add soda, salt, flour and cinnamon, which have been sifted together. Fold in apples, nuts, raisins, vanilla. Pour into ungreased tube pan. Bake at 350 degrees degrees for one hour and 20 minutes.

Remember to cut the baking time in half if baking in two pans — test to be sure it is done before removing from oven.

Topping:
1 cup brown sugar
¼ cup milk
½ cup butter
1 teaspoon vanilla.

Bring to boil for three minutes and pour over cake while both are still warm. Cut cake loose from sides of pans and punch holes in top of cake with a fork. Let set 10 minutes, then remove from pan.

APPLE DROP COOKIES

½ cup soft shortening
1⅓ cups brown sugar
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon ground cloves
½ teaspoon nutmeg
1 egg
2 cups of presifted flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 cup of chopped nuts
1 cup finely-chopped apples
1 cup raisins
¼ cup apple juice or milk
White Glaze Frosting (optional)

Preheat oven to 375 degrees. In mixing bowl combine shortening, sugar, salt, spices and egg. Beat well.

Sift together flour and baking soda. Drop batter by tablespoon onto greased cookie sheets. Bake 11 to 14 minutes until light brown. Spread while hot with frosting. Makes 48 cookies.

Frosting:
1½ cups sifted powdered sugar
1 tablespoon melted butter
½ teaspoon vanilla
⅛ teaspoon salt
2½ tablespoons light cream.

MRS. PARSONS' APPLE PIE

1 uncooked pie crust
6-7 apples, peeled and sliced
½ cup sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon

Place apples in pie crust. Sprinkle sugar and cinnamon over apples. Dot with butter and cover with the following:
½ cup sugar
¾ cup flour
⅓ cup butter or margarine

Sift sugar and flour together; cut in butter until crumbly. Sprinkle over apples. Bake at 400 degrees for 40 minutes.

APPLE CRISP

Place four cups of sliced apples in a shallow 6 x 10-inch baking dish. Sprinkle ¼ cup of water over the apples. Work together until crumbly:
¾ cup flour
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup sugar
⅓ cup butter
1 teaspoon cinnamon

Spread crumb mixture over apples. Bake uncovered about 40 minutes in moderate oven, 350 degrees. Serve warm with whipped cream or ice cream. Serves about six.

DELICIOUS APPLE PIE

Line a deep pie pan with rich pastry; fill with peeled and sliced apples. Mix well:
1 ¼ cups sugar
2 tablespoons cornstarch
¼ cup butter
3 egg yolks, well beaten
½ cup thick cream
¼ cup milk
juice of ½ lemon

Spread this mixture over the apples. Bake in oven at 350 degrees until done. Beat the egg whites until stiff; slowly add six tablespoons sugar. Spread this over the pie. Bake slowly until meringue is browned.

APPLE CUSTARD PIE

Crust:
1½ cup of flour
½ teaspoon of salt
1 stick butter

Filling:
3 apples, peeled and sliced
⅔ cup of sugar
1 teaspoon of cinnamon

For crust, mix flour, salt and butter with a fork (or in food processor) until mixture resembles coarse meal.

Press firmly on the bottom and sides of buttered pie plate. Place sliced apples on crust, sprinkle with ⅔ cup of sugar and 1 teaspoon cinnamon.

Bake at 375 degrees for 20 minutes.

Custard:
1 egg
½ cup sugar
1 cup of evaporated milk

Beat egg, sugar and milk. Pour over apples and return to oven for 30 minutes.

Fresh Apple Pie Filling To Freeze

Toss together:
6 cups peeled, sliced apples
¾-1 cup sugar
¼ cup flour
1 teaspoon cinnamon

Line a nine-inch pie plate with plastic wrap, allowing ends to extend about eight inches. Place apple mixture in plate on top of plastic wrap.

Bring wrap ends together and fold down tightly. Tuck edges in under. Place plate and wrapped filling in freezer until frozen, then remove plate and wrap contents in heavy-duty foil The mixture can be frozen up to one year. When you are ready to use it, unwrap but do not thaw.

To Bake Pie

Using your favorite recipe, prepare, roll out and line a nine inch pie plate with pastry. Place apple filling in the pastry-lined pie plate and adjust the top crust. Bake at 425 degrees for 15 minutes.

Cover edge with foil, then bake 25-30 minutes more or until apples are tender.

This also works very well using a fresh peach pie recipe.

Apple Preservation Hints

Love the taste and texture of apples? Take advantage of the harvest season by canning or freezing them to prepare for the winter months ahead.

Prevent Discoloration

The addition of Ascorbic acid (Vitamin C) to light-colored fruits at the time of canning will help prevent discoloration.

Tablet or crystalline form may be used. Put 5 tablets of 50 milligrams in bottom of each quart jar before packing fruit; or add ½ teaspoon of crystalline Ascorbic acid to each quart of the syrup before pouring over fruit in jars, or use commercial Ascorbic and Citric acid mixture following manufacturer's directions.

Canning

Select uniform apples. Wash, pare and core. Cut into desired size.

If peeled fruit is to stand several minutes before precooking, drop it into solution to prevent discoloration. Drain. Boil three to five minutes in a thin syrup (see below).

Pack into jars to within ½ inch of top. Fill to within ½ inch of top of jar with boiling syrup. Put on cap, screw band firmly tight. Process in boiling water bath 20 minutes for pint jars or 25 minutes for quart jars.

Freezing

Peel, core, and slice apples. Put in solution to prevent darkening. Drain and blanch two minutes in boiling water or slice directly into chilled syrup (see below).

Syrup:
1 cup sugar
3 cups water

Boil sugar and water together until sugar is dissolved.

Talking With Children When The Talking Gets Tough

With the events of the last week still reeling in our minds it's hard to know what our children are thinking. As adults, we hope that these and other tragic events won't ever happen. We would like to protect these young minds from the pain or horror of difficult situations. We would like to ensure that they have happy, innocent and carefree lives. Unfortunately with the terrorism attacks of last week we know this is not the case.

As parents, teachers and caregivers we need to be aware of children and how we can help them understand this situation. Following are tips that will help us talk with children.

• Don't assume that the kids don't know about it. They probably know more than you think. The reality of today's world is that news travels far and wide. Adults and children learn about disasters and tragedies shortly after they occur, and live video footage with close-ups and interviews are part of the report. Children and youth are exposed to the events as soon as they can watch TV or interact with others who are consumers of the news. Not talking about it does not protect children. In fact, you may communicate that the subject is taboo and that you are unavailable if you remain silent.

• Be available and "askable." Let kids know that it is okay to talk about the unpleasant events. Listen to what they think and feel. By listening, you can find out if they have misunderstandings, and you can learn more about the support that they need. You do not need to explain more than they are ready to hear, but be willing to answer their questions.

• Share your feelings. Tell young people if you feel afraid, angry, or frustrated. It can help them to know that others also are upset by the events. They might feel that only children are struggling. If you tell them about your feelings, you also can tell them about how you deal with the feelings. Be careful not to overwhelm them or expect them to find answers for you.

• Help children use creative outlets like art and music to express their feelings. Children may not be comfortable or skilled with words, especially in relation to difficult situations. Using art, puppets, music, or books might help children open up about their reactions. They may want to draw pictures and then destroy them, or they could want to display them or send them to someone else. Be flexible and listen.

• Reassure young people and help them feel safe. When tragic events occur, children may be afraid that the same will happen to them. Some young children may even think that it already did happen to them. It is important to let them know that they are not at risk-if they are not. Try to be realistic as you reassure them, however. You can try to support them and protect them, but you can not keep all bad things from happening to children. You can always tell them that you love them, though. You can say that, no matter what happens, your love will be with them. That is realistic, and often that is all the children need to feel better.

• Support children's concern for people they do not know. Children often are afraid not only for themselves, but also for people they do not even know. They learn that many people are getting hurt or are experiencing pain in some way. They worry about those people and their well being. In some cases they might feel less secure or cared for themselves if they see that others are hurting. It is heartwarming and satisfying to observe this level of caring in children. Explore ways to help others and ease the pain.

• Look for feelings beyond fear. After reassuring kids, don't stop there. Studies have shown that children also may feel sad or angry. Let them express that full range of emotions. Support the development of caring and empathy. Be careful not to encourage the kind of response given by one child: "I don't care if there's a war, as long as it doesn't affect me and my family."

• Help children and youth find a course of action. One important way to reduce stress is to take action. This is true for both adults and children. The action may be very simple or more complex. Children may want to write a letter to someone about their feelings, get involved in an organization committed to preventing events like the one they are dealing with, or send money to help victims or interventionists. Let the young people help to identify the action choices. They may have wonderful ideas.

• Take action and get involved in something. It is not enough to let children take action by themselves. Children who know that their parents, teachers, or other significant caregivers are working to make a difference feel hope. They feel safer and more positive about the future. So do something. It will make you feel more hopeful, too. And hope is one of the most valuable gifts we can give children and ourselves.

Kids TV Milk Ads A Towering Success

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — National, network media buys with Nickelodeon and the Cartoon Network advertising milk to kids have paid off well for dairy farmers. Special added elements have given dairy farmers more for their money. This is another example of how the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program, American Dairy Association & Dairy Council Mid East and Dairy Management, Inc.™ checkoff programs are managed effectively and efficiently.

Nickelodeon's SpongeBob Squarepants, one of Nickelodeon's most popular characters, appeared in his own chocolate milk mustache print and TV ads. The package also added the "got milk?®" sponsorship to a special SpongeBob Squarepants "You Wish" on-air event in which kids were able to vote for the ending of a SpongeBob episode. More than 500,000 kids voted.

In a similar promotion, the Cartoon Network's Powerpuff Girls Popularity Contest was an added value initiative. One of Cartoon Network's most popular animated properties, the Powerpuff Girls are super-heroic princesses who use their special powers to save the day. The Powerpuff Girls starred in their own TV milk commercials too. The spots featured the three Powerpuff Girls with their favorite flavored milk mustaches: chocolate, strawberry, and banana.

The partnership with milk and these popular kids TV networks proved to be a creative, integrated strategy that speaks to our target of kids 6-11.

ANSWER — Inez Ware, Waynesboro, Va., requested a cookie recipe called "Crybaby Cookies." Thanks to Jean Bordner, Dornsife, for sending a recipe.

Crybaby Cookies

1 cup plus 2 tablespoons sugar
1 cup plus 2 tablespoons shortening
Cream together sugar and shortening. Add:
1 cup molasses
2 eggs, well beaten
4¾ cups cake flour, sifted
1 tablespoon baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1½ teaspoons baking soda
2 cups fine coconut
2 cups chopped walnuts
1½ cups raisins
1 cup milk
Mix together ingredients. Drop on greased sheet. Bake at 350-375 degrees 10 minutes.

ANSWER — Janet M. Street, Bridgeton, N.J., wanted a recipe for crabcakes made from zucchini. Thanks to Rachel Glick, New Holland, for sending one.

Mock Crab Cakes

2 cups grated zucchini
2 large eggs, lightly beaten
1 cup fine, dry bread crumbs
3 green onions, chopped
2-3 teaspoons Old Bay seasoning
1 teaspoon mayonnaise or salad dressing oil
Drain zucchini, pressing between paper towels. Combine in a large bowl; zucchini, eggs, bread crumbs, onions, seasoning, and mayonnaise or salad dressing. Divide mixture into eight portions, shaping each into a patty (mixture will be soft). Fry patties in hot oil over medium heat for two minutes on each side. Drain on paper towels. Serve with tartar sauce.

ANSWER — A Somerset County reader requested a recipe for a batter for french-fried onion rings. Thanks to Deana Cunfer, Lehighton, for sending a recipe.

French Fried Onions

⅔ cup milk
1 egg
1 cup flour
Sugar to taste (optional)
Mix and dip onions or mushrooms in batter and deep fry.

ANSWER — A Hamburg reader requested a recipe for honey dipped chicken that tastes similar to that served in restaurants. Thanks to a subscriber for sending a recipe.

Honey Spice Barbecue Chicken

½ cup Heinz 57 Sauce
¼ cup honey
2 to 2½ pounds broiler-fryer chicken pieces
Melted butter
Combine 57 Sauce and honey. Place chicken parts on grill or broiler pan; brush with melted butter and sauce and honey mixture. Grill or broil until chicken is tender, turning and basting frequently with sauce. Makes 4-5 servings.

ANSWER — Ruby Brandt, Mount Joy, wanted a recipe for mustard eggs. Thanks to Phyllis Green, Gettysburg, for sending a recipe.

Golden Eggs

3 tablespoons mustard
⅔ cup sugar
⅛ teaspoon salt
1½ cups vinegar
1 cup water
Stir and heat in saucepan. Add 8-10 hard-boiled eggs, peeled. Store in refrigerator for 24 hours before serving.

ANSWER — Barbara Mayer, North Wales, requested a recipe for Amish vanilla pie. Thanks to Charlotte VanBuskirk, Halifax, and Meg Bush, Elmira, N.Y., for sending recipes.

Vanilla Pie

Filling:
1 egg
1 cup brown sugar
2 cups water
1 cup molasses
2½ heaping tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon vanilla
Combine all ingredients except vanilla, boil until thickened. Add vanilla and pour into two 8-inch pie crusts.
Topping:
2 cups flour
½ cup shortening
1 teaspoon cream of tarter
1 cup brown sugar
1 teaspoon baking soda
Crumble toppings together, sprinkle over filled pie shells and bake at 375 degrees for 40-45 minutes.

Vanilla Pie

Bottom Part:
1 cup brown sugar
1 cup dark molasses or corn syrup
1 tablespoon flour
1 egg
1 cup water
1 teaspoon vanilla
Top Part:
1 cup flour
1 cup brown sugar
1 cup shortening
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon baking powder
Combine ingredients for bottom part and cook until thickened.
Pour into unbaked 9-inch pie shell.
Top with crumbs made by combining sugar, flour, soda, baking powder, and melted shortening.

Put Some Snap In Your Dinner

Snap beans are at their best fresh the field and now is the time to enjoy them to the fullest. Beans can be prepared in any number of ways to fit most any menu and taste. Fresh beans lightly steamed but still crunchy can be served whole, cut in strips French-style, or snapped into bite-sized pieces in the traditional manner. They are also tasty in a chilled bean salad and are a staple in summer vegetable stir-fries.

Snap beans come in a variety of shapes and sizes. The most common is the green snap bean with a round, straight pod. Yellow snap beans or wax beans are also popular. Purple-podded beans (which turn green when cooked) and flat-podded beans (also known as Romano or Italian beans) are specialty varieties that have a distinctive flavor preferred by some. Snap beans are a favorite vegetable year around, available either fresh, canned or frozen.

Commonly called string beans, they are more correctly termed snap beans after the sound of being broken into bite-sized pieces. Fifty years ago, they were truly string beans because they had a tough "string" along the seam edge of the pods. This string had to be pulled off before the bean could be snapped. Plant breeders have since succeeded in breeding this undesirable characteristic out of most popular varieties of snap beans grown today.

Snap bean pods are actually the fruit of the bean plant that contains the immature seeds. If the beans are left to completely ripen on the vine, the pod dries up and the seeds mature into dry beans. Kidney beans are the same species as snap beans but simply a special variety whose seeds are dark red in color.

Pennsylvania vegetable growers produce between 6,000 and 12,000 acres of snap beans annually. Most of the acreage is grown to be frozen or canned, ranking Pennsylvania as the sixth largest producer of processing snap beans in the nation. But fresh Pennsylvania-grown snap beans can be found at any farmer's market or roadside farm market and in many supermarkets. Columbia County bean grower Carl Shaffer reports that this year's crop "Looks real good. The weather has been excellent so yield and quality are good."

Health authorities recommend Americans eat three to five servings a day of vegetables. Snap beans are a popular choice for one of those servings and are a good source of vitamin A and fiber. Noted Lancaster County cookbook author Betty Groff recommends the following bean recipes for your enjoyment.

Snap Green Beans

1 pound green beans, cleaned
½ cup water
2 tablespoons butter
1 onion, diced
½ teaspoon dry mustard
1 clove garlic, minced, or finely chopped
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
In a saucepan, add the beans and water. Cover with lid and steam until bright green — approximately 3 minutes. Add the butter, onion, mustard, garlic, salt and pepper. Reduce heat to low and simmer until desired tenderness for serving. Serves 4.

I like to use yellow beans with this recipe, or half green and half yellow.

Stir Fried Snap Beans With Bacon And Onions

½ pound sliced bacon
1½ pound snap beans, cleaned and cut diagonally (bite size)
1 clove garlic, thinly sliced
1 onion, chopped
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon black pepper or crushed peppercorns
1½ tablespoons water
Fry the bacon until crisp in wok or heavy skillet. Remove the bacon and drain on paper towels. Add the beans, garlic, onion, salt and pepper into the hot skillet and stir fry for 1 minute. Add the water, cover with lid and simmer for 3 to 5 minutes, or until desired softness is reached. Serve piping hot with crumbled bacon on top. Serves 6.

Dill Beans

These beans are delicious, crisp and crunchy, good as an hors d'oeuvre, vegetable for a buffet, or used instead of pickles. It takes time to pack whole beans in jars, but it is well worth the effort.

4 pounds whole firm young snap beans, trimmed of stem ends
½ cup salt
Water to cover
6 cups white vinegar
4 cups water
2 tablespoons dill seed
2 teaspoons dillweed
4 sprigs fresh tarragon or 2 teaspoons dried tarragon
Soak the beans for one hour in a pot, (not aluminum) with the ½ cup salt, covered with water. Rinse and cover with fresh cold water. Bring to a boil and cook, uncovered, for 2 minutes. Drain. When cool enough to handle, pack the beans lengthwise in hot sterilized jars. Tuck a sprig of tarragon (or put a pinch of your favorite herbs) in each jar. Combine the vinegar, water and dill in a saucepan, boiling about 2 minutes. Pour over the beans and seal in sterilized jars and lids. These will keep in sealed jars for more than a year.

QUESTION — Diana Seidol. HCR Box 560, Sciota, PA 18354, wants to purchase an Aunt Jemima tablecloth.

QUESTION — Ivan Fisher, Christiana, wants to know where to buy a small fine grindstone to turn by hand, and mounted on a small bench or table.

QUESTION — Kathleen Reiff, Stevens, is trying to locate out-of-print books by the author V.M. Hillyer. She especially wants "A Child's History of the World," "The Ancient World," "Young People's Story of Agriculture," and "The Americas."

ANSWER — Titus Martin was looking for Lady Slipper seeds. A reader writes that they will share some with anyone who sends a self-addressed, stamped envelope to 377 Slaybaughtown Rd., Gardners, PA 17324.

ANSWER — A Lancaster County reader wanted a banana seat for a child's bike. A reader writes that they can be purchased at Horning's Bike Shop, 536 Martindale Road, Ephrata.

ANSWER — Mrs. Adin Hoover wanted to know where to find soap flakes containing caustic soda or lye for laundry. She used to get it by the barrel from M&G Soap Co. A reader writes that the company moved to Texas but does not know new address.

Sec. Hayes Promotes Food Safety Month

MYERSTOWN (Lebanon Co.) — On behalf of Gov. Tom Ridge, Agriculture Secretary Sam Hayes recognized National Food Safety Month by visiting Jackson Elementary School in Myerstown, Lebanon County, Monday to talk with students about the importance of food safety and good nutrition.

"Good learners must have good food," Secretary Hayes said. "In fact, studies have shown that children who eat a nutritious breakfast and lunch learn better." The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture's "Good Learners Need Good Food" program teaches children the importance of good nutrition. It also teaches the importance of food safety.

The Department of Agriculture works in partnership with schools across the Commonwealth to ensure food is being handled and prepared properly. Pennsylvania's school cafeterias serve nutritionally balanced meals to one million children each day through the U.S. Department of Agriculture's school lunch program.

A "Good Learners Need Good Food" Food Safety Handbook is available for school food-service personnel. To receive a copy, contact the Bureau of Food Safety at (717) 787-4315 or visit the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture's Website through the PA PowerPort at www.state.pa.us, or directly at www.pda.state.pa.us.

Kiddy Tractor Pull Attracts Enthusiastic Contestants

HARFORD (Susquehanna Co.) — The 10th annual 4-H Kiddy Tractor Pull was conducted recently at the Harford Fair. More than 140 young contestants, ages 4 through 10 participated. Enthusiastic children pulled as parents and other spectators cheered them on. Children from all across Susquehanna County took part in the pull as well as children from neighboring counties.

The tractors used were donated by Bartron Supply, Tunkhannock, and Lindsey Lawn and Garden Center, New Milford. The tractors were altered for pulling and the weight sled built by Doug Puzo of Montrose. This event is organized by leaders and members of the Watrous Corners 4-H Club.

The Harford Fair Queen Heather Fluck and Fair Queen Alternate Amy Johnson were on hand to present awards. The Harford Fair Association provided a trophy for the first place winner in each division. Ribbons were awarded to all participants.

Susquehanna County Dairy Princess Kelly Diaz, Dairy Maids Abbey Hewitt, Madison Legg, Abbey Puzo and Ashley Franklin, and Dairy Ambassador Shana Mack presented each tractor pull participant with a coupon for a glass of cold milk at the Susquehanna County Farm Bureau booth at the fair.

In the junior division, the 4-year-old first and second place winners were Rachael Zona, Karlee Weida, Joseph Cessa IV, Tanner Frystak; 5-year-old winners were Taylor Watkins, Jenny Molenko, Colby Thomas, Benny Abdell; 6-year-old winners were Katie Valentine, Brooke Colombo, James Eldred III, Tyler Vanerson; 7-year-old winners were Nicky O'Dell, Megan Oliver, Billy McKeen and Tommy Steele. In the senior division the 8-year-old first and second place winners were Rachel Smarkusky, Kayla Houck, Ben Oliver and a three-way tie for second, Kevin Hine, Jesse Frystak, Dillion Columbo; the 9-year-old winners were Kaitlin Callender and tie for second between Alena Beeman and Hannah Sprout, Dakota Burns, Alex Stanton; 10-year-old winners were Abbey Puzo, Paulina Tompkins, Michael Greenwood, and Franklyn Payne.

The junior champion awards were won by Nicky O'Dell and Billy McKeen. Senior champions were Abbey Puzo and Michael Greenwood.

In celebration of this being the 10th year the Kiddy Tractor Pull event has taken place at the Harford Fair, several drawings took place for special items donated by Bill Lopatofsky's Northeast Equipment, Clifford; Bartrons, Tunkhannock; Lindsey Lawn & Garden, New Milford; Goff Farm's, Montrose; and Five Star Equipment, Kirkwood.

Seven-year-old tractor pullers Sara Fair, Sarah Fitch, Erin Reynolds, and Nicky O'Dell appear with Amy Johnson, alternate Harford Fair queen; Kelly Diaz, Susquehanna County dairy princess; and Abby Hewitt and Ashley Franklin, Susquehanna County dairy maids.

Rural Legend — The Search For Pennsylvania Mountain Lions

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — A recent rumor of a cougar killed by a vehicle on Interstate 80 attracted some attention at Penn State.

After hearing of alleged sightings over the years — sketchy reports of rural folks listening to big cat screams in the night, inconclusive paw prints, photos and videos that never materialized and the occasional unexplained livestock killing — a cougar carcass was supposed to be delivered to university wildlife experts for necropsy.

The mystery of whether wild eastern cougars, also commonly known as mountain lions, pumas, or panthers, really survive in the Keystone State might finally unravel. This development promised to resolve a decades-old controversy.

That the ultimate proof would come from Penn State seemed ironic — the university's well-known mascot is a "Nittany" lion, and a mounted cougar killed in Susquehanna County in 1856 stands guard in the campus library. Records show that more than 600 cougars were killed in Centre County alone during the 1800s.

But the reported road-kill apparently never happened. State wildlife authorities have no record of the incident and the promised cougar carcass never arrived.

"So the mystery goes on," says Gary San Julian, professor of wildlife resources in the College of Agricultural Sciences. "Over the years, I've received a number of cougar reports, some pretty factual, such as a partly devoured calf left up in a tree, but nobody has ever provided clear proof. Still, you just never know..."

A hunter and an angler, San Julian, like most other outdoorsmen and nature lovers, wants to believe wild mountain lions survive in the woods of Pennsylvania.

But he doesn't.

"Hunters tell me, 'Oh yeah, we've seen them, but we love them, and we are not going to shoot them,'" he says. "Thus a rural legend is perpetuated. If cougars are out there, why hasn't one ever been killed on a highway or shot? There has never been any conclusive evidence."

San Julian dutifully follows up on every cougar report he can. Recently he was given a plaster cast of what was suspected to be a cougar track from Wayne County, made after a "large catlike creature" was seen locally. But after consultations with biologists inside and outside the university, he determined it was an unusual bear track showing just four toes and no claws. After carefully considering the shape of the paw, Penn State experts concluded that the print was not made by a cougar.

He occasionally inspects "scat" suspected of being left by a mountain lion, and closely examines the animal excrement for food sources, hairs or other clues. San Julian can even send scat to be tested for cougar DNA. The last promising scat turned out to be from a large coyote that had eaten a lot of meat.

DNA tests have offered conclusive proof of cougars in other eastern states. The Eastern Cougar Foundation, a clearinghouse for cougar sightings, claims it has received proof that big cats do exist in Missouri, Vermont, Massachusetts, Maryland, West Virginia, North Carolina, Illinois and Kentucky, and in Ontario and New Brunswick, Canada.

A reproducing population of endangered cougars lives in the Everglades, known as the "Florida panthers," and the big cats are so numerous in a number of western states that hunting seasons are allowed. The eastern cougar subspecies is slightly smaller than the western, but is similar in appearance and habits. Their coloration ranges from tan to black.

"I have been in this business long enough not to doubt what people say they have seen," says San Julian, "but I think most sightings are escaped pets or animals released by people."

Pennsylvania Game Commission spokesman Jerry Feaser notes that his agency agrees with San Julian.

"We do not believe that there are any wild, native, breeding cougar populations in Pennsylvania. That's not to say that there is not a mountain lion in the wild," he explains. "But we believe that the likely source is an illegally released animal."

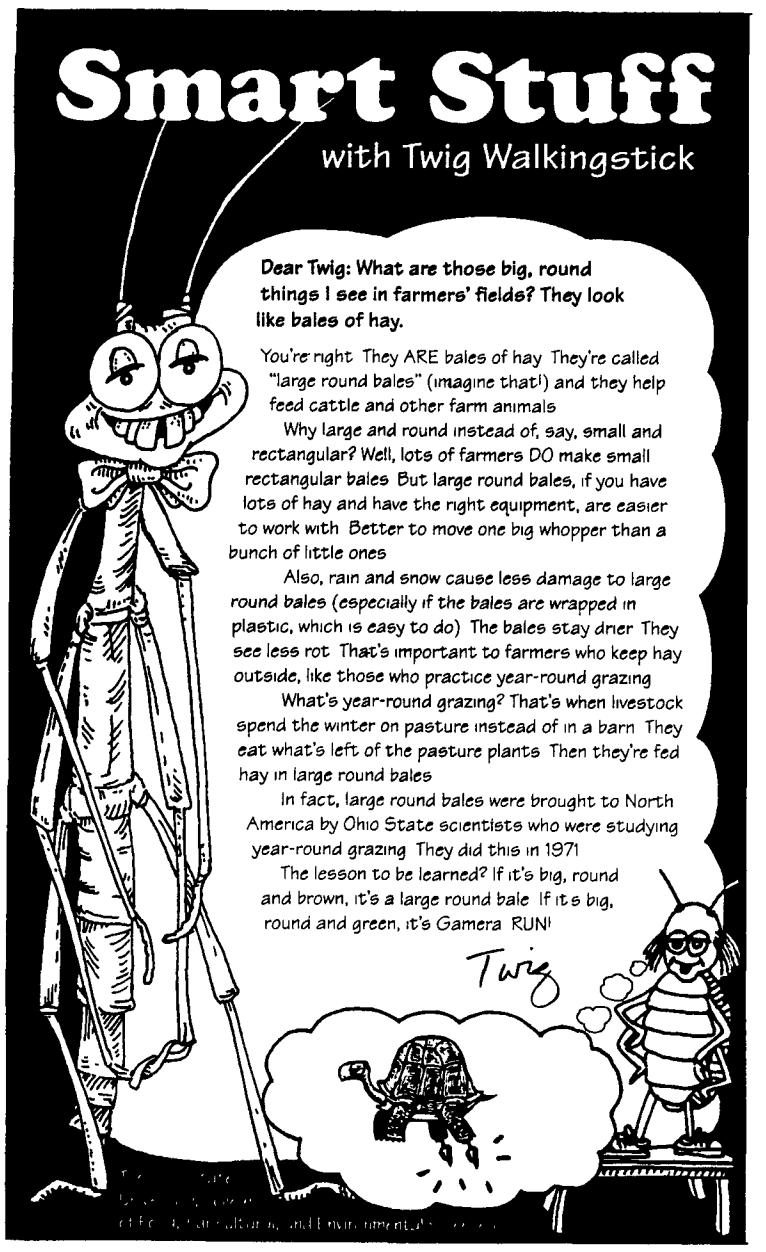
The Game Commission occasionally hears about cougar sightings too, but agency officials are skeptical about their origins.

"Recently there was an emu captured in Houtzdale, Clearfield County," says Feaser. "Now nobody is saying there is a wild emu population in Pennsylvania. I think the mountain lion situation is like that. There may well be a mountain lion out there that has been illegally released."

Still, Pennsylvania does have adequate cougar habitat, according to San Julian. In many places, the habitat hasn't changed much in hundreds of years.

"We have lots of remote areas where people seldom go," he says, "and our high deer population would offer them bountiful food. So it's possible that cougars survive.

"But I want to see proof."



Smart Stuff
with Twig Walkingstick
Dear Twig: What are those big, round things I see in farmers' fields? They look like bales of hay.
You're right. They ARE bales of hay. They're called "large round bales" (imagine that!) and they help feed cattle and other farm animals.
Why large and round instead of, say, small and rectangular? Well, lots of farmers DO make small rectangular bales. But large round bales, if you have lots of hay and have the right equipment, are easier to work with. Better to move one big whopper than a bunch of little ones.
Also, rain and snow cause less damage to large round bales (especially if the bales are wrapped in plastic, which is easy to do). The bales stay drier. They see less rot. That's important to farmers who keep hay outside, like those who practice year-round grazing.
What's year-round grazing? That's when livestock spend the winter on pasture instead of in a barn. They eat what's left of the pasture plants. Then they're fed hay in large round bales.
In fact, large round bales were brought to North America by Ohio State scientists who were studying year-round grazing. They did this in 1971.
The lesson to be learned? If it's big, round and brown, it's a large round bale. If it's big, round and green, it's Gamera. RUN!

Lancaster County Martin Pioneers Scatter To The West

CHAMBERSBURG (Franklin Co.) — A special day of Mennonite story telling and history is planned for Sept. 29 to recount how the Martin pioneers, who settled in the Weaverland Valley in the early 1700s, spread their name in many directions. The descendants of Christian and Ells Martin now number in the hundreds of thousands.

The seminar theme is "Martins Move West! A look at the migration patterns of Mennonite Martin families through Switzerland, Germany, Pennsylvania, and Beyond." It is the fourth annual program given by Darvin Martin, Lancaster, and Ray Martin, Virginia, coordinators of the Martin Family History of Genealogy Project (Website: http://www.genealogygoldmine.com).

They will review the European roots of the Martin Mennonite pioneers and their migration to Lancaster County and then westward to the Cumberland Valley and elsewhere. There will be stories of early colonial life, agricultural practices, and their extraordinary pioneering spirit and the religious faith that motivated and sustained them.

To illustrate the migration outward from Lancaster County, this year's seminar will be conducted from 9 a.m. to noon at the Marion Mennonite Church at 4365 Molly Pitcher Highway (Route 11), just north of Marion, about five miles south of Chambersburg. Roy Showalter, curator of the Mennonite Historical Association of the Cumberland Valley, is helping to organize this Martin Day.

Showalter, Paul Martin, and others will also describe the early history of the Martins in Franklin County, Pa., and Washington County, Md. History and genealogy books of the early Martin families will be on sale.

Showalter will lead an afternoon tour from 2 to 5 p.m., beginning and ending at the Mennonite Historical Association of the Cumberland Valley, 4850 Molly Pitcher Highway, just north of Marion. The narrated tour will visit sites of significance to the early Mennonite and Martin settlements in both Franklin and Washington counties, including churches, cemeteries, farms, and businesses.

After the tour, a 50-minute video, A Firm Faith in God: The History of the Weaverland Mennonite Church in Lancaster County, will describe how the Martin and Weaver pioneers organized a church in early colonial times.

The bus tour has limited seating and must be preregistered. Register by sending $8 per person (make checks out to the Mennonite Historical Association) to the Mennonite Historical Association of the Cumberland Valley, 4850 Molly Pitcher Highway S., Chambersburg, PA 17257. The morning seminar costs $5 per person, but does not need to be registered or paid for in advance. For questions, call Darvin Martin at (717) 481-4940 or Roy Showalter at (301) 733-2184.

Cumberland County Dairy Princess Appreciation Night

CARLISLE (Cumberland Co.) — The 34th annual Cumberland County Dairy Princess appreciation night was conducted recently at the Monroe Township Community Building, Churchtown. LeAnn Witmer, daughter of David and Wendy Witmer, Newburg, was crowned Cumberland County Dairy Princess by Becky Corman, 1998 dairy princess.

LeAnn is a recent graduate of Shippensburg Senior High School where she was active in the FFA program and the Photography Club. Her hobbies include taking pictures, horses, and line dancing. She and her family operate Floral Rose Farm where they have a herd of 60 Holsteins.

Jennifer Kramer, daughter of Sarah and Donald Kramer, was named dairy ambassador for the coming year. Jennifer Kramer will be a junior at Big Spring High School this fall where she is active in student council and school newspaper activities. Jennifer is a member of the Co-Wide 4-H Dairy Club and Girl Scouts of America.

Mellissa Detman, daughter of Larry and Deb Yorlets, Carlisle, and Megan Kutz, daughter of Michael and Mary Kutz, Carlisle, were selected to serve as dairy maids for the coming year supporting our 2001 Dairy Princess at various dairy promotion activities.

The "Little Dairy Miss" title was used for the second time this year. Kerri Wickard, daughter of Lonni and Vicki Wickard, Shippensburg, and Janel Zinn, daughter of Scott and Marilyn Zinn, Newville, were given the title of "Little Dairy Miss" for this coming year.

They will represent the 250 Cumberland County Dairy Farmers. The county's dairy farmers produce 328,100,000 pounds of milk annually. That is almost 150 million quarts of milk. Farmers received $51,640,000 for this production. Cumberland County's milk production and value of product ranks sixth among the 67 Pennsylvania counties.

It was reported that 84 appearances were logged by our Dairy Ambassadors, Amy Kaucher, Mechanicsburg, and Jennifer Kramer, Newville, and by Dairy Maid Mellissa Detman, Carlisle.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

You never realize the work that goes on behind the scenes of a public gathering unless you are a part of it. Recently, I attended two such events and they both went smoothly as people came and went.

One was a chicken barbecue at a local nursing home. A large tent was erected for an auction and another as shade for picnic tables. I'm sure it was a lot of trouble to erect them. Getting the food must have been an enormous job and one that used many volunteers. Advertising the event was another job. There were rides for children, too.

Later that same day, we attended an open house at a brand new church. The congregation decided to tear down the old church and build a new one. This was my home church for many years. My ancestors came to this church for centuries and it was very sad to see it destroyed. But now the new building is ready for service and the neighborhood was invited to see the results.

Everyone was warmly greeted and shown the spacious facilities. Entertainment was provided and food was served — all of this with lots of planning, I am sure.

Now we have an event of our own to plan. In comparison, it is quite small. A Rural Youth of Lancaster County picnic was planned by getting a caterer and securing a place for it in March. That is planning ahead of time. Unless you are part of preparing, you'd not think of buying a big plastic table cover or even of getting there early to sweep the pavilion.

Planning a program takes several people and someone is needed to handle the reservations. Here is hoping our own small gathering lives up to expectations.

Lou Ann In Poland

I ate it, but it was quite greasy and I had to force myself to swallow it. Later I heard the English word for the stuff was blood sausage.

I will not eat that again even if it offends. My stomach churned for many hours.

The supper included Polish dancing and regional music. The people were very friendly and we laughed heartily together at our efforts to communicate. When the director saw the picture of my family, he got up and called his friend from the other end of the table. He showed the picture to her. She gasped also and they conversed quite a bit about the photo, pointing to it and me.

The director said, "Nice. Nice. Nice." He said it with such longing and kept looking at the picture. He doesn't have any children, but from his reaction it seemed as if he would desire them.

We are told that the economical conditions scare Polish couples from having children. Many couples live with their parents because they cannot afford to rent or buy their own house.

Thursday, Aug. 30:

At Busko Zdraj we met with local authorities who are in charge of social services for foster and handicapped children. The center is connected with a health resort, famous for its sulfur springs and bottled water.

We were offered a sip of the water, said to contain healing properties, but were warned to sip it slowly as it reduces your heart rate.

I declined the sample. Someone who did try it said it tasted horrible.

Begun in the ninth century, the resort contains elaborate buildings and mature trees, shrubbery, and lovely flowers. It was rejuvenating to stroll down the walkways to the center.

If you need physical therapy, a doctor will give a prescription for you to go to the center free of charge.

The center also had a shop with high-quality items made in Poland. We begged to be allowed to shop and were granted five minutes. Imagine American women confined to five minutes of shopping.

Along the way to the next scheduled place, we stopped for lunch at a newly-built place called an "agrotourist farm," but it was more like an upscale motel.

The longer I stay in Poland, the more I see the vast differences in lifestyles, but this is also common in the U.S.

Later, we visited Zofia's farm, which I had written about.

That evening we had a former meal with the ODR personel. The food again was elaborately garnished. Several speeches were given and we retired late, as usual.

Friday, Aug. 31:

Despite the six-hour difference in time, we have adjusted well from the first day. In fact, I awake each morning at 5 a.m. just like I had at home. This is most amazing, considering my sleeping time has been minimal. Yesterday, the activities ended at 11 p.m. I stayed up to 2:30 p.m. to do some writing. If I did not know better, I would not suspect that I had only 2½ hours sleep.

The busy schedule, rushing from one place to another, helps keep me awake. Although we had a three-hour drive to our destination this morning, the van ride is much too bumpy to sleep, and a van filled with nine women is never quiet or dull.

Team member Lee Younge checks out a beet grown by a Polish farmer.

The required bathroom breaks are sometimes difficult to find. This morning we stopped at a McDonald's. Many of the team members brought a soda just to have a cold drink with ice. Here water and juices are always served at room temperature and not with ice.

Although it was before 9 a.m. and we were full from breakfast, a few curious teammates purchased a hamburger or cheeseburger just to see if it tasted the same as in the U.S. Anne reported the hamburger seemed a bit different but tasted very good. Marcy said the cheeseburger tasted the same.

When we arrived at the center, they served us a variety of cookies, coffee, tea, and many different bottled juices, which are always wonderful.

The director said this area contains Poland's oldest town. The soils are not favorable for farming, but is used for grain and potato cultivation.

As usual, the center is a large, well-built building. This one was finished in 1924, but burned four years later. It was rebuilt in 1928, confiscated by the Germans in 1939, and turned into government usage under the Communist regime. It became a horticulture school for a few years until 1979, until it was appointed for usage as an agricultural advisory center.

After an introduction, Yvonne Szpara, family living agent from Schuylkill County talked about balancing work and family. She showed lots of cartoons on an overhead about the stress working mothers face.

"I believe pictures break the language barrier," Yvonne said. From the reaction of the audience, she was right. Her speech was interpreted, but the ODRs often laughed at the cartoons and remarked about them.

Sometimes things seem to conflict with what we heard before. This could be because we are traveling to different areas and in each area the ODRs work a bit differently from each other. Poland is the size of New Mexico and is divided into provinces and counties.

We visited several newly-developed companies in Poland. One of these was a ceramic tile company that employs 290 people with sales of $3 million at the plant we visited. It used the latest modern technology and was fascinating to watch the process. They also built a fantastic show room with full-room displays to give people ideas on how to decorate.

One of the things that seems so different in Poland is that these companies almost always prepared a meal for us, complete with a fully decorated table.

This company, especially, served very elaborate foods. It was served in a cottage rumored to have been owned by Napoleon's mistress.

A spokesperson for the company told us how the company helps the community by holding an annual horse show. They also provide money to the handicapped for horse therapy.

Later, we visited a company that recycles scraps of plastic pipe into shelving. This company was established in 1960 under Communist reign. "We were successful then and we are now," the owner said.

The company also owns a branch and several hotels. The owner's charming 15-year-old son gave us a tour. He spoke excellent English and accompanied us for the remainder of the day.

We drove by their home, which looked to be a multimillion dollar home. Perhaps there are more expensive homes like these but they are usually in isolated places.

The evening meal was served by Marii Myszkowskiej, who operates an agrotourism farm called Hospitality House on the island. It is built on an island and surrounded by water. The land was owned by Marii's family for more than 200 years.

Because Marii is running for public office, she needed to rush off to a meeting and the town mayor hosted the dinner.

Goose was the main dish. It sounds trite to say the food was exceptional, since it always seems to be, but it would take too much space to describe it and to list all the items.

Suffice it to say that once again, we were stuffed with a full-course meal, the dishes were removed, and more dishes distributed. Platters full of three different kinds of meat were brought in for a second dinner.

I know it's rude, but out of necessity, I sometimes refuse food. One can only eat so much no matter how delicious it is.

We traveled several hours. For the first time we were assigned to stay with host families. Three of us went to the same place, again called an agrotourism farm. This time we did not have an interpreter, and none of us knew the others' language.

The property where we stayed was quite quaint. We slept on the third floor and needed to go to the second floor to use the bathrooms. I think this place is probably more typical of most of Poland. Although I am accustomed to much nicer accommodations, I was happy to stay in a place that gave me a real sense of a Polish family.

The couple had four children, who were eager to talk with us despite our language differences. They were thrilled with the gifts we gave them.

The kitchen seemed quite large and modern compared to the remainder of the house.

Saturday, Sept. 1:

After breakfast we rushed off as usual for a full day of visiting a new region. This day included visiting two very prosperous businesses. So many things were gleaned from these visits that I plan to write a separate article of the meat packing and Helena beverage company.

In the evening we walked around the city of Kalisz in the rain. It is in the heart of Poland and is its oldest city. We climbed a tower so we could look over the countryside.

In the one direction, it is referred to Manhattan, nicknamed because so many of the buildings are the same because they were built during the communist era when only a few plans were used for building.

That night we slept in an agrotourism farm that has received many awards for its improvements inside and outside. We had just eaten supper at a previous stop, but of course the hostess also had a big supper waiting for us. I felt sorry that she had gone to so much work and we were too full to eat much.

In language translations we sometimes can make mistakes of which we are not aware.

Today I learned that for the last 10 days I had been showing my photos labeled with Polish words, and had a glaring error. When our Polish interpreter saw them, she noticed the one showing me in my office was titled "dog." No wonder the Polish always looked at the picture from all angles and asked me questions about it whenever they looked at it.

Sunday, Sept. 2.:

On a rainy, damp morning we departed for Czestochowa, where the annual big agriculture festival was scheduled. Next to it was a large Catholic Church where we attended mass and had a tour of the massive structures. Thousands of people swarmed into the mass. We saw the confession booths and priests sprinkling holy water over items to bless them.

A monk took us into areas not typically seen by visitors. One was a museum of items donated to Mary in thanksgiving for the prayers that had been answered. The wealth of the jewels, art work, gold, silver, and numerous other items was mind-boggling. These items can never be given away or sold because they are gifts to Mary and belong to her.

After lunch we attended the agricultural festival. Displays of tractors and large equipment attracted crowds. I saw many children climbing on tractors which prove that children everywhere like the same thing.

We weren't there long before we needed to leave for Krakow to stay in the ODR building in that area.

Monday, Sept. 3:

For the U.S., today is a holiday, but not for us. We began the day with a 7 a.m. breakfast. This area is very different than any we have visited. Krakow reminds me of New York City, bustling with traffic and people.

Many are tourists from many different areas. Here dress is more like that in the U.S. Fewer women wear high heels. Instead, comfortable shoes and even jeans are seen quite often.

Meals served are good but not quite as fancy, not even tablecloths. We are served food in a ODR.

We visited the salt mines this morning. We climbed down 70 flights of steps and walked 1½ miles to a depth of 430 feet below ground level.

Poland has many salt mines but this one is famous for its salt sculptures. The miners often carved figures into the hardened salt while waiting in the mines. They were not paid for it.

They carved out cathedrals, one where they prayed for safety before going into the mines and the other for thanksgiving for protection when their shift ended.

The whole life of Christ is carved along the walls of one room. Many stories accompany the history of the mines.

Its history reveals that times change, for in the early centuries salt was considered as valuable as silver. It was needed for food preservation and often traded or given as gifts to other countries.

At the Agriculture Academy in Krakow, we participated in a seminar on the role of local authority in creating regional development. Several professors shared their perspectives. We were impressed how fluent many professors were in presenting their topics in English. I wonder how many U.S. professors are able to teach in other languages.

Today we also went seven hours without any food or beverages offered to us. That was a switch from what we had been accustomed.

We visited the Jagiellonian University, an amazing university brimming with history about some of its former students we have read about in our history books such as Galileo and Columbus. We saw an amazing collection of antiques but were not allowed to photograph most of it. The same thing has happened in other places that have very rare unusual pieces.

During the centuries, many pieces of value have been stolen by other countries. To protect what they do have, Poland has a law that items older than World War II cannot be taken outside the country.

If it is a piece handed down through the family for generations, and a family member moves to another country, they must apply for a special permit to remove it.

We went sightseeing in Krakow this evening. The area is wonderful not only for its beauty and history but also for its shopping.

Yes, we finally had opportunities to shop for two hours. Poland is famous for its amber and the shops are filled with it. Amber is resin from trees that has been hardened and polished.

If it has bugs and trees trapped inside of it, it is more valuable. It comes it shades of honey, red, and green.

Poland is famous for its tablecloths, napkins, and laces. In addition are many unique handcrafted items from wood.

Food, Crafts, And History Celebrated At Bird-In-Hand's 'Hometown Heritage Days'

MICHELLE RANCK-KUNJAPPU
Lancaster Farming Staff

BIRD-IN-HAND (Lancaster Co.) — Recently a three-day festival highlighted Bird-in-Hand's food and craft traditions at the area's Hometowne Heritage Days.

A maze cut out of a nearby corn field in the shape of a Pennsylvania Dutch quilt, miniature golfing, a petting zoo, horse-drawn wagon rides, and a performing pig act were part of the entertaiment and education opportunities offered to local residents and those touring the county alike.

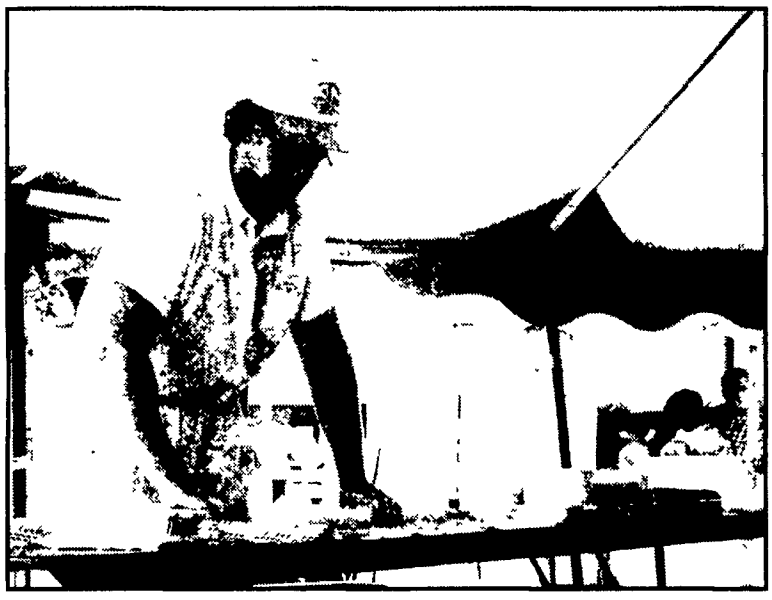
One unique offering at Heritage Days was the feed sack project.

According to Jane Clark Stapel, founder of the "Feed Sack Club," the organization has over 350 members who buy, sell, and trade original feed sacks from the 30's and 40's.

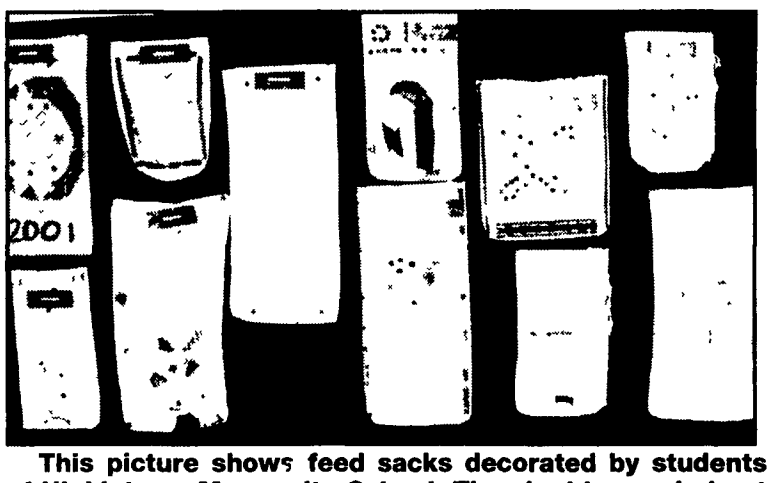
She pointed out that members include citizens of Japan, Australia, Canada, and Germany. Established in 1989, the group has a convention each year in the Lancaster area.

After the fourth and fifth graders at Hinkletown Mennonite School provided a "great response" to a short program about feed sacks, the students were paired with senior citizens at a nearby retirement community, Landis Homes, who took on the role as "grand-pal" for two years.

Ethel Hutchinson, King of Prussia, is joined by Dora Serfass, Easton, to finish up the feed sack quilt that was the result of a project between senior citizens and students from a nearby school.



Brian Strawbridge, Quarryville, manager of the bakery at Good 'N Plenty Restaurant, demonstrated the art of making sticky buns during a local-food demonstration sponsored by food fair foodservice businesses.



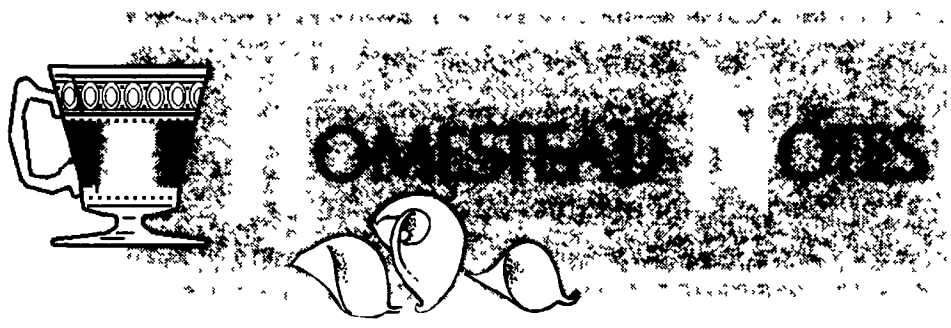
This picture shows feed sacks decorated by students of Hinkletown Mennonite School. They had learned about the beautifully-decorated feed sacks sent back to the U.S. from Belgium in gratitude for the flour sent by the U.S. in World War II.

In anticipation of the upcoming Heritage Days, members of the feed sack club made quilt blocks out of feed sacks that were sent to a club member in Maryland who sewed the blocks into a quilt top. Members signed the pieces in the tradition of a "friendship quilt," said Stapel.

At the festival, then, the students and grand-pals met for the first time. "It tied the generations together," said Stapel. The seniors taught the students how to tie the quilt, an event that was followed by an ice cream festival.

The quilt will be exhibited throughout the Lancaster area and will be sold in the coming year. Next year, plans Stapel, will bring a yet another, different project to involve the students.

Painting feed sacks was another activity which educated the students after they learned about the beautifully-decorated feed sacks sent back to the U.S. from Belgium. Those flour sacks were sent in gratitude for the flour sent by the U.S. in World War II.



Pot pie — a project that requires patience, according to Dale Weaver, vice president of food service at Bird-in-Hand Family Restaurant. Sally Stoltzfus, who makes all the pot pie for the restaurant, sprinkles in the dough.

The dough of cinnamon buns is rolled around the cinnamon and sugar, then sliced and reformed into the circular rolls and placed into a pan filled with caramel, brown sugar, and perhaps peanuts, walnuts, raisins in the bottom of the pan. The rolls can be placed in a warm oven to rise before they are baked, said Strawbridge.

Pot pie is a project that requires patience, according to Dale Weaver, vice president of food service at Bird-in-Hand Family Restaurant. Sally Stoltzfus, who makes all the pot pie for the restaurant, sprinkled in the dough when water reached the proper boiling point during the demonstration. The dough is not put in all at once to avoid large lumps of dough cooking at the bottom before the dough pieces cook and rise to the top.

Besides the food, ice cream, and baked goods offered, visitors could try a salty snack at the "Stoltzfus Potato Chips" stand.

At the "Stoltzfus Potato Chips" stand Kathryn Stoltzfus, Strasburg, above, puts the finishing touches on the homemade chips made from potatoes grown in Lancaster County. Potatoes are sliced, fried in lard, and agitated for one to two minutes to make the chips. At right sisters Barbiann and Sarah Stoltzfus cut the thin slices of potato that will be fried to the crispiness of homemade chips

"Each student decorated a bag and then gave a short dissertation about it," said Stapel.

The feed sack quilt was joined by a log cabin quilt at the fair. During the fair the quilt top, which was donated by a local quilt shop, is finished by volunteers, said Elma Smucker, coordinator of the project. The quilt is sold at the auction and proceeds go to a local library.

Additionally local restaurants hosted a Pennsylvania Dutch Food Fair. Employees at each stand, operated by a local foodservice establishments, presented a demonstration for the festival-goers.

Local dishes such as sticky buns, sausage, shoo-fly pie, apple dumplings, cookie decorating, and canning demonstrations educated passersby on the area's culinary traditions.

Brian Strawbridge, Quarryville, manager of the bakery at Good 'N Plenty Restaurant, demonstrated the art of making sticky buns.

The potatoes, grown in Lancaster County, were sliced, fried in lard, and agitated for one to two minutes to make the chips.

According to Elmer Stoltzfus, Strasburg, "I've been doing this (making potato chips) as long as I can remember at home," Stoltzfus and other family members have recently begun to sell the chips at small fairs, benefit auctions, and other community events.

An artisans tent featured paintings, wood, and pottery work. Each stand featured a hands-on demonstration of each craft.

Other special events of the festival include a bluegrass concert, an auction, and a community hymn sing. A chicken barbecue and omelette breakfast was also served.

Berks County 4-H Awards Livestock Market Projects

How do you honor the top livestock 4-H'er for all of their hard work throughout the year?

For the past four years, the Berks County livestock clubs have been awarding the "Outstanding Market Project" to the top 4-H'er who excels based on their animal placement, showmanship and how they do in a skill-a-thon. They switched the focus from having the best animal to the complete livestock project. Now both the 4-H'ers and the animal are rewarded at the county roundup.

The Berks County livestock clubs decided to switch to this program to reward the 4-H'er for their overall 4-H project, not to reward the person who can go out and buy the high cost animals.

According to John Falter, Berks County livestock extension agent, "Our 4-H'ers do better in the stockman contest and become very knowledgeable on livestock through the Outstanding Market Project."

The breakdown to the program is: 40 percent on animal placement in their respective weight classes, 20 percent on showmanship, and 40 percent based on how well the 4-H'ers do in a skill-a-thon. With this point set up, the 4-H members will not only work with their animals, they are going to better themselves with the knowledge they learn about the industry and the self-confidence they are going to gain from one-on-one communication.

Within the beef club the past three years, the 4-H'ers that were in the running for the Outstanding Market Project, were the same 4-H'ers whose steers were in the championship drive. This is how the program is supposed to work. As long as you work at it, "everyone has a chance to be the outstanding market project for that project year," says Falter.

If you would like to see how well the program is working or if you would like to support the program in Berks County, come to the Berks County 4-H Roundup Show and Sale at the Kutztown Fairgrounds. The schedule is: Roundup Shows, Thursday, Sept. 27; noon — Dairy Beef; 3 p.m. — Beef; 6 p.m. — Swine. Friday, Sept. 28: 8:30 a.m. — Market Goats; 9:30 a.m. — Market Lambs. Combined Livestock Sale — 6 p.m.

Ohio State Researchers Screening Soybean Lines For Virus Resistance

WOOSTER, Ohio — Ohio State University and U.S. Department of Agriculture researchers are screening a variety of soybean lines in the hope at least one will show resistance to a soybean virus relatively new to Ohio.

The bean pod mottle virus, transmitted by the bean leaf beetle, was reported in Ohio the past two years and researchers and growers are monitoring this year's soybean crop for its presence. "Before 1999, this virus had never been found in Ohio," said Anne Dorrance, an OSU plant pathologist. "We found it again in 2000 and that prompted us to begin studying this virus."

Researchers inoculated 15 soybean lines — including food-grade, insect-resistant, grain, and low-fat varieties — with the virus to determine if any of them show resistance and how much the virus may impact yields. "We know very little about this virus, how the bean leaf beetle transmits it, where the virus comes from, or if yield is really affected," said Dorrance. "It could be that the virus does little to yields, but if it does, then hopefully we'll have resistant lines that can be incorporated into existing commercial varieties."

Bean pod mottle virus has been associated with the occurrence of green-stem syndrome, a condition where the stems of the soybean plant remain green up to harvest. "The beans are really dry. They only have seven or eight percent moisture, which is way too low to harvest, and the stems are tough and green," said Dorrance. "In severe cases, the pods become malformed and stand upright on the stem." By inoculating various soybean lines, researchers hope to confirm that the virus is the cause of the symptoms.

Researchers are also studying the bean leaf beetle to determine which generation carries the virus and at what point during the season the insect transmits the virus to the plant. "We are collecting beetles all over the state at various stages of their life cycle and studying which generation is carrying the virus and seeing how that correlates with the appearance of the disease at the end of the year," said Peg Redinbaugh, a USDA plant molecular biologist.

The insect has three generations: an over-wintering generation, a first generation that emerges in mid to late July and a second generation that emerges in mid to late August. "We are trying to find out if the virus is present in the over-winter generation," said Redinbaugh. "Previous data suggests that if the virus is present in this generation, it is not transmitted to soybeans. So, where does the virus come from?" The researchers believe the virus enters the plant at the beginning of the season, in April or May.

The study, which began in June, is expected to be completed by December or January of next year. "We are not sure what the impact of this virus is going to be on growers. I think we are taking a very proactive approach," said Dorrance. "It's important to find the answers before growers have serious problems. I hate standing in a grower's field and saying to him or her that I don't know."

Rutter's Historic 'Wheels' To Be Feature At All-American Dairy Show Collectibles Display

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

YORK (York Co.) — When their Guernsey cows began producing more milk than they could immediately drink, entrepreneur M. Ebert "Bud" Rutter packaged up 13 quarts and delivered it to some neighbors.

That was in 1921, and Rutter had no way of knowing that those 13 quarts of milk would grow into a major regional dairy corporation. The Rutter's 200-acre family farm on the north edge of York, where noted Guernseys still populate the barn, was originally deeded to ancestor Andrew Rutter in May, 1974, by William Penn's grandson, Springetts Penn.

To get his milk to those first neighbor customers, Rutter loaded it up into the family's horse-drawn wagon. The rig was the first of successive types of "wheels" which modernized with the dairy's growth. Four restored examples of Rutter's milk delivery vehicles will be the focal point of a special memorabilia display honoring the Guernsey breed during the All-American Dairy Show at the Farm Show facility later this month.

By 1929, Rutter Bros.'s milk sales routes continued to grow. Brother-in-law, Lehman Crist, joined the business being operated by brothers Bud and George. Crist had no horse and buggy, but he did own a 1927 Chevy two-door sedan. Rising to the business' need for increased delivery mobility, Crist removed the Chevy's back seat to make space for the milk he delivered on York city customer routes.

The two-door Chevy sedan, minus its back seat, became Rutter's first motorized delivery vehicle. As business and delivery demands continued to grow, the Chevy needed some companion fleet. In 1932, the dairy acquired its first two trucks, Diamond T chassis with York Hoover bodies mounted on them.

Three years later, a gas-electric truck from the Thorne/Walker firm, the Thorne Model B-3, was added to the growing fleet. These trucks, especially good in their design for the needs of a city delivery vehicle, were built with either a six-cylinder Amplex engine by Chrysler or a four-cylinder one from Continental.

"The engines had a large electric generator mounted onto the flywheel of the engine, instead of a clutch and transmission," said Jay Crist, the family corporation's historian. "This generator produced electric that operated an electric motor that was mounted in front of the rear differential of the truck. It was connected to the rear by a small drive shaft. This design allowed the manufacturer to install a flat floor, instead of the conventional drive shaft housing, in the walk area from the left side door of the truck to the right side door of the truck."

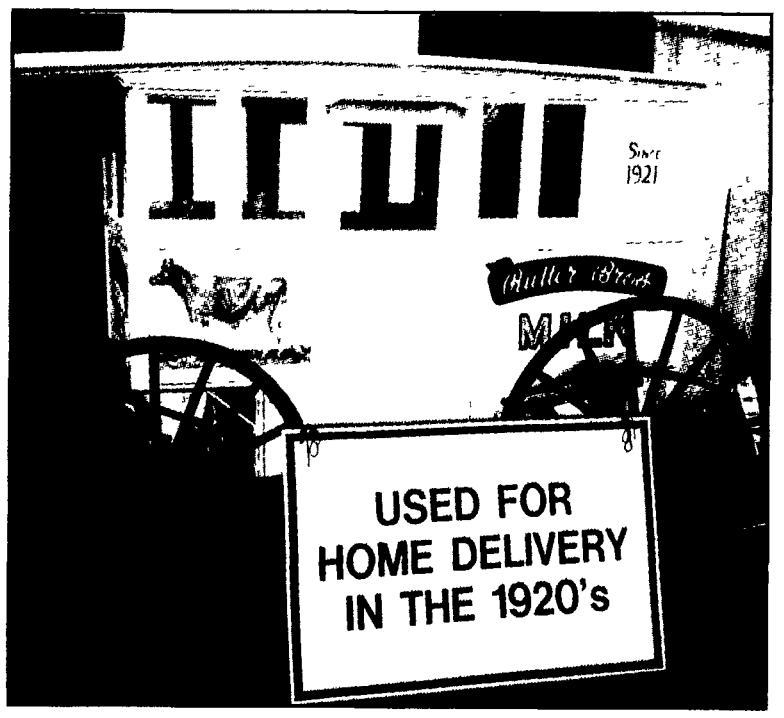
Three years later, the firm built a prototype of an updated version, the Model C-1, smaller, light and more economically priced than the B-3. A company salesman, after traveling up and down the East Coast, returned to the plant with some 60 orders for the trucks. But, before manufacturing could begin, the company would need to build a plant to expand it's production facilities. With the country stuck in the throes of the Great Depression, Thorne/Walker abandoned plans for production of the truck, opting to sell the prototype to the first dairy/bakery that wanted it.

Thus, Rutter Bros. came to have the one and only Thorne Model C-1 delivery truck ever made. It ran milk routes for them until 1952 and was then sold to a Harrisburg area bakery which used it for another decade or more. Then, the truck vanished into history.

About 1980, Rutters decided to undertake restoration of representatives of the "wheels" which had helped propel their growth. Since "Bud" Rutter's horse-drawn wagon had long vanished, a search was made across the state for a similar one. Refurbished and restored, that representative old milk wagon became a public relations and advertising tool, turning up at store openings, parades and similar social/business events.

"A 1967 stand-and-drive Ford F-350 was the last of its type delivery milk truck we used on a regular route," says Crist. "It was taken out of service in 1993; we then ran it through our body shop for minor refurbishing and a complete paint job."

Finding the "missing link" in the ascending line of delivery vehicles was considerably more of a challenge, since only one had ever been made. About 1985, Dale Crist embarked on a personal mission to locate the long-lost Thorne C-1 — if it existed at all. After searching for three or four years, he met one day an individual who thought he had seen such a vehicle, parked behind his uncle's chicken coop on a farm in northern Pennsylvania.



Rutters delivered their milk for the first couple of years in a wagon. This milk wagon is typical of the wagons used during 1921 era.

Crist hastened north to check out the mystery vehicle, delighted to find that it was indeed the lone Thorne C-1 prototype. Rutters bought it, hauled the long-forgotten truck back to York and delivered it to a local restoration firm in 1990. Goal was to have it completed for Rutter's 75th anniversary, which coincidentally coincided with the 250th anniversary of York County, in 1996.

With the restoration about 95 percent completed, the Thorne, along with the refurbished milk wagon and stand-and-drive-truck, was mounted on a flatbed trailer and proudly unveiled to the public during the county's 250th anniversary parade through downtown York.

Because of its uniqueness, the 1936 Thorne gas-electric truck has been featured in various publications of both historic and transportation interest.

In the Sept./Oct. 2000 issue of "Wheels of Time," the newsletter of the American Truck Historical Society, the son of a Thorne electrician who helped design the vehicles wrote about Rutter's truck treasure. Barnard Florey, of Virginia, became familiar with the truck when he was just a lad, then helped with the restoration effort.

The Divco Club of America ran a large, front page photo of it on their May, 2001, newsletter and it was the featured display vehicle at their June convention held in Grantsville.

Visitors to the Pennsylvania All-American Dairy Show will be able to view these historic Rutter's "wheels," along with other dairy industry memorabilia, during the show's run, Sept. 23-27 at the Farm Show complex. Approximately 60 vendors are expected to display items of interest and antiquity during the fourth annual "All-Dairy Collectibles and Antiques Show," at the Dairy Activities Center, located in the Northeast Building.

For additional information on the show display, contact the All-American Dairy Show at (717) 787-2905; during show week, call (717) 787-4162.

Greatest Gathering Of Guernsey Antiques Begins Today

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — An unprecedented gathering of Guernsey antiques and collectibles will be the feature of the All-American Dairy Antiques and Collectibles Show to be conducted at the Farm Show Complex, Harrisburg. As one of the exciting events of All-American Dairy Week, the show, attracting antique "buffs" and collectible "searchers" begins on Saturday, Sept. 22, at 10 a.m.

Dr. Darwin Braund, show coordinator comments, this will be the greatest gathering of Guernsey antiques and collectibles offered for sale or on exhibition under one roof.

An opportunity unlike any other awaits everyone to appreciate the past in our dairy industry. Cherished items from private collections will be on display along with the opportunity to meet collectors from over 10 different states. Articles from Rutter's Dairy and Patti McMurray of Pennsylvania, David Cochard of Maryland, Bob Jones of Indiana, and many others will be on exhibit. A special opportunity to view articles from Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Peachey of East Earl, will be offered during the entire show. Collectibles from their family operated door to door bottling and delivery business will be on display. A time for reminiscing, appreciating, searching, and purchasing rare and unique items will be offered.

Highlighting the show, an Ice Cream Social will be conducted on Sunday, Sept. 23, from 1-4 p.m. This open house will be sponsored by Turkey Hill Dairy. The introduction of the exhibitors will begin at 3 p.m.

The Dairy Antiques and Collectibles Show will be conducted in the Dairy Activity Center, located in the Northeast Hall. Hours are as follows: Saturday, Sept. 22, 10 a.m.-5 p.m.; Sunday, Sept. 23, 10 a.m.-8 p.m.; Social Hours: 1 p.m.-4 p.m.; Monday and Tuesday, Sept. 24-25, 8 a.m.-5 p.m.; Wednesday, Sept. 26, 8 a.m.-8 p.m.

THE ANTIQUE DETECTIVE

North Carolina Pottery Unique And Collectible

Old or new ceramics made in North Carolina have found a place in collector's hearts. During the years, North Carolina potters have developed a style that is strictly their own. "There have been periods when North Carolina potters were influenced by styles from other countries, mainly German, English, and Viennese," said Barbara Perry, curator of decorative arts at the Mint Museum of Art, Charlotte. "Now North Carolina is setting the pace."

At least 500 full-time potters are working in the state. The state's pottery history dates back to the colonial English and German potters. They introduced slip decorated earthenware plates and utilitarian items. Later influences were the African slaves who secretly modeled ritual spiritual jugs used in their previous homelands. During the 18th and 19th centuries utilitarian pieces and whiskey jugs were the chief items.

By the early 20th century, Western Carolina Anglo-American potters had adopted the African forms adding English characteristics. These were known as Voo Doo, grotesque and devil jugs. They used exaggerated facial features. At about the same time Oriental shapes were introduced by artists moving into the state.

Many unique forms and styles were introduced during the Civil War, such as jug rings. They were used by Confederate soldiers to carry water and are known as "swirl ware," a combination of light and dark clays. Swirl ware was later perfected and still used today by noted potters Burlon Craig and Charlie Lisk.

Early North Carolina pottery plates and sugar jars are the most common pieces.Unlike the Pennsylvania pieces of the 19th century there are no birds, animals or flower decorations.Many were abstract forms.

Highly collectible is what is known as Pisgah Forest Pottery made in Arden, North Carolina, near Asheville. It was begun in the 1900s by W.B. Stephen and his mother. Pisgah is known for its beautiful turquoise blue glazes, sometimes crackled. Stephen pottery is also known for its' "freehand cameo" technique. It is similar to Wedgwood's jasperware with raised white designs on a color ground. The pottery is marked "Pisgah Forest Pottery," sometimes with a rough design of a potter at work. The cameo pieces are marked "Stephen." Pisgah Forrest pieces can sell in the high hundreds.

CLUES: Highly collectible is Jugtown Pottery, made in Jugtown, North Carolina beginning in 1921. Juliana and Jacques Busbee brought new life and interest in North Carolina pottery. After many changes and the death of the Busbees, the pottery is still operating. The old marks "Jugtown ware," are still used. The early pieces were adaptations of early pottery. Utilitarian pieces included pie plates, candle sticks, etcetera. All pieces were glazed. Pieces made for the New York market were Chinese style. Chinese blue and green as well as "frogskin" glazes were used. Prices for finer examples sell for over a thousand dollars. If a piece can be attributed to Ben Owens, one of Jugtown's most renowned potters, it can be tagged $2,000 or more.

Many collectors are buying the contemporary avant-garde ceramic sculptures as well as utilitarian pieces. Collectible pieces can be found by unknown artisans at the many local fairs as well as the pottery "superstars" displaying their work in galleries and at the annual conference of the National Council on Education for the Ceramic arts, held in March at Charlotte, N.C.

those collecting all types of Guernsey memorabilia. This year the All-Dairy Antiques and Collectibles Show conducted in conjunction with the All-American Show, will be hosting the largest gathering of Guernsey items ever for public exhibit. American Dairy Show is proud to exhibit selected items from private collections. Articles from the Rutter's Dairy, Patti McMurray of Pennsylvania, David Cochard of Missouri, Bob Jones of Indiana, and many others will be displayed. Milk bottles and other items from the extensive collection owned by Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Peachey will be featured. The Peacheys began their collection when they retired from their active dairy farm in 1993. Some of their favorite pieces selected are three copper milk jugs from the Martin's Guernsey Dairy, a one-gallon butter churn from the Lister Farm which was located in Newton Square, and a very rare, unique "cone-shaped" milk carton from the WWII era. The Windsor Lake Farm was one of the dairies to offer milk in this new style of packaging.

During WWII, the need to market disposable containers became necessary, and the idea of a waxed container was formed. A cardboard shaped waxed cone was created and later became the square bottomed milk carton still in use today. A glass bottle imprinted with the four types of Guernsey milk will also be available for viewing. In 1937, the American Guernsey Cattle Club organized an advisory council to promote the distribution of milk on a "fat basis." By 1951, milk was sold in four percentages of fat content ranging from the "Golden Guernsey" at four percent and higher to the Gurnzskim, which was a non-fat milk.

Raymond and Elma Peachey began their Guernsey dairy in 1947 when they purchased the Hemlock Hill Farm, and the milk bottling and marketing business from the Doyle family. The farm was located in Elverson, Chester County, and became known as Warwick Manor Farm and Dairy. They began marketing Golden Guernsey milk produced by the herd of 25 cows, which were milked by hand. The raw milk was marketed in glass quart bottles bearing "Peachey Dairy." At that time, many dairy farms marketed their milk in glass bottles bearing the emblem of their farm and the trademark of the National Guernsey Association. The trademark was a milk jug with "Golden Guernsey" written across the front. The bottles were topped with a cardboard lid with many different patterns. A very popular one was: "Look under the cap," referring the cream that would settle to the top of the bottle beginning at the base of the neck and continuing until it touched the stopper

When the farm was sold in 1993, the milk processing and delivery business ended. The entire herd was dispersed and the Peacheys moved to East Earl, where they reside today. Collecting Guernsey antiques has become quite an enjoyable hobby for them. An opportunity to meet Raymond and Elma Peachey will be on Saturday and Sunday afternoons as they visit the show during the All-American Dairy Week.

Lou Ann In Poland

our suitcases, which are already stuffed with all the literature and gifts they have given us.

At 10 p.m., our Polish guides were still showing us the sights of this amazing city. Yvonne, who has some physical problems, decided to come back to the center in a taxi. I came back with her so that I could write an update in this diary.

Unfortunately, when I got back, I discovered my notes had been locked in someone else's room. So it's 12:45 a.m., and I'm trying to finish this in hopes of mailing the information tomorrow.

First thing listed on the schedule tomorrow starts at 5:30 a.m. So much to do and so little time.

Tuesday, Sept. 4:

After a tour of Wawel Hill with its royal castle and cathedral, Nancy Crago, who leads the team, was to be interviewed by the Krakow radio station.

At the last minute, they requested that I come along because they had heard an American journalist was visiting.

Print journalism is different than radio. Nevertheless, I felt quite comfortable with their questions.

We traveled to Charsznica where we met a newspaper editor covering our tour. He gave me several copies of his newspaper, which is four-color and printed on quality paper. I only wish I could read the copies.

In Charsznica, we visited several cabbage farms and processing plants, which I plan to write about in a separate article.

Kathryn Wentzel and I were assigned to the same host family for two nights in the area of Charsznica. This family lives in luxury and it is fun to be part of it.

Mr. Micyk said that at one time it was necessary to for the Polish to go to America to earn money and send back home. But now, he asked, "Why should I go to America? I can become richer here than anywhere in the world."

He and his wife Lucian operate an import and export business to the Czech Republic. As far as we can be able to determine with our limited conversation, he exports Polish produce that he buys from farmers and imports ceramic tile, plastic containers, etc.

He said he was a farmer until a few years ago. Then he purchased a truck and now hires three drivers and has three tractor and trailers for the business. He and his wife work together but list their businesses separately for tax purposes. He also continues to farm eight hectors or about 18 acres.

When we arrived last night, we had an elaborate meal on beautiful Polish china. Some of their relatives were here, including a brother who is an English teacher. The brother spoke superb English so we could communicate very well.

They also have access to the Internet and I sent some e-mail messages to home, but we could not get the disc to transmit because I don't understand Polish commands and they didn't seem to know how to mail attachments.

The large kitchen has tile and Corian countertops. They have a miniature television in the kitchen and a larger one in the family room on which they had American sitcoms. We ate in an elegant dining room with a fireplace and many windows.

Both Kathryn and I had separate bedrooms. I slept in the 5-year-old's bedroom lined with shelves filled with every toy imaginable, similar to American toys.

Wednesday, Sept. 5:

Breakfast was at 7 a.m. with our host families and the school at 7:30. We traveled in a fire truck van for a two-hour trip to Auschwitz Concentration Camp.

Although it was raining and a bit dreary outside, the outside of the camp did not appear as morbid as I expected. Brick barracks and tree-lined streets gave it the appearance of an old village.

Perhaps I had heard this before, but I did not remember that the Germans confiscated the Auschwitz army barracks as a place to incarcerate and kill Polish leaders, artists, musicians, and everything connected to advance Polish culture.

The wrought iron gate leading into Auschwitz reads, "Work makes you free." What irony! Once inside the buildings all the horror that happened there became reality — the gas chambers, ovens, starvation cell, standing cell, torture and interrogation rooms, and the buildings where children, women, and men were used as guinea pigs for scientific experimentation.

Although the Germans tried to destroy all evidence when they saw they were losing the war, left behind were two tons of women's hair that had been cut off the victims with the intention of using it for weaving cloth.

Thousands of suitcases, eyeglasses, shoes, and clothing are on display.

Everything was heartbreaking, but seeing tiny infant clothing and shoes, and knowing children the ages of my grandchildren suffered this horror, made it even worse.

Our group shed tears and shared sobs and hugs. Although it was not a pleasant experience, it is necessary to remember. For as George Santayana wrote, "Those who forget history are condemned to repeat it." We had to push away our somber thoughts as we returned to our host families.

Our host family again had the English teacher as a guest. We enjoyed a dinner that lasted several hours.

Their 6-year-old son entertained us with his antics. He seemed to think his American visitors were quite funny.

Our hostess gave both Kathryn and I a lovely china tea and saucer set and larger plate. The Polish china features delicate roses and gold etching.

Her gift was unexpected. I only hope we can return their wonderful hospitality when they come to the states. They plan to vacation in Florida within the next two years, rent a car, and drive to Pennsylvania.

Thursday, Sept. 6:

We visited a vegetable export business in Niegardow this morning. The business had been established within the last 10 years to buy produce from local farmers and export to Czech Republic, Ukraine, Russia, and some other European countries.

Much of the work is done manually in packaging, but the produce is exported within a day of being picked. It looked like super quality. In addition to basic vegetables, some varieties that we were not familiar with were green cauliflower, which is a cross between cauliflower and broccoli, and the root cellar, said to be good for "men who have failure."

We spent about four hours traveling to our next stop, crammed into the fire truck van. One of the passengers in the front thought we were going to crash when we came to a sudden halt and screamed, which rudely awakened those of us who had managed to doze fitfully. We had no seatbelts, and a few slid to the floor when we came to unexpected stops. The further back one sits, the more bumpy — no shock absorbers, so there is some hassling over trying to get the best seats.

No doubt that ride had something to do with the attitude that seemed to prevail today: I want to go home.

The excitement of a new culture is fading a bit, the food is becoming more common, and we are tired of dragging suitcases from one place to the next while being crammed together in a van. We miss our families and free time to think or do a few incidentals. I have barely had time to scribble a few postcards to friends. The most common complaint about this trip is that we are busy from early morning to late at night seven days a week.

But what is there to complain about when compared to the horrors suffered by prisoners at concentration camps? When we arrived at the Boguchwada ODR, we had lunch at 3 p.m. Team members Kathryn Wentzel and Cathy Southwick presented seminars on 4-H and improving childcare for children and youth.

They took us to town for an hour of shopping, before we returned for supper.

The diary from Sept. 7-11 appeared in last week's edition.

Wednesday, Sept. 12

We visited our first dairy farm today. This farm has 20 cows, quite a large operation considering that the average dairy farm has only three cows.

The animal breeding adviser for the ODR explained that a special agreement between Israel and Poland enabled a dairy specialist from Israel to stay in Poland for three years and provided some equipment for milking, pasteurization, and analyzing animal feed.

Israel's assistance has helped farmers significantly increase production, but they still have much to achieve the same production as Israel. Improved genetics through AI is helping to improve production.

It was a tie stanchion barn, but the cows were in pasture during our visit, and we did not see the cows close up. In the barn, I noticed some bags of calf formula from Land O' Lakes.

Our next stop was the ODR in Brwinow where we are scheduled to stay until our departure. The staff treat us wonderfully. They are very sympathetic for what has happened in America and have tried to contact airports and find English-printed newspapers. Unfortunately, they couldn't find English news but they made copies of Polish newspapers so we can see the photos of the destruction.

They said the exchange program between the U.S. and Poland has had tremendously benefitted the 4-H program in their region. The first 4-H program was established in 1991 and has grown to more than 400 clubs with 7,000 members.

One of the leaders said she just returned from a trip to Pennsylvania where she stayed with Ken and Connie Rutt, Quarryville, among others.

Two of the three winners of a prestigious environmental competition throughout Poland were 4-H members, and this has helped give the 4-H program even more publicity.

We are unable to see or hear any English-speaking television or radio programs, and are concerned about what is happening in the U.S.

Thursday, Sept. 13

This morning we visited a graveyard and cemetery where 2,115 Polish were executed by the Germans during World War II. The men had been rounded up and executed simply because they were Polish.

Small crosses on the tombstones stretch from end to end. It is a very sobering moment. We wonder if this could happen in our country.

We visited the Kampinaski Park, which has a very modern building with wonderful displays of wildlife. The park works in cooperation with the Indiana Dunes Park in the U.S. The Polish park's conservation program is unique in Europe and has brought back many endangered birds and lynx.

We took a walk in the forest, and for a short time the sun shone. We haven't seen the sun in days.

They served us a lunch of perogies, which were the best I have ever tasted.

We visited a produce market, which was huge, with six lanes of traffic coming into it. The expansive grounds seem more like an airport than a produce market. Buyers and sellers from all over Poland meet here to bargain. We saw some of the most spectacular flowers I've ever seen in my life.

The produce market has a state-of-art waste treatment plant. They use a scientific formula of green, brown, and vegetation refuse that turns into compost that they sell for $20 a ton. Waste water is turned into clear water in a special process.

A large press conference had been planned, but the Polish leaders decided to downplay it to protect our safety. About 10 press people from newspapers and radio interviewed us. I talked with two reporters from agricultural newspapers. They gave me copies of their papers that look more like magazines than newspapers.

"Anyone in Poland who has a job like mine is very happy," a photojournalist told me. "So many people want jobs but can't find them."

In the evening, we received certificates for completing the exchange program and presented gifts to each other.

We shared our observations of the trip. There were so many things that happened that I didn't write about. One of the things I wanted to mention was that during the international symposium, two of our team members spoke. Marcy Tutor showed slides of her farm and spoke about the farm vacation program in Pennsylvania. Sarah Siegel spoke credit card usage and debt. Mostly the Polish people are inclined to pay cash for their purchases. But many farmers need to borrow money to expand if they want to become members of the EU so credit card usage is a timely topic.

We teased Sarah that she qualifies to become the U.S. ambassador to Poland since she spoke at an international conference in Poland.

Despite the uncertainty of the terrorists attacks on America, we are able to laugh together. I can not say enough about the gracious hospitality of the Polish people toward us.

Poland participated in a day of solidarity for our nation and had a moment of silence for the victims of the act of terrorism.

We are thankful to be in a friendly nation but still our hearts yearn to go home as soon as possible.

Friday, Sept. 14

This was the day we were to have flown home. Although the international airports opened for a short period, they closed again. Nancy Crago, our group leader spent hours on the phone trying to arrange alternate flights for us. We were promised we could fly to Paris, then to Boston, and on to Philadelphia. At 3 a.m. we lugged our luggage down three flights of steps and to the airport. We were disappointed but not surprised to hear our flights were canceled again.

The ODR graciously attempted to entertain us by taking us to see the famous composer Chopin's childhood home. It was interesting and beautifully landscaped. The gardens offered some serenity to the turmoil we felt in being separated from our families.

Our airline told us we could not fly out before Thursday, Sept. 20. Six more days. How can I endure it?

Nancy Crago says that we are safer here than in the U.S. Our heads tell us she is right but our hearts cry out for home and family. The uncertainty is torture. What if the U.S. declares war? Would we be stuck in Poland for weeks, months?

What solace is it to be safe but separated from our families?

Saturday, Sept. 15

After hours on the phone, a flight for three members of our group was secured. They did not have a lot of confidence, but the flight took off for Paris and we trust they were able to complete their journey.

We went to the airport, and through negotiations, two more members ticketed a flight. Within an hour they were off.

We rejoiced with them, but a part of us hates to be separated. We felt almost like family after more than three weeks of togetherness.

The remaining four members of the team — me included — spent the day at the airport trying to secure a flight. The problem is that our original airline does not have an office in Poland and Nancy must spend hours on the phone on hold, cut off, and switched to different departments. We must receive authorization from USAir before we can apply for a transfer to standby status with another airline.

Lots of promises are made but not fulfilled.

The airport is jammed with crowds of people vying for seats. Police, storm troopers, and soldiers with guns are inside and outside.

I am impressed with the dedication that many Polish people have in trying to help us. Two women in particular, Justina and Gorzata, spent hours with us at the airport and transporting us back and forth. I wondered if I would be as quick to sacrific my weekend plans to spend hours in an airport with foreigners.

We were not successful in obtaining passage on Saturday, and returned to the ODR hotel for another night.

Although we do not have access to English television programming, we were able to pick up a newspaper at the airport.

Sunday, September 16

We arrived at the airport about 9 a.m. determined to fly.

Bioenergy Program Signup Continues

WASHINGTON, D.C. - Signup for a USDA Bioenergy Program will continue through Sept. 28, 2001, for fiscal year 2002 program payments. The program stimulates industrial consumption of agricultural commodities by promoting their use in bioenergy production, a significant element of President Bush's energy development policy.

"President Bush's energy policy calls for increased production of renewable energy sources," said Agriculture Secretary Ann M. Veneman. "This program provides incentives for agriculture to be part of this nation's energy solutions and we expect even greater production levels this year."

Last year, ethanol producers committed to expanding production by 246 million gallons, and biodiesel producers by 36 million gallons. Increased bioenergy production helps strengthen the income of soybean, corn, and other producers and lessens U.S. dependence on traditional energy sources.

Under the program, USDA will make up to $150 million in payments to commercial bioenergy (ethanol and biodiesel) producers in the United States that increase their bioenergy production from eligible commodities between October 1, 2001, and September 30, 2002. Payments will be based on bioenergy production increases from eligible commodities compared to the same time period a year earlier.

"The program boosts ethanol and biodiesel production at a time when the transportation fuel market is tight, helping keep fuel prices competitive," said USDA Chief Economist Keith Collins. "It also expands demand for corn and other grains used in ethanol production and creates new markets for oilseed crops. The program means increased net returns for ethanol and biodiesel processors, which will encourage expanded production capacity for these fuels."

To be eligible under the program, ethanol producers must produce and sell ethanol commercially and have authority from the Bureau of Alcohol Tobacco and Firearms to produce ethanol for fuel or sell denatured ethanol rendered unfit for beverage use. All fuel ethanol production is eligible, however, ethanol under 200 proof will be converted to 200 proof gallons before payment calculations are made. Biodiesel producers must produce and sell biodiesel commercially and be registered and in good standing with the Environmental Protection Agency.

Eligible commodities for FY 2002 are barley, corn, grain sorghum, oats, rice, wheat, soybeans, sunflower seed, canola, crambe, rapeseed, safflower, sesame seed, flaxseed, mustard seed, and cellulosic crops (such as switchgrass and short rotation trees) grown on farms in the United States and its territories for the purpose of and used in producing fuel grade ethanol and/or biodiesel.

Any bioenergy producer who expects to have eligible production between October 1, 2001, and September 30, 2002, must enroll in the program during the signup period. For example, a bioenergy producer with a new plant that is expected to become operational in July 2002 must enroll that plant in the program by September 28, 2001, to be eligible to receive program payments on that new production during FY 2002.

Following the signup period, USDA will announce whether the signup resulted in more funds potentially being needed than the $150 million available. If so, USDA will determine and apply a factor to all payments during the year to keep program expenditures within $150 million. Other than ethanol production from corn and biodiesel production from soybeans, USDA will announce for each additional eligible commodity enrolled in the program for FY 2002 the applicable gallon conversion factor that will be used and how payments will be determined.

Producers wishing to enroll in the program should obtain a Bioenergy Program Agreement, Form CCC-850 and instructions for completing it from either the Kansas City Commodity Office, Contract Reconciliation Division, PO Box 419205, STOP 8758, Kansas City, MO 64141-6205, phone (816) 926-6525; or via the Internet at http://www.fsa.usda.gov/daco/bio—daco.htm.

Once a producer has been determined to be eligible and accepted into the program, additional instructions will be provided on how to submit quarterly applications for payments under the program. Additional terms and conditions are available in the applicable regulations.

out. The travel agents insisted we could not get a flight before Thursday, but we heard that Lot, a Polish airline, flies to Newark and JFK every day and might have empty seats.

At our insistence the travel agent checked it out and found out there were empty seats. But we still needed authorization from USAir. After hours on the phone and being sent from one place to another, it seemed as if a technicality would keep us from flying home. USAir claimed they telexed the authorization, but no one could find it.

To make a frustrating story short, eventually the ticket agent hand wrote information on our tickets and we boarded the 4:45 p.m. flight to Newark. The nonstop flight proved uneventful and we landed safely in Newark to the applause of passengers. After going through customs, picking up our luggage, I met my husband and son for a joyful reunion. We arrived home shortly after midnight on Sunday.

The trip proved to be educational, exciting, and entertaining, but there is no place like home and family with loved ones.

Over 400 Persons Attend InfoAg Conference

NORCROSS, Ga. — The 2001 Information Agriculture Conference — InfoAg 2001 — completed a successful three-day run Aug. 7, 8 and 9 in Indianapolis, Ind.

More than 400 participants from the U.S., Canada, and several other countries attended the event at the Adam's Mark Hotel-Airport.

InfoAg 2001 was organized by the Potash & Phosphate Institute (PPI), Potash & Phosphate Institute of Canada (PPIC), and Foundation for Agronomic Research (FAR), in cooperation with other partners, sponsors and supporters.

"This was the fifth Information Agriculture Conference, and each one has been successful in its own way. Early analysis of evaluation comments indicates participants found timely information at InfoAg 2001," said Dr. Paul E. Fixen, PPI senior vice president.

Program partners for InfoAg 2001 included CyberDealer and CropLife magazines (Meister Publishing) and Indiana Prairie Farmer/Prairie Farmer magazine (Farm Progress Companies).

InfoAg 2001 was made possible in part through a grant from the USDA-CSREES Initiative for Future Agriculture and Food Systems (IFAFS) program.

Also cooperating as sponsors were ESRI, Ag Retailer/Crop Decisions magazines, John Deere Ag Management Solutions, Ag Education & Consulting (AEC), and the United Soybean Board. SOILTEQ and Monsanto were supporters of InfoAg 2001.

Dr. Harold F. Reetz Jr., PPI midwest director, served as conference planning coordinator for InfoAg 2001.

More than 100 speakers, presenters, and trainers addressed sessions on the latest developments in precision agriculture, site-specific nutrient management, information technology, and business management topics. Nearly 50 companies and organizations were exhibitors at the conference.

As with past conferences, participants represented a cross section of people in agriculture and related work, including farm managers, fertilizer dealers, seed trade representatives, consultants, Certified Crop Advisers (CCAs), government agency personnel, information technology workers, university researchers, teachers, extension specialists, software and equipment suppliers, students, and international participants.

America's Top Horses Will Compete In Harrisburg Oct. 11-20

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Fierce competition for riders of all ages and horses of many breeds will highlight the 56th annual Pennsylvania National Horse Show, Oct. 11-20. The show, which accepts 1,100 of North America's exceptional horses and riders, is America's largest indoor all-breed horse show and one of Pennsylvania's premier sporting event.

Since its inception in 1945, the event, conducted at Harrisburg's Farm Show Arena, has raised more than $1.4 million for youth literacy, educational and recreational programs through the Harrisburg Kiwanis Youth Foundation.

In addition to 10 days of virtually non-stop competition for nearly $300,000 in prize money, the show offers extraordinary entertainment, shopping, and family fun.

Ten national championships are decided at the PNHS. The American Horse Shows Association/Black Entertainment Television National Junior Jumper Team Championship, conducted Friday night, Oct. 12, is one of only three USA Junior Olympics-Equestrian events. America's most skillful under-18 jumper rider will be named individual champion on Saturday night, Oct. 13. More than 200 young riders culminate a year of competition on Sunday, Oct. 14 as they vie for the American Horse Shows Association/ Pessoa & Miller's National Hunter Seat Equitation Medal Championship.

Many of the young national champions go on to represent the U.S. in international and Olympic Grand Prix competition of the type featured at the PNHS nightly Tuesday, Oct. 16 through closing night, Saturday, Oct. 20. America's best Grand Prix jumper riders, including Olympians, thrill audiences with blazing speed and athleticism as they clear jumps up to five feet high and six feet wide.

A week of varied equestrian competition begins Monday, Oct. 15, as the region's foxhunters gather for Hunt Night, an evening of friendly rivalry. For nearly 150 years, foxhunting has remained a strong tradition in Pennsylvania, home to more hunts than any other state except Virginia. Teams and individuals test their hunting skills over fences, in the North American Fox Hunting Horn Blowing Championships, and in races over fences for feisty and adorable Jack Russell terriers. A foxhound exhibition will showcase the types of hounds used in hunting in this region.

Spectators will be treated to an amazing variety of equestrian athleticism. Soaring Grand Prix jumpers, fiery, high-stepping American Saddlebreds and their tiny Hackney pony cousins, thundering draft horses in hitches of one to six, easy-going western horses, and roadster horses and ponies who race at top speed take turns delighting and amusing the audience.

The $50,000 Budweiser Grand Prix de Penn National, the show's richest and most prestigious event conducted Saturday night, Oct. 20, will be taped for broadcast on ESPN.

An American icon, the Budweiser Clydesdales will perform nightly Wednesday through Saturday, Oct. 17-20. Relay teams of speedy canines — from tiny Yorkshire terriers to massive Great Danes — will retrieve and race over hurdles in an exhibition of flyball, the world's fastest growing dog sport, Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday, Oct. 17, 18 and 20.

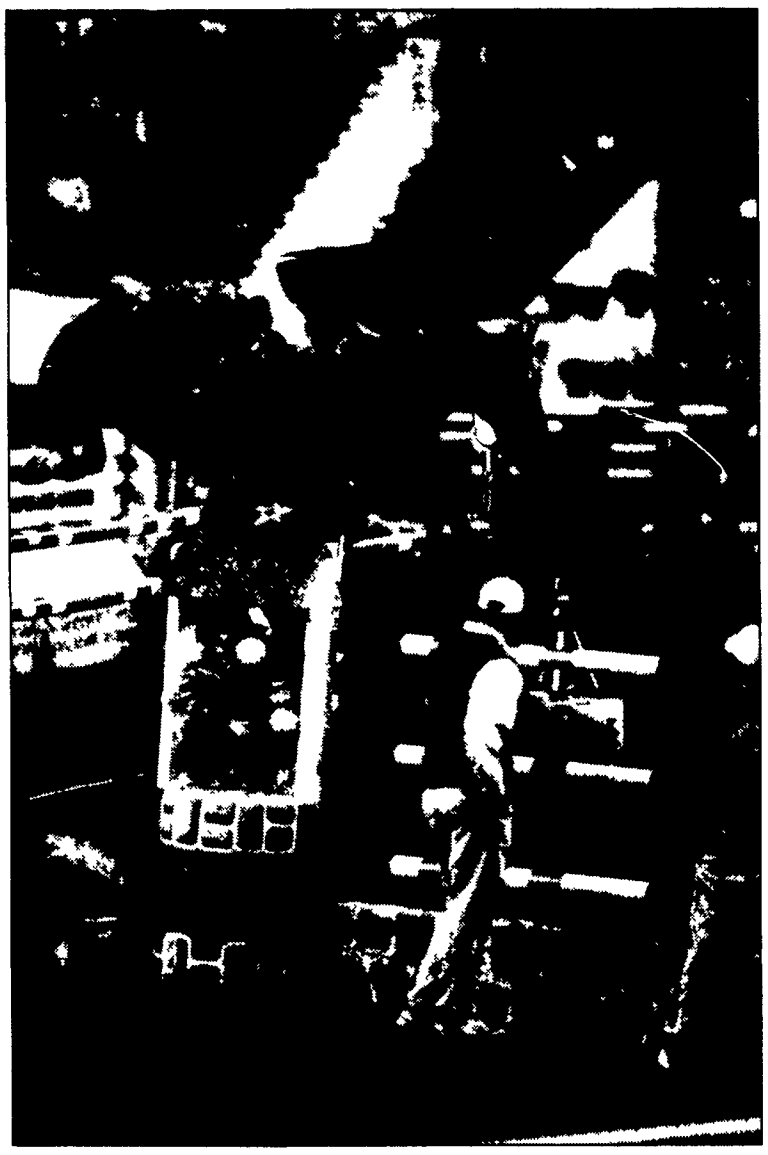
Always a crowd favorite, Jack Russell terriers fly over fences Saturday, Monday and Friday nights, Oct. 13, 15 and 19.

The Valley Forge Military Academy & College Band will appear at the horse show Saturday evening, Oct. 20, as it has done for the last 52 years.

More than 50 boutiques travel from Palm Beach, Fla., Aspen, Colo., and points in between to display their jewelry, crafts, clothing, gifts and horse equipment and give spectators an early start on their Christmas shopping.

Special family days at the horse show are Wendy's Kids First Saturday, Oct. 13, and Friday night, Oct. 19. Children will enjoy free pony rides and face painting, and on Oct. 13, hands-on activities by STARS volunteers of Whitaker Center for Science and the Arts. One child under 12 is admitted free with a paying adult courtesy of Wendy's on Oct. 13, and of Members First Credit Union on Friday, Oct. 19.

The show begins about 8 a.m. daily, and runs until about 9:30 p.m. Oct. 11, 6 p.m. Oct. 14, and until about 11 p.m. Oct. 12, 13 and 15 to 20. General admission is $10, $5 for seniors and children ages 12 and under, except Oct. 20, when all general admission tickets are $10. Reserved seating is available Grand Prix Night, Saturday, Oct. 20; prices range from $15 to $25. All performance passes with reserved seating Oct. 20 are $100. For more information or a free brochure, phone (717) 975-3677 or visit www.panational.org.



America's greatest and finest horses return to Harrisburg's Farm Show Arena Oct. 11-20 for the 56th annual Pennsylvania National Horse Show.

GPS Guidance System May Replace Industry Standard

LONDON, Ohio — The industry standard of using foam markers to accurately apply fertilizers and chemicals in the field is taking a back seat to GPS technology.

Guidance systems that use GPS (Global Positioning System) receivers are helping farmers to accurately apply chemicals or fertilizers within a six-to-10 inch distance from each application, eliminating skips, preventing overlay, and providing more even distributions.

"The technology will save farmers money in wasted chemicals and also reduce driver fatigue because they won't be guessing where they should be in the field when making applications," said Matt Sullivan, an Ohio State University Extension program specialist. "I've used these systems before. They are wonderful and highly accurate. As a farmer myself, I'm ready to go out and buy one."

OSU agricultural engineers are evaluating several company-made guidance systems for accuracy and overall performance. The data will be displayed at Farm Science Review, Sept. 18-20 at Molly Caren Agricultural Center in London, Ohio. "We've had a lot of farmers asking questions about how to use them and which ones are the best," said Sullivan. "This project is giving us the opportunity to list the advantages and disadvantages of each unit."

The guidance systems have been designed to replace the foam marker system, the industry standard technique that leaves foam at various distances in the field for farmers to eyeball when applying chemicals. "Some of the booms on the equipment are 90 feet wide and if a farmer is looking 45 feet away for foam markers and trying to drive 10 MPH in a straight line, it's virtually impossible to be accurate," said Sullivan. "The guidance systems either have visual display screens or light bars that tell the farmer exactly where he needs to go. Guys are tired of looking at foam." The guidance systems also enable farmers to work in their fields at night since they aren't relying on the foam markers to guide them.

Sullivan said the cost of the systems might keep some farmers from jumping on the technology bandwagon. Prices range from $4,000 for a light bar that plugs into a cigarette lighter to a $14,000 visual display screen that can create maps to show where areas need to be sprayed, can record the time a farmer enters and leaves a field, and has an audible alarm system that signals when an area has already been sprayed.

"The good thing about these systems is that they are compatible with existing GPS receivers. I've found that if a receiver has a five-hertz update rate, most guidance systems would run off of it," said Sullivan. "So if a farmer has a GPS receiver with this modification, then he may only have to spend $2,000 to get the guidance system."

Sullivan said that some companies are already developing fully automatic guidance systems, that when installed on a tractor or sprayer, guide the equipment without any intervention from the driver. "It's an incredible system. The auto pilot system operates on hydraulics and the guidance system controls the hydraulic system and calculates distan using a more accurate GPS, lled real-time kinematic GPS. its accuracy is in centimeters," said Sullivan.

The systems, however, are expensive, with some running as high as $50,000. "It's hard to find a use for such a system to justify spending that kind of money," said Sullivan. "I think you need big farms that can absorb that kind of cost." He speculates that less than 100 of such systems exist throughout the world. Only two Ohio farmers own one.

The Farm Science Review, sponsored by Ohio State's College of Food, Agricultural, and Environmental Sciences, takes place Sept. 18-20 at the Molly Caren Agricultural Center near London, Ohio. Tickets are $6 at the gate or $4 in advance when purchased from county offices of OSU Extension or agribusinesses. Children five and younger are admitted free. Hours are 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Sept. 18-19 and 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sept. 20.

New Virus Test Kit Helps Keep Chicken On Table

EAST LANSING, Mich. — A new commercial blood test kit based on Agricultural Research Service technology detects chicks infected by an extremely virulent strain of avian leukosis virus, ALV-J.

It is the first commercial product to result from an emergency ARS response to an ALV-J emergence in the United States that reached epidemic proportions in 1996.

The epidemic produced shortages of breeding stock that threatened the poultry industry's ability to meet the burgeoning demand for chicken on the dinner table.

The new ALV-J kit, made by Synbiotics Corp. of San Diego, Calif., is one of two such kits in the world. The other kit was developed through a similar response by researchers abroad.

To meet this worldwide threat, ARS works with scientists throughout the world as part of an ever-expanding consortium of private industries, universities and government agencies. The U.S. Primary Breeders Veterinary Roundtable has funded some of the ARS research as part of its long-term reliance on ARS for industry-sustaining research.

Biochemist Lucy Lee, at the ARS Avian Disease and Oncology Laboratory in East Lansing, Mich., made this kit possible by finding a way to isolate and clone the gene that produces the protein coat that protects the live virus.

Chicken cells react to the coating because that is the first thing they detect when the virus invades.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture has patented Lee's techniques. ARS is the chief scientific research agency of USDA.

Breeders can use the kits to reduce ALV-J infection. They can take blood samples from chicks to see if the chicks have antibodies indicating exposure to ALV-J. Lee and other researchers in the United States and abroad are using the gene for research in developing an ALV-J vaccine.

ALV cannot infect people or animals besides chickens and has largely been found in the birds raised by primary broiler breeders, the birds that are the parents of the birds eaten by Americans.

South Dakota Scientist Named OARDC Associate Director

WOOSTER, Ohio — The Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center has named David A. Benfield of South Dakota State University its new associate director.

Benfield, currently a researcher and an administrator in SDSU's veterinary science department, is replacing L.R. "Skip" Nault, who is retiring Dec. 31, 2001. Benfield begins his new post Jan. 2, 2002.

Benfield, 49, is research coordinator of SDSU's veterinary medicine department, the department in which he is a professor, and is project director of South Dakota's Experimental Program to Stimulate Competitive Research. He is a specialist in animal virology, the study of animal viruses and viral diseases, and is an honorary diplomat of the American College of Veterinary Microbiologists. He has been with SDSU for 22 years.

"I'm excited about beginning to work with Dr. (Bob) Moser (dean of Ohio State University's College of Food, Agricultural, and Environmental Sciences), Dr. Slack, the faculty, students and staff," Benfield said. "I'm partial to the Midwest, and Ohio brings me closer to my roots in southern Indiana. OARDC has a beautiful campus, excellent and dedicated personnel, and a desire to grow."

OARDC is the research arm of Ohio State's College of Food, Agricultural, and Environmental Sciences and is the agricultural experiment station for Ohio. Faculty, staff and students work in Wooster, Columbus and Piketon and at 10 outlying branches.

Benfield, teaming with Slack, will be responsible for planning, budgeting, coordinating, developing and implementing research activities funded by federal, state and nongovernmental sources. The center's fiscal year 2001 budget was more than $57 million.

Benfield's research focuses on the biological and molecular biology of the pathogenesis of arteriviruses and coronaviruses in domestic animals; on methods to prevent infections in animals by these organisms; on using swine as a biomedical model for human viral diseases of the respiratory and reproductive systems; and on innovative ways to diagnose and protect against viral diseases in animals.

He is chairperson of the NC-229 Regional Committee on Porcine Reproductive and Respiratory Disease Syndrome, a research consortium of 11 Midwestern states, and is an editorial board member of the Journal of Veterinary Diagnostic Investigation.

He earned a bachelor's degree in biology and a master's degree in virology from Purdue University and a doctorate in microbiology/virology from the University of Missouri — Columbia.

He and his wife of 27 years, Marylin Anne (Plant) Benfield, have four children: Melissa, 24, of Bountiful, Utah; Joe, 21, of Brookings, S.D.; Jonathan, 17, a high-school senior; and Jameson, 15, a high-school junior.

Former Delaware Ag Dean Honored For Land Preservation Service

NEWARK, Del. — In a formal presentation at the Delaware State Fair, Governor Ruth Ann Minner declared July 26, Dr. Donald F. Crossan Day, in recognition of Crossan's 10 years of service to the First State as chair of the Delaware Farmlands Preservation Foundation (DAPF) and for his 18 years as chair of the Coastal Zone Control Board.

Crossan recently resigned as chair of the DAPF. The state of Delaware and the Delaware Department of Agriculture presented the University of Delaware professor emeritus with an engraved silver tray and Waterford crystal clock to commemorate the occasion.

The dean of the College of Agriculture and Natural Resources from 1977 to 1991, Crossan spent his career and thousands of volunteer hours in service to agriculture, first as a crop-fungicide research scientist and, in the years since his retirement, securing tough environmental standards as well as ensuring farmland preservation. In the last decade, Crossan's leadership has resulted in more than 400,000 acres under agricultural preservation.

"Delaware leads the surrounding states in the percentage of land preserved for agricultural use only," said Crossan. "What's remarkable is we've been at it for only 10 years as compared to the 20 or 30 years Pennsylvania and Maryland have put into their efforts.

Crossan was presented with the Medal of Distinction Award, the University of Delaware's highest honor, at Convocation in May.

In his acceptance speech, Crossan encouraged new graduates to pursue public service, adding that "service to others adds to one's own quality of life as well." He speaks from experience. Crossan has dedicated his life to public service in the fields of education, environment and agriculture.

Crossan, who earned a bachelor's degree in entomology and plant pathology from the University of Delaware in 1950, holds master's and doctoral degrees from North Carolina State University. He began his UD teaching and research career in 1954. During his 37 years at UD, Crossan chaired the plant science department, directed the Delaware Agricultural Experiment Station and was vice president of University Relations and Business Management. He also served as president of the Council of Academic Deans of Agriculture of the National Association of State Universities and Land Grant Colleges.

Penn State Ag Alumni Approve Poultry Science Affiliate Program Group

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The Penn State College of Agricultural Sciences Alumni Society recently approved the establishment of a Poultry Science Affiliate Program Group (APG).

The purpose of the APG is three-fold: (1) To stimulate the continued interest of all graduates, former students, and friends of the Department; (2) To provide a means whereby alumni and friends may join together for the enhancement of the programs of the Department and the College of Agricultural Sciences; and (3) To act as an informal advisory board to the Poultry Science Department Head.

Interim Board members are Andrew Bradford (Wenger's Feed Mill, Inc.), Paul Hann (Purina Mills, Inc.), Andrew Long (Biomune Company), Eugene Petit (Wenger's Feed Mill, Inc.), Susan Ranck (Farmer's Pride, Inc./Bell & Evans®), and J. Richard Roenigk (York Ag Products, Inc.).

Paul Hann was elected interim president, Susan Ranck was elected interim vice president, and Rich Roenigk was elected interim secretary-treasurer. An initial meeting of the organization will be conducted this fall.

The Poultry Science APG is expected to undertake numerous activities, including assisting the Department and College with undergraduate student recruitment, helping to develop and promote internship opportunities, providing mentoring to undergraduate students, serving as a connection to industry and promoting job opportunities for graduates, promoting advocacy awareness for the Department, and helping to foster increased communication amongst Poultry Science alumni and friends.

The 10 current APGs are separate sub-organizations of the Penn State Alumni Association and the College of Agricultural Sciences Alumni Society.

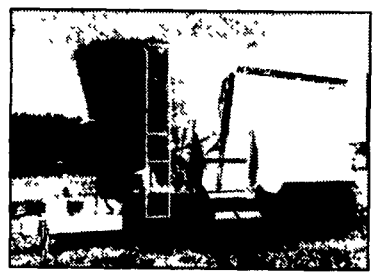
Knight Introduces Large Vertical Mixer Models

BRODHEAD, Wis. — Knight has introduced three larger vertical mixer models to its Verti-Maxx Mixer line.

The new models have 738,858, and 1,009 cubic foot capacities. The Verti-Maxx features a patent-pending, bull-gear drive (BGD design) that takes the dependability and simplicity of vertical mixers to the next level.

The twin-auger design provides superior mix quality, faster large-bale processing, and lower loading heights than competitive single-auger verticals. Five Verti-Maxx models are available from 424 to 1,009 cubic foot sizes in addition to their proven line of reel and four-auger mixers.



The Verti-Maxx features a patent-pending, bull-gear drive (BGD design) that takes the dependability and simplicity of vertical mixers to the next level.

Fielder's Choice Direct Gives $28,597 To FFA Foundation

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. — Tom Crowley, Landec Ag president and chief executive officer, and Bill Gass, vice president, marketing, presented a check for $28,597 to Trent McKnight, FFA national president, and Larry Gundrum, chairman of the National FFA Foundation Sponsor Board, during an FFA board meeting in Indianapolis, Ind.

As part of a recent market research project, Landec Ag (better known as Fielder's Choice Direct brand) surveyed corn growers regarding the potential uses and benefits of an emerging seed coating technology — Intellicoat Early Plant™ seed corn.

More than 9,000 corn farmers responded to the survey and more than 160 growers in 20 states signed up to participate in field trails of the new technology. FFA appreciated this outstanding response as Landec Ag had selected FFA to receive a $3 donation for each survey returned.

And while the check is a gift from Landec Ag to the FFA, Tom Crowley noted that it is also a gift from the 9,000 American farmers who took time from their busy schedules to provide Landec Ag with valuable information.

American farmers and Landec Ag recognize the important part FFA plays in making a difference in the lives of students by developing their potential for premier leadership, personal growth and career success through agricultural education which is critical to the future of the agricultural industry.

According to Gass, the survey provided a way for American farmers to tell Landec Ag scientists how they will use and benefit from a new Early Plant™ corn seed coating technology now being tested by Landec Ag.

Many of the farmers surveyed during the research project indicated that, during a typical year, they replant a significant portion of their corn acreage due to adverse early spring growing conditions. According to Gass, if the new technology could help these growers eliminate the need for replanting, the boost to their profitability could be significant.

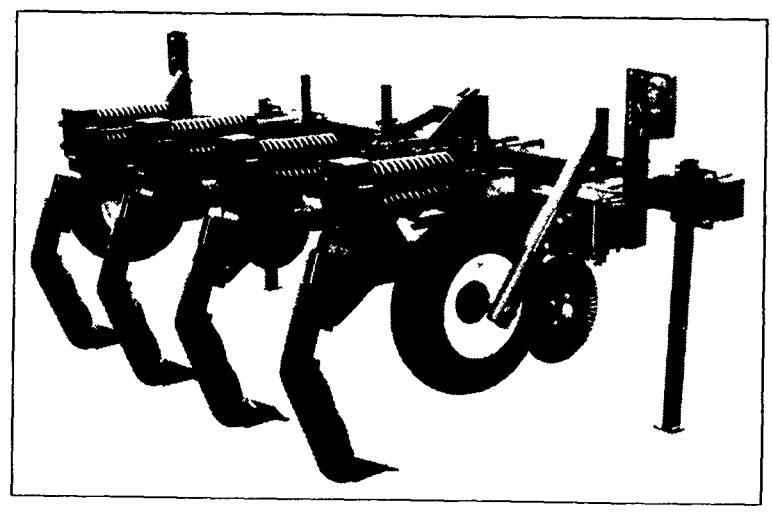
Brillion's Zone Commander Designed For No-Till, Minimum-Till Farming

BRILLION, Wis. — There's a new sub-soiling tool available for producers who practice no-till or minimum-till farming. The all new, and very massive, Zone Commander from Brillion loosens compacted soil down to 20 inches while leaving the surface relatively undisturbed.

"Producers who practice no-till and minimum-till farming methods often ask us for a tool that will break up compaction at the sub-soil level while leaving the surface undisturbed," says Gary Wallander, product support coordinator for Brillion Iron Works. "They tell us they're looking for a tool that creates optimum sub-soil conditions for water transfer and root growth while adhering to their farming practices. The new "Built Brillion Tough" Zone Commander presents these producers with a rugged way of accomplishing this."

The massive Zone Commander's 3-, 4-, 5-, 6-, 7-, and 8-shank models come with auto-reset shank mounts or rigid shank mounts, either of which will accommodate straight shanks or parabolic shanks. "While the standard shank spacing is 30-inches, the Zone Commander can also be set to 24 inch spacing, depending on the operator's individual needs," Wallander says.

Doubled-coil springs provide in excess of 2,500 pounds of point pressure to a 16-inch trip height on the auto-reset model. Beyond the 16-inch trip, Grade-8 shear-bolts provide additional protection. In soils without large rocks, the rigid-mounted shanks will stay firmly in the ground and are also protected by Grade-8 shear-bolts. Manual-adjust gauge wheels positively regulate the depth of the Zone Commander shanks all the way down to 20 inches.



The Zone Commander is designed for use by minimum-till and no-till producers and is the latest in the Brillion line of tillage equipment.

Clearance of 39-inches under the massive 5- by 7-inch frame makes for smooth and easy flow of residue through the machine. An optional setback extension kit allows individual shanks to be set back 13 inches if even more residue flow is desired.

The Zone Commander's 20-inch coulters with spring relief cut up crop residue and stalks. Additional coulter assemblies may be added to the front frame tube as required.

A variety of points can be used with the Zone Commander, including 2-inch V-cast steel, 2½-inch flat, 2½-inch flat allow, 7-inch winged alloy, and 10-inch winged alloy points. In addition, coverboard kits can be used with the parabolic shanks in cases where some surface disturbance is desired.

"With a choice of the number of shanks, auto-reset or rigid shank mountings, variable shank spacings, and the many styles of points available, the Zone Commander can be tailored to each producer's working conditions," Wallander says. "We've made the Zone Commander easy to adjust, so it can transform depending on the growing conditions that each year brings or as tillage and cropping practices change."

Gehl Dealers Attend GehlFest 2001

WEST BEND, Wis. — Nearly 400 North American Gehl agricultural dealer personnel attended a two-day "Gehlfest" product education session conducted at the Gehl Company headquarters in West Bend, Wis. during the week of July 16.

"Over the last year-and-a-half, we've introduced more exciting new product models than in any other 18-month period in recent history," says William D. Gehl, chairman, president and chief executive officer. "The time was right to bring our dealers together, not only for sales training purposes, but also to showcase our updated manufacturing and office facilities, and to allow dealers to meet and socialize with Gehl support staff from all areas of our company."

Dealers attended formal sales training presentations, toured manufacturing, engineering and office facilities, and had informal small-group discussions during hands-on product breakout sessions. Recently-introduced products on display included:

Four new skid loader models — including the industry's largest-capacity, highest-reaching unit.

Five new round balers — all featuring Gehl's exclusive variable open throat power in-feed system for faster starts and more capacity.

Avantage™ mini-loaders — these small loaders deliver big loader features in a choice of two compact, maneuverable packages.

Also shown were Gehl's complete line of Scavenger® V-tank spreaders, box spreaders, TMR mixer feeders, forage blowers, forage boxes, disc mowers and wheel rakes, as well as a display of nearly 50 skid loader and Agri-Loader attachments.

Cyclopss Corp. Lauds FDA's Approval Of Ozone To Kill Food Borne Pathogens

SALT LAKE CITY, Ut. — Cyclopss Corporation announced recently that the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) has cleared the way to allow the use of its Eco-Pure food processing technologies in killing food borne pathogens.

The recent FDA approval of ozone as a food additive eliminates the last significant barrier to the use of the patented Eco-Pure cold water food disinfection systems. The FDA ruling now allows for the use of ozone in the processing of all foods, including meats and poultry.

Cyclopss was issued a very broad patent in February of this year by the U.S. Patent Office for the use of ozone combined with surfactants for use in all food processing activities and has been anxiously awaiting this final ruling by the FDA.

"We are very excited at the contribution we can make to the consumer and the food processing industry," says Dr. Durand Smith, director of R&D at Cyclopss from their research facilities in Albuquerque, New Mexico. He continued, "Ozone is the most effective oxidizing anti-microbial agent known. It kills E-coli 3,125 times faster than chlorine, and converts into oxygen after the process adding quality to the foods by leaving no chemical residuals behind."

Management stated that they expect this ruling to dramatically effect the immediate future of the company potential and that in-plant test systems are already being readied to install at poultry processing plants to be used in the control of E-coli and Salmonella on processed carcasses. Additionally, with this final ruling, projects with fruit and produce growers, fresh salad packer's, beef processors and fish packers that have been on hold for as long as 2½ years are expected to be restarted.

Devastating Soybean Disease Found On Delmarva

NEWARK, Del. — A soybean disease not usually found outside of the midwestern U.S. has been identified in Sussex County, Del. The results could mean substantial yield losses for this year's local soybean crop.

According to Bob Mulrooney, Cooperative Extension plant pathologist at the University of Delaware, area soybean growers should be on the lookout for Sudden Death Syndrome (SDS) in soybeans, a disease that was documented for the first time in Sussex County, Del., and Maryland's Eastern Shore just last season.

"The 2000 season was one of the wettest and coolest in recent history," notes Mulrooney. "These are the very conditions that favor infection, especially through the first half of the growing season. Early-planted full-season soybeans are more likely to become infected because conditions for infection are more likely to occur in spring."

According to Mulrooney, Sudden Death Syndrome (SDS) in soybeans — so-called because healthy-looking plants turn yellow and die very quickly — typically appears after pod set. The decrease in yields occurs as the result of defoliation, flower and pod abortion, and reduced seed size. Yield losses can reach 80 percent or more, depending on variety and stage of crop development when symptoms first appear. The level of yield loss is dependent on a number of factors, including the environment, time of infection and vigor of the soybean crop.

"SDS is caused by a specific strain of a common soil-inhabiting fungus called Fusarium solani, which causes a unique set of symptoms in soybean," Mulrooney explains. "Regarded as a chronic pathogen of legumes such as pea, snap bean, alfalfa and soybean, F. solani likely arose as a mutant from the general population and is a vastly virulent form of the species."

First observed in Arkansas in 1971, SDS has since been found in Wisconsin, Iowa, Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, Kentucky, Mississippi, Missouri and Tennessee. But SDS symptoms had never been observed in the First State until now. In the past while looking for other pathogens on soybeans in Delaware, Mulrooney has been able to isolate Fusarium solani from soybean roots, but he had never seen plant symptoms.

"The SDS fungus is similar to many other soilborne fungi that lurk in a field waiting for the right conditions to infect," he says. "And, because only four fields in two states have been affected, the impact on soybean plant health on Delmarva is not known, nor is the level of this fungus.

Symptoms of SDS can appear as early as late bloom up to the R6 stage (when the pods are filled but still green). More often, the appearance is visible after the plant reaches the mid-pod fill stages (R3 through R5).

Mulrooney recommends that growers and pest control advisers scout soybeans for the following symptoms:

- Interveinal yellow blotches on the leaves that progress to large irregular patches; the yellow areas eventually turn brown or white, yet the veins remain green.
- Defoliation, especially on the upper third of the plant. Leaf blades separate from the petioles, and the petioles and stems stay green for a time after leaves drop off.
- Pod drop.
- A root system that appears healthy after the chlorotic leaf symptoms are observed. Later, the lower portion of the taproot discolors, deterioration gradually progresses upward, eventually affecting the lateral roots, nitrogen-fixing nodules, and the lower stem.
- Root tissues may appear milky gray or milky brown, but the pith, or inner core of the root and stem, remains white.
- Blue masses of the fungus can be seen on the surface of the taproot of severely infested plants.
- Plants die off in patches that are circular or oval; affected areas in the field may appear scorched as if by fire.

Mulrooney suggests that farmers who find these symptoms in soybeans contact the agricultural agent at their county extension office for diagnosis.

Clauer Joins Penn State Poultry Science Department

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Phillip J. Clauer, extension poultry specialist in the Department of Animal and Poultry Sciences at Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University, joined the Penn State Department of Poultry Science as a senior extension associate on Aug. 16.

Clauer received a B.S. degree in Poultry Science and an M.S. degree in Continuing and Vocational Education in 1983 and 1985, respectively, from the University of Wisconsin-Madison. He joined the Department of Poultry Science at Virginia Tech, where he specialized in 4-H Youth programs and small flock outreach.

Clauer is a member of the National 4-H Poultry and Egg Conference Executive Committee; chairman of the judging contest at the National 4-H Poultry and Egg Conference; and the design team chairperson for the 4-H Cooperative Curriculum System National Embryology Curriculum publications.

Clauer's duties at Penn State will center on undergraduate recruiting and internship coordination, 4-H poultry youth program development, and small speciality poultry enterprise outreach.

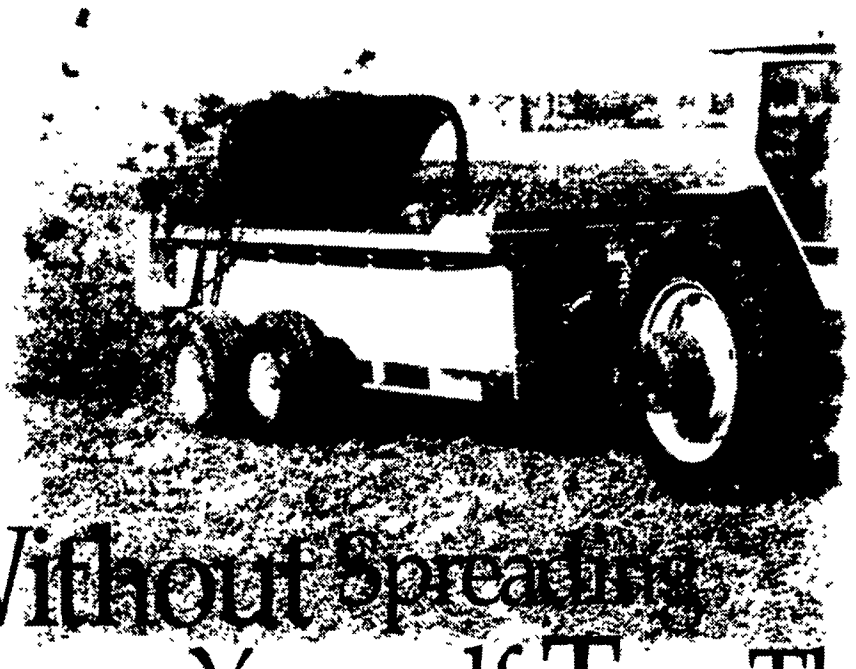
Match A Spreader To Your Needs



Without Spreading Yourself Too Thin

Get Unmatched Flexibility At A Great Price.

With eight sizes to choose from and a wide variety of options it's easy to see how the New Idea® 3700 Series Spreaders meet the needs of any operation Their aggressive main beater paddles are strategically spaced and angled to shred a wide range of material while giving you a consistent spread pattern

Culvert-grade galvanizing over one-piece, copper-bearing steel sides provide a barrier against rust and corrosion And for hauling long distances, the truck-mount option proves to be the safest, most economical way to transport large amounts of material

To see how simple it is to customize your spreading operation, contact your AGCO® New Idea dealer today You'll be surprised how much time and money you'll save with the New Idea 3700 Series Spreaders

THIS WEEK'S SPECIAL
New Holland 3110
Side Delivery Spreader
Stop In Or Call For Great Deals

GET PRECISE APPLICATION CONTROL

New Holland side-delivery spreaders provide the most material control. Whether you're light top dressing, laying down a heavy layer, or anything in between, the Model 3110 puts the right amount of material right where you need it.

- Handles a wide variety of material – slurry, gutter material, cow manure, even poultry litter.
- V-tank design delivers material to the auger fast.
- Heavy-duty round-core auger produces less drag.
- Double-acting hydraulic cylinder moves auger up and down to keep material flowing.
- Hydraulic gate and specially designed expeller give precise application control.
- Backed by a 10-year warranty against tank rust-through.

See us for all your spreader needs.
New Holland Box Spreaders also in stock.

KNIGHT

Verti-Maxx™ Mixers

Introducing Models 5042 and 5060
420 and 600 cubic feet

The new Knight Verti-Maxx is the most innovative vertical mixer ever built. Its exclusive design features a simpler drive system, a lower loading height, and delivers a more consistent, thorough mix with faster processing time, all at a competitive price. The Verti-Maxx twin augers and bull gear drive provide the best performance, dependability and value in the industry, day in and day out. Check out these features and benefits:

- The Verti-Maxx vertical mixer mixes the widest variety of feedstuffs, including large round bales, large square bales, and baleage.
- Twin augers provide faster material movement and a thorough mixing action.
- Twin auger design also provides a lower loading height for easier loading.

Suzuki quad owners must be over the age of 16 and ride Suzuki responsibly. We recommend that all riders take a training course. For safety and training course information, see your dealer or call the SVIA at 1-800-887-5364. ATVs can be hazardous to operate. For your safety, always wear a helmet, eye protection and protective clothing. Always avoid paved surfaces. Never ride on public roads. Never carry passengers or engage in stunt driving. Riding and alcohol or drugs do not mix. Avoid excessive speeds. Be extra careful on difficult terrain. Always remember to cooperate with environmental concerned citizens and respect the rights of others when you ride. Please protect your future by supporting responsible land management, the environment, trail access and the rights of others when you ride.

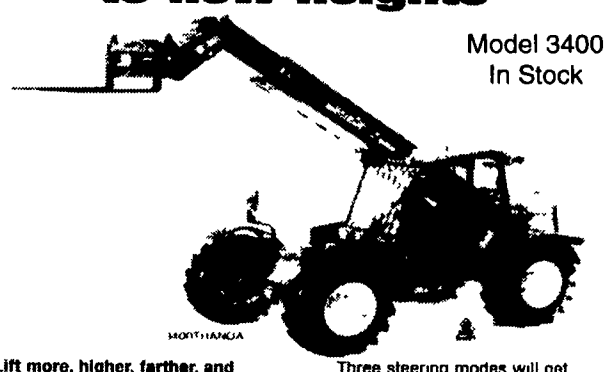
NEW 3000 SERIES TELEHANDLERS

Take material handling to new heights



Model 3400 In Stock

Lift more, higher, farther, and faster with the next generation of farm equipment. The all-new John Deere 3000 Series Telehandler gives you the ultimate in versatility and maneuverability. Reach up to 23 feet and lift up to 6,600 pounds. And, simultaneous hydraulic flow speeds up cycle times by letting you perform all functions at once.

Three steering modes will get you in and out of cramped spaces while the spacious cab offers unmatched visibility. A patented attachment system lets you make fast changeovers from the cab, so you can dig, lift, scoop, sweep anything imaginable! See us today and learn how to take your material handling to new heights.

Built To Outlast.

It's mind-numbing, back-breaking work. Loading bales. Working crops. Tilling, mowing, raking, baling and the list goes on. It'll grind you to the bone – and take an average tractor down hard. But Massey Ferguson 4200 Series tractors deliver unmatched performance, durability and comfort, to keep you going long after others give out. The long-stroke Perkins Fastram™ diesel cranks out high torque, even when RPMs drop. Powertrains range from manual shift to high-output PowerShuttle. Dual-system hydraulics, a beefy linkage and new lift geometry generate optimum lift. Even the hydraulic filter never quits – just wipe it clean every 1,000 hours and keep on going. And touches like an adjustable spring-suspension seat, adjustable tilt steering and more mean you'll last as long as your Massey Ferguson 4200.

No Compromise.

Proud to be an American.

We are proud of our new national heroes; the police, firefighters, and volunteers at each of the attack sites.

Our heartfelt prayers and condolences go out to family and friends of all of the victims.

Our motto has been "Our Trusses Bear Up" and in this tragic time, "Our Country Bears Up."

Sincerely,
The Black Bear Team

Waterbeds for Cows

ALANTA® LimPoly

The ALANTA Waterbed for cows is a revolutionary product, comfortable, safe and hygienic. It clearly improves your cows' well-being and therefore promotes higher milk production. It is the ultimate stall floor covering for the modern, animal-friendly dairy farm.

WELL MADE
The ALANTA Waterbed is made of two rubber layers with a water-filled compartment in between. GD-Enerka gives a 10-year guarantee.

COMFORTABLE
The waterbed molds itself to the cow's shape. It's cool in summer and pleasantly warm in winter.

SAFE
Thanks to the non-slip rubber upper surface, the cow is gripped firmly and cannot slip off. In this way the ALANTA waterbed keeps damage to hooves to a minimum.

ALFALFA SEED $1.40/Lb.
from the Dakota's Trask Family Seeds

- Features grower-to-grower direct seed sales
- SDSU tested
- Offered to growers for $1 40/per lb in 60 lb bags plus freight
- Varieties. S.D Common, Vernal and others
- These Alfalfa varieties are proven to compete with the expensive varieties in all conditions and always carry our money back guarantee

PA farmers have great hay crops with South Dakota alfalfa seed. Emery Zimmerman, Mifflin, PA says, "The South Dakota seed we planted in late April. It's good and thick, has good height, makes good haylage and excellent dry hay. Protein test 21.6 and RFV 132."

Join the numerous farmers in the PA/NY area harvesting wonderful alfalfa from South Dakota seed.

Announcing:
Crude Soy Oil Now Available
With the addition of our new soybean processing facility, we now offer soybean oil as an animal nutrition product Processing the soybeans ourselves allows us to utilize locally grown soybeans and support our local agricultural community!

Crude Soybean Oil
A product of Keystone's expelling process, this oil can be used in a wide variety of on farm applications. Crude soy oil is a natural alternative to animal fats and provides needed energy in various rations.

Uses of Crude Soy Oil Include:
- Use as a high energy feed ingredient in swine and poultry diets.
- Especially useful in sow lactation diets, pig starter and grow/finish diets.
- Used as an added energy source in broiler, turkey and layer feeds.
- Can be used for dust control purposes.
- Can be used as a lubricant for feeding systems

Advantages of Crude Soy Oil:
- Use as a direct replacement for animal fat.
- Vegetable based product.
- Holding tank does not need to be heated if temperature is above 30 degrees, which reduces storage and handling costs compared to animal fat.
- Bulk delivery, partial loads available direct to farm by Keystone Mills.
- Customer may pick up to save delivery costs.

Other Soy Products Available:
- Keystone offers Golden Pro 46 XP which is 46% protein - 6-7% oil, Golden Meal 40 which is 40% crude protein with 18% oil.

Keystone Mills Soybean Exchange Program
- We will take your soybeans in trade for Golden ProXP 46, Golden Meal 40.
- Contact Keystone Mills for details on our soybean exchange program featuring these quality nutritional products.

CALL BINKLEY & HURST BROS. TODAY FOR SNOW & ICE CONTROL EQUIPMENT

RD Series

Many owners of mid-size four-wheel drive trucks have snow removal needs that require a snowplow that's both rugged and matched to meet the capacities of their 1/2 ton trucks or full-size sport-utility vehicles.

Available in 7' and 7'6" blade widths, the popular FISHER® RD Series snowplows are perfect for homeowners, small businesses and light commercial plowing applications. These blades are 26" high and made of 11 gauge steel. The trip-edge is backed with a reinforced cutting bar at the bottom to increase wear resistance.

ACCESSORIES available for the RD Series snowplows include a steel cutting edge made of tough 1090 high carbon steel to improve cutting power and scraping ability and the FISHER SnoFoil® to funnel snow to the side - allowing it to be piled higher. A steel or 2-ply rubber deflector is also available to extend the height of your blade so snow stays off your windshield and away from the radiator.

"GOD BLESS AMERICA"

This is the phrase we see today on lots of business marques. The events of Sept. 11th have been a wakening call to many people and I hope to all of us. Life is more than things and possessions. Life is a right relationship with our maker and a life style that reflects that relationship. I believe God has permitted this awakening to us for his ultimate good. Life must go on and for that reason we all must pray for our leaders and our country and not give up in despair.

I still have several farms available for new owners either this fall or in the spring. Other listings are on the horizon and some I am authorized to show and sell. Call me now for all your farms need be it buying or selling. The farms are in most counties East of Bedford.

Two farms SOLD and going to settlement within the next 2 weeks. I'll be most happy to add your farm to this list.
